LEAGUE ENVOYS ARRIVE IN CHINA; SEE WAR HAVOC

Prepare for Probe of Hostilities.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 14.—The league of nations commission to investigate the Chinese-Japanese war, headed by Lord Lytton, arrived here today from Japan.

FRANK R. McCOY. [Harris & Ewing.]

The commission includes, besides Lord Lytton, who represents Great Britain; Gen. Henri Claudel of France, Count Luigi Aldrovani Marescotti of Italy Dr. Heinrich Schnee of Germany, and Maj. Gen Frank R. McCoy of the United States.

The commission's first introduction to the Shanghai war situation was when the Dollar liner President Adams reached Woosung, at the mouth of the Whangpoo river. The representatives viewed the battered Woosung forts and the devastated village through binoculars.

See Warships Ready for Action.

The President Adams then steamed slowly down the river, zigzagging around more than a dozen Japanese cruisers and destroyers and a number of transports, which only yesterday disembarked 3,000 more Japanese troops. The warships were still stripped for action.

Lord Lytton said the commission's activities have not fully been decided on, but that if solicited it will tender its good offices in connection with an armistice and withdrawal of troops. He said, however, that it is not authorized to take part in a round table conference, if one is held. The commission plans to remain here eight days.

Meanwhile the social affairs bureau of the Chinese municipality has drawn up a report giving facts and figures on the war situation for presentation to the commission.

10,000 Civilians Killed.

The report said that more than 4,500,000 persons in the densely populated Shanghai district have been affected by the Japanese military invasion and that between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 have been driven from their homes. Homes and business properties of 1,000,000 persons were destroyed by Japanese air bombing, artillery fire and the resulted conflagration, the report said.

The number of civilians killed was stated to be between 10,000 and 15,000. The amount of territory held by the Japanese was said to be more than 600 square miles, constituting probably the most densely populated area in the world. The report said most of the people who escaped with their lives fled, leaving the zone practically depopulated.

Japs Make New Charges.

The report gave detailed statistics which placed the property losses at 1,477,000,000 silver dollars, which is now the equivalent of $370,000,000 in gold. The worst losses, suffered in the Chapei, Kiangwan, Chenju and Woosung districts, amounted to 985,000,000 silver dollars, while the losses in the foreign settlement was placed at 312,000,000 silver dollars. The loss of one concern alone, a large commercial press and printing establishment, was put at nearly 20,000,000 silver dollars.

The report declared that the Japanese are in a peculiarly favorable position to appraise Shanghai's losses because the devastation caused here as a result of the Japanese military activities is similar to what Tokio and Yokohama suffered in 1923 as a result of the earthquake.

An official Japanese military report tonight, apparently designed to impress the league commission, alleged that Chinese troops are being massed at Soochow, Sungkiang, and in other nearby districts, indicating "elaborate preparations for large scale warfare in anticipation of another clash with Japanese forces."

Report Air Clash with Soviets.

LONDON, March 14.—(AP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, today said a Japanese airplane was reported to have crossed the Siberian border at Pogranichnaya, where it was surrounded in the air by soviet Russian planes, which pursued the Japanese ship and forced it down.

KEN MEENAN, N. U. FULL BACK, WEDS 2D TIME IN YEAR

Kenneth Meenan, Northwestern university full back, was married yesterday in Waukegan to Miss Jean Rogers, also a Northwestern student.

It was the second wedding of the present school year for Meenan, who is a sophomore, 22 years old. His marriage to Miss Helen Major of Evanston took place on Sept. 30, but it was annulled early in November by Judge Harry B. Miller on the petition of the bride's father, J. C. Major.

Both the football star and his new bride are subject to dismissal from college, the Northwestern rule being that when two students are married they are automatically expelled for one semester, except when the consent of the parents has been obtained. The bridegroom's father, D. E. Meenan, 808 Home avenue, Oak Park, said last night that he did not know of the marriage, which was performed by Justice of the Peace Wallenwein at 5 p. m.

Meenan is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. The bride resides at the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority house and is a sophomore taking a course leading to a bachelor's degree in liberal arts. Her father is a banker in Klamath Falls, Ore.

"It's simply unbelievable," said one of the bride's sorority friends. "Ken never went with Jean till Saturday. My goodness, the boy is a fast worker."

ALLEGED POLICE PIPERIZER HELD AS PISTOL TOTER

Edward H. Hicks, manager of the Central Uptown Business Men's association, who is described as a self-appointed police Piperizer and who last summer received extra-police protection at his home, 4646 Kenmore avenue, was arrested late yesterday on a warrant charging him with carrying a concealed weapon.

He was taken into custody in the Town Hall station while, it is said, he was making one of his periodical visits there. The warrant was sworn out by Harry Winder, owner of the Hotel Melbourne, 4625 North Racine avenue. Winder charged that Hicks appeared in his office Saturday and threatened him with a pistol. Hicks denied the accusation last night. He will be arraigned today in Town Hall court.

In his own statement last night Hicks said he has done his best to keep the district clean. Police asserted that he has acted as a private inspector of police, and has even had patrolmen transferred. Records of last July revealed that on Hick's insistence a policeman walked in front of his home every half hour.

Rush to Beat Deadline for U.S. Tax Filing

Income Tax Facts

WHERE TO FILE AND PAY—Federal building, room 528.

ASSISTANCE — Federal building, rooms 555 and 564, and entire second floor corridor; THE TRIBUNE public service office, 1 South Dearborn street; and 18 banks.

DEADLINE—Midnight, tonight.

EXEMPTIONS—$1,500 for single persons; $3,500 for married couples, with $400 extra for each dependent.

DEDUCTIONS—All taxes paid, including city and state auto licenses and gasoline taxes; income from stock of domestic corporations, contributions to organized charities, insurance benefits, interest paid.

More than 18,000 persons filed their income tax returns at the federal building yesterday as the deadline, midnight tonight, approached. Another 10,000 returns were received in the mails. The collector's office remained open until late last night.

The final rush is greater than it has been in past years. Five cashiers were required yesterday to accommodate the taxpayers, as compared with only three in other years. People are worrying more this year about deductions, stock market and real estate losses, and other financial reverses that were ignored in past years, according to Robert E. Neely, chief deputy collector.

More Questions Asked.

The taxpayers ask more questions and it requires longer to make out their returns, Mr. Neely said. More people are making only the payment for the first quarter this year, instead of paying up in full when filing, and this requires more time. Hundreds of nontaxable returns are being filed, the percentage being far greater than for previous years, Mr. Neely said. All persons with gross incomes of $5,000 or more must file, whether or not a tax is due.

For the convenience of those who wait until the last minute, Gregory T. Van Meter, collector, will keep his force on hand until midnight tonight. All returns placed in the mails before midnight will be accepted without penalty. A penalty of 25 per cent is assessed for late returns, and in addition interest at 1 per cent a month is required for delinquency in the payment of the tax.

The rate is the same as last year, the normal tax being 1½ per cent on the first $4,000 of net income, 3 per cent on the second $4,000, and 5 per cent on all over $8,000, plus surtaxes in the higher brackets. Corporations pay a flat rate of 12 per cent. The tax may be paid in full or in four quarterly installments. Most individuals pay in full and most corporations pay quarterly, to save interest.

At THE TRIBUNE Public Service office yesterday, 2,600 persons were assisted with their returns, making a total of more than 12,000 who have received this free aid there this year.

MOVIE CASHIER FAILS IN EFFORTS TO FOIL BANDIT

A lone bandit stepped up to the cashier's cage of the Lido theater, 618 South Fifth avenue, Maywood, last night, and demanded money of Miss Edna Cameron, 614 North 15th street, Maywood. "You wouldn't kid me," she queried nonchalantly. The bandit produced his gun and assured her that he wouldn't.

In the meantime, Lester Weber, an employé of the theater, passed by. The bandit prodded him with the gun. The interruption gave Miss Cameron a chance to step on the burglar alarm button. The bell, which rings in an adjoining place of business, failed to function. Then the cashier managed to drop $200 to the floor, but the bandit saw the move.

After more threats Miss Cameron handed the bandit $400 and he fled on foot.

LAUGHS AS HE DELIBERATELY PLANS SUICIDE

Fires Bullet Through His Heart.

Rochester, N. Y., March 14.—[Special.]—George Eastman, founder and chairman of the board of the Eastman Kodak company, internationally known philanthropist and inventor, killed himself in his palatial East avenue home shortly after noon today. He had been in ill health for several years.

As methodically as he had lived his seventy-seven years, he penned a brief note, carefully put out his cigaret, placed the cap back on his fountain pen, and removed his glasses before firing a shot through his heart.

The simple note read:

"To my friends: My work is done. Why wait? G. E."

Methodical in Preparation.

Equally methodically Mr. Eastman had added a codicil to his will last week, laughing and joking with attorneys and witnesses whom he had asked to his home.

A moment before his final act today the manufacturer was chatting with his personal physician, Dr. Audley W. Stewart, and his nurses. Suddenly asking them to leave, he said:

"I have a note to write."

Dr. Stewart and the nurses withdrew, leaving the philanthropist alone. A moment later they heard a shot. Rushing into the room, they found Mr. Eastman dead, the note at his side.

News of Mr. Eastman's death not only shocked the city of Rochester but other centers throughout the world. Not only had the industry he founded penetrated into the remotest parts of the earth but his philanthropies, estimated at $75,000,000 had been scattered aboard as well as in his native country.

At the time of the founder's death Dr. Harvey W. Burkhart, head of the famous Eastman Dental clinic here, was on his way to Europe to confer with officials of similar clinics established in London and Rome. Others are under construction in Stockholm, Paris and Brussels.

No Immediate Relatives.

Mr. Eastman was a bachelor and there are no immediate relatives surviving him. His nearest relative is a niece, Mrs. George Dreyden of Evanston, Ill.

Besides founding the kodak company, regarded as the corner stone of Rochester industry, Mr. Eastman gave lavishly here. Of a scientific turn of mind, he had acquired a taste for music that led him to establish the Eastman theater and the Eastman School of Music and support such enterprises as the Rochester Philharmonic orchestra and the Rochester Civic orchestra.

Of late years he gave away millions to a long list of charitable and educational institutions, reducing his personal fortune to less than 20 million dollars. Likewise he gradually relinquished personal direction of his industry.

Friend Pays Tribute.

Commenting on Eastman's death, Lewis B. Jones, vice president of the Eastman Kodak company, said:

"My anxiety is that he should not be misunderstood. George Eastman played the game to the last. By his

Clews to Baby Everywhere; Lead Nowhere

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hopewell, N. J., March 15 (Tuesday). —[Special.]—There was a minimum of activity on Sourland hill early today and it became increasingly evident that the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby depends on the whim of the man who stole him from his crib two weeks ago.

The search moved along three widely scattered fronts—the nation, the underworld, and the mountain hideaways in the vicinity of the home of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Nowhere was there a report of progress in the campaign.

The New Jersey police teletype carried a message asking incinerator keepers to watch out for suspicious bundles or infant's clothing, indicating a growing fear that the baby may be dead.

Reporters Hide Behind Trees.

A score of newspaper people hid behind trees and hedges near the home of Calvin Petty, Kingston nurseryman, who says he got word Saturday night that the baby was to be left at his home to be returned to the Lindberghs. The watch was kept from 10 o'clock until midnight, but nothing happened.

Meanwhile, in Hopewell there was word that a gray blanket overcoat had been discovered the morning after the kidnaping in Featherbed lane at the spot where woodsmen said the trail of the kidnapers ended. The authorities had kept the find a secret. So far, they have failed to identify the coat.

Partial verification of the coat story was obtained from Clifford Snook, police chief of the township which includes Hopewell and Pennington. Chief Snook said the coat was found on March 3 in bushes behind the Lindbergh home. Snook did not attach much importance to the find.

Pays Respects to Troopers.

"The state troopers think they are almighty," said Chief Snook, "but if one of them stepped a half mile into the woods he would get lost. There never has been a thorough search of the Sourland hills and only the folks who live up there can make it."

The theory that neighborhood people played a part in the kidnaping, was expressed by Snook.

"Whoever did this thing," he said, "was helped by local people. My investigation has convinced me of that. It would have been virtually impossible for people from the outside to have carried a ladder in an automobile anywhere near the house without being seen. I think the kidnapers must have walked to the house from some spot three or four miles away. They must have been local people. Strangers never could have got away as quick as they."

Check Underworld Characters.

The underworld search today, so far as police activity was concerned, centered on a checkup of a group of Denver "underworld characters" led by a man named Roma. Col. Norman Schwarzkopf, in charge of the New Jersey state police, said he had information that some of the members of the gang had flown to New York from the western city and were engaged in "mysterious activities."

The Denver clew is connected with the arrest several weeks before the kidnaping of two men traveling from the west. They were seized near Trenton and were said to have told New Jersey police they were members of a Denver "airplane mob." The clew was investigated and promptly dismissed.

Turning Point Seen in Fall Elections.

Farmers Lose

The test vote in the house of representatives in Washington, by which a movement which would have meant the return of malt liquors to legality was blocked, resulted in sudden grain price declines on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday which cost farmers about $23,000,000.

The federal farm board, financed by the taxpayers, shared in the losses as well.

Wheat prices dropped 2⅜ to 3¼ cents a bushel as the grain marketing industry saw its hopes for an immediate return of beer as an outlet for grain recede. Corn prices went down 1¼ to 1½ cents a bushel; rye, 2¼ to 2½ cents, and oats ¾ of a cent.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14. —[Special.]—Jubilant in defeat, anti-prohibition leaders were predicting that the wet gain recorded in the vote on prohibition in the house today foreshadows repeal or modification of the 18th amendment after the November election.

By a vote of 187 ayes to 227 nays, with 18 not voting, the house rejected the motion to discharge the judiciary committee from further consideration of the Beck-Linthicum resolution for submission of any amendment to the 18th amendment restoring the control of liquor to the states.

The 187 members voting to submit to the states the proposed change in the prohibition organic law represented an increase of 59 opponents of the Volstead régime since the house voted Dec. 17, 1917, to submit the 18th amendment. The vote on that occasion was 282 for the amendment, 128 against it, with 23 members not voting.

Comparison with Past Votes.

On July 22, 1919, the house passed the Volstead act by a vote of 287 ayes, 100 nays, 3 voting present, and 40 not voting. On Oct. 27, 1919, the house passed the Volstead act over President Wilson's veto by a vote of 175 ayes, 55 nays, 3 voting present and 198 not voting. On Feb. 28, 1929, the house passed the Jones "five and ten" bill, increasing penalties for violation of the Volstead act, by a vote of 284 ayes, 90 nays, and 54 not voting.

"The fight is all but won," Representative J. Charles Linthicum [Dem., Md.], co-author of the anti-prohibition resolution, said after the defeat of the measure. "All we need now is one more election. The vote today shows the trend of the time toward the adoption of a sane system of liquor control."

Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.], the other sponsor of the resolution, agreed with Mr. Linthicum that the November election of the next congress will record the beginning of the end of prohibition and predicted that it will not be necessary to wait for the meeting of the next congress for action. He opined that this congress at the session next winter, as a direct result of the November election, will submit the anti-prohibition amendment.

Four Women Support Wets.

Representative Mary T. Norton [Dem., N. J.], expressed the same opinion.

"You notice," she said, "that four of the six women members of the house voted wet today. It is the women of the country who are going to bring about the repeal of prohibition."

"Congress is catching up with the people," said Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. "Two years ago there were 77 liberal members in the house. Our estimate for today's test was 190, and the vote is 187. Next time we will put it over. The people are still 3 to 1 for overthrowing our national prohibition. Just a little while longer with some good fighting on the way and congress will be 3 to 1, too. The majority always rules in the end."

Representative John G. Cooper [Rep., O.], leader of the dry forces in the house, was no less positive that the vote today presages no serious undermining of prohibition.

"The wets seem to have made considerable gains since last year," he said. "They may get some encouragement from today's vote, but they are a long way from the two-thirds necessary to submit the question to the people."

Political Division Near Even.

The supporters of the wet side of the argument today numbered 97 Republicans and 90 Democrats, while the drys comprised 112 Republicans, 114 Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor member. Illinois voted 17 wet and 9 dry; Iowa, 1 wet, 10 dry; Indiana, 3 wet, 8 dry; Michigan, 9 wet, 4 dry; Wisconsin, 9 wet, 2 dry.

Whether Speaker Garner [Dem., Tex.], candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, is wet or dry remains as much a mystery as ever. He refrained from voting today. He voted against submission of the 18th amendment but for the Volstead act, and was recorded as not voting on the Wilson veto.

Illinois members who voted for submission of the Beck-Linthicum resolution were: Republicans—Britten, Buckbee, Chindblom, De Priest, Granata, Morton D. Hull, William E. Hull—7. Democrats—Arnold, Beam, Dieterich, Igoe, Karch, Kelly, Major, Rainey, Sabath, Schuetz—10.

Those voting against the resolution were: Republicans—Adkins, Allen, Chiperfield, Hall, Holaday, Johnson, Yates—7. Democrats—Keller, Parson—2. Not voting—Reid [Rep.].

Changes by Illinoisans.

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], who voted with the wets today, voted for the 18th amendment and for all other dry legislation. He says that he is still a dry and opposed to modification of the 18th amendment but that he deems it his duty to afford an opportunity for the people to pass on the question. The only other members of the present Illinois delegation who were members of congress when the 18th amendment was passed were: Representatives Britten, Igoe, and Sabath, all of whom voted against it.

In addition to Mr. Rainey, two other Illinois representatives who voted for the Volstead act in 1919 voted with the wets today. They were Representative J. E. Major [Dem.] and Representative Carl R. Chindblom [Rep.].

Both Mr. Major and Mr. Chindblom also voted with the drys as late as 1929 when they cast their ballot for the passage of the Jones' "five and ten law." Others of the Illinois delegation who voted for the Jones law in 1929 and with the wets today were Representatives John T. Buckbee, Morton D. Hull, and William E. Hull, all Republicans.

Other Midwestern Votes.

Those from other midwestern states who voted for the resolution were:

Indiana—Boehne, Vestal, Griswold, Pettengill, Wood—5.

Iowa—Jacobsen—1.

Wisconsin—Amlie, Kading, Schafer, Stafford, Reilly, Withrow, Boileau, Schneider, Peavey.

It was a day of excitement and exuberance in the house. The excitement pervaded the galleries and ran among the seats on the floor, nearly every one of which was filled. It was not the usual excitement that turns the house into a babel of talk, but one of tenseness, as ears were attuned to catch the hurried words of brief debate, and then the momentous "ayes" and "nays" that followed.

And the exuberance was common to both wets and drys—to the wets, because their show of strength lived up to their most optimistic predictions; to the drys because the final count spelled victory for them.

Clashes Start Early.

The spirit of contentiousness began with the first whack of Speaker Garner's gavel, when Representative Blanton [Dem., Tex.], always dry, always noisily so, rose to a point of order declaring that "no quorum was present." Then he looked around at the rapidly filling seats and withdrew his objection. That brought Chicago's Adolph Sabath [Dem., Ill.] to his feet to taunt that "the gentleman from Texas is wrong again."

Mild, gray haired Linthicum of Maryland, Democrat wet leader, put the motion for which every one was waiting:

"Under clause 4 of rule 27, I move that the committee on the judiciary be discharged from further consideration of house joint resolution 208."

Then he stepped down to the well of the house, turned, and began the first of the arguments on the wet side. His wet colleagues stood and applauded as he faced them.

First Chance in 12 Years.

"The crucial time in the history of this proposition has arrived," he began. "After 12 years we at last have a chance to submit the question to the people. He who is not with us is against us; he who votes against us votes against submission of the prohibition question to the people."

"Will you, if given the chance, support the amendment to prohibit saloons?" asked Representative Carl G. Bachmann [Rep., W. Va.], a recent recruit to the wet standard.

"I would not vote for the resolution if it meant the return of the old saloon," answered Mr. Linthicum. "I will support such an amendment."

Then it was the drys' turn, and with applause they offered Representative C. Ellis Moore [Rep., O.] as their spokesman.

"You admit that this proposed legislation is faulty," was his rebuke to the wets. "You admit that it permits the return of the saloon."

A chorus of "Noes" broke in upon him.

Delayed by Denials.

"I have talked with wet members and they expect the saloon to return," he insisted, but was again deluged by angry negatives. "This would put the question of prohibition into politics," he went on.

"If you want to come back next session be careful how you vote today," warned Representative John J. Boylan, Tammany Democrat of New York.

"In 1917 the drys said that when any great portion of the people demanded a chance to express their opinion on a question it was the duty of congress to submit that question to them," declared Representative John J. O'Connor, another New York Democrat. "On the basis of the drys' own statements it would be presumption for us not to give the people the chance to vote on this question of modification."

Strategic Detour by Drys.

Representative Hatton W. Sumners [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the judiciary, committee, which had pigeonholed the Beck-Linthicum resolution, showed the drys a strategic detour around the direct issue when he advised his listeners not to bring the prohibition question to the floor of the house at this time lest it interrupt the pressing business of trying to lift the country out of depression.

"The economic problems of today require the supreme effort of a united people," he said. "Let us not divide the people on the question of prohibition."

He wanted things put out in plain view "on the barrel head." Even if the committee were discharged, he told the wets, they could not hope to get a two-thirds majority on the resolution itself nor a two-thirds majority in the senate even if the resolution were to pass the house.

And even if the resolution were to pass congress, he prophesied, three-quarters of the states would not vote ratification. At that, the wets objected with shouts of "Yes, yes, they would."

Thirty Seconds for Speech.

To Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] thirty seconds were given in which to declare vigorously "under our form of government the last word rests with the people. They have a right to know how their representatives stand on the direct question. A total of 145 members, representing 43,000,000 people, have demanded that such a vote be taken."

It remained for the scholarly constitutionalist, James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, leader of the Republican wets, to close the debate.

"How can it be contended," he said, "that the American people have not the right to determine whether any part of their constitution, and especially any amendment, should be either repealed or modified? To assert otherwise is to challenge democracy itself. It makes the final passage of Lincoln's Gettysburg address a rhapsody of words, for if the American people cannot undo a clearly demonstrated folly and regain a previously reserved right then truly government 'for the people, by the people and of the people' has perished from the United States.

Should Be Resubmitted.

"There are especial reasons why the 18th amendment should be resubmitted. It was well said on high authority that it was an 'experiment.' An experiment must stand or fall on the arduous test of experience.

"The 18th amendment has been given over 12 years' trial. Millions have been spent in its attempted enforcement and, what is more deplorable, over 500,000 American citizens have been either indicted or convicted of violation of this law. Yet today the law is less enforced than it was at the beginning. No such general revolt against the enforcement of a law has ever been known in our history and in itself proves the existence of a very substantial sentiment that the 18th amendment should be repealed.

"The failure to resubmit will intensify the revolt against the law and the ill feeling which now exists between different classes of people. Until thus resubmitted the question becomes an irrepressible one, like the old question of slavery. It will mean continued chaos in our national councils. Submit the amendment and let the people decide."

Silent as Vote Starts.

And then the vote was taken. The chamber was tensely silent as the clerk called out the names.

But when he reached the "K's" and Mrs. Florence Kahn [Rep., Cal.] answered "aye" there was a quick burst of applause—a demonstration that was repeated even more enthusiastically when Mrs. Ruth Pratt [Rep., N. Y.] voted "aye," and which reached a joyous climax when Mrs. Edith N. Rogers recorded one of the 13 affirmatives from Massachusetts.

EXPECT 350,000 TO REGISTER FOR PRIMARY TODAY

Polls Will Be Open Until 9 This Evening.

Register Today

If you have moved, or have been naturalized, or have reached voting age since the last registration, you must register today in order to vote in the April 12 primaries. Polls open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

With preliminary canvasses showing that more than 400,000 voters have moved since last registration day, Democratic and Republican workers engage in a drive today for a large enrollment of names. This is the only day for intermediate registration for the April 12 primaries. The polls remain open in all precincts from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. today, so that all newly qualified voters or those who have changed their residence may enter their names on the poll books.

Expect 350,000 at Polls.

The election officials estimate that about 350,000 names will be placed on the lists today. At the present time the books contain about 1,412,000 names. Revision comes Saturday, and this will cut down the totals, so that the election authorities figure that the total registration will be increased about 100,000.

Some 6,000 Democratic workers have been mobilized to get out the new registration, and the party leaders look for some 250,000 names of men and women they have reason to believe may vote the Democratic ticket April 12. The Republicans will have organization men busy throughout the city, but they are not concentrating upon the registry as closely as is their rival party.

Democrats Are Active.

The Democratic drive started Sunday when special delivery letters were sent to all Democratic precinct captains advising them of the importance of the new enrollment. The letters, signed by Patrick A. Nash, county chairman, and Joseph L. Gill, secretary, urged all captains to stay in their precincts until the polls close.

"The preliminary canvass showed an unusual number of changes in address," said Mr. Nash. "It is due to doubling up of families and removal from high priced flats to cheaper ones. In one precinct, a worker found the names of 325 persons entitled to vote were not on the books. We have compiled lists of the voters who are not registered and we are trying to get all prospective Democratic primary voters to register."

Executive Accused of Fraud in True Bills

True bills charging forgery and confidence game were reported voted by the grand jury yesterday against Edward Aubinger, 42 years old, former department manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company. Aubinger, who had been employed by the company for six years, was arrested on Saturday and accused of padding his expense accounts to obtain more than $5,000 by fraudulent means. Officials of the company said that after an account was approved Aubinger would raise the amount.

Woman Held Up; Robbed of $500 Coat, $810 Watch

Two youths, who held their hands in their coat pockets as though carrying guns, held up Mrs. Agnes Kane, 7544 South Shore drive, at 78th street and Coles avenue last night. They took her fur coat, valued at $500, two rings and a watch valued at $810, and $20 in cash.

House Group Ponders Changes in Billion Dollar Revenue Bill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14. —[Special.]—Opposition to serious alteration of the billion dollar revenue bill now before the house gained strength today when the ways and means committee, meeting in special session, failed to reach an agreement on a number of proposed amendments designed to exempt certain items from the 2.25 per cent manufacturer's sales tax.

Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.], acting chairman of the committee, said after the meeting that he is opposed to serious change in the bill, preferring to leave it substantially as reported to the house by the ways and means committee. He was of the opinion, he said, that a majority of the committee members are in accord with him in this view.

Cost Millions in Revenue.

Another special session of the committee has been called for tomorrow, Mr. Crisp said, at which he hopes some definite agreement concerning committee amendments to the revenue bill will be formulated. He will submit no amendments not approved by the committee, the acting chairman said.

Chief among the proposals being considered by the committee is an amendment calling for the exemption of canned foods from the sales tax. Such an exemption, it is said, would cost an estimated ten millions in revenue. Other amendments propose the exemption of cheap clothing, newspaper, telegraph company, leased wires, electricity used on irrigation products, and articles used in the production of nontaxable articles such as newspapers and magazines.

Meanwhile house debate on the bill today resolved itself into a discussion of the provision imposing a tariff of 1 cent a gallon on oil imports into this country. Representative John E. Nelson [Republican, Maine] assailed the oil tax on the ground that it represented an effort to protect the oil producing states at the expense of the industrial Atlantic seaboard states.

Ninety-nine per cent of the oil imported into this country, Mr. Nelson declared, is consumed on the Atlantic coast. He held that the tax on oil imports was therefore a tax on only one section of the country, and asserted that at the "present time of economic duress" such a tax would be "disastrous."

Protected by Tariff.

Replying to Mr. Nelson, Representative Homer Hoch [Rep., Kas.] charged that the New England industries had been well protected by tariff restrictions in the past, and read a bill introduced by Mr. Nelson at this session of congress seeking the imposition of a duty on lobsters, which, he said, were extensively produced in Maine.

Unless the large companies interested in the free importation of oil are stripped of some of their power, Mr. Hoch asserted, the American oil industry will be prostituted. No other industry in the country, he claimed, had done so much to help itself before asking congress to aid it by restricting foreign importations.

CHECKER TAXI MEETING MARKED BY FIST FIGHTS

More than 400 Checker cab drivers held a stormy meeting early this morning in Walsh's hall at Noble street and Milwaukee avenue to discuss new relations with the company and with the recently formed Cab Drivers' Protective association.

The presence of 100 policemen, commanded by Capt. Joseph Palczynski and Lieut. Emil Anderson of the North Racine avenue station, averted probable disorder.

Many of the drivers appeared incensed over the increase in association dues from $1 to $2 monthly. Others demanded an accounting of a $3,500 relief fund and still others called for the resignation of Victor Hirsch, temporary president of the association, and other temporary officers. After considerable wrangling, indulged in by three factions, former Judge Emanuel Eller, association attorney, announced that an election of officers would be held next Monday.

Robber Stabs Woman in Eye When She Screams

Mrs. Carmina Granatelli, 30 years old, of 1361 Sunnyside avenue, may lose her left eye because of a knife wielding robber. She was sitting in an automobile in front of her husband's grocery at 941 Sedgwick street last night, waiting for her husband, when the robber, brandishing a knife, demanded her money. She screamed for help. The robber slashed at her, cutting the left eyeball and her nose. He fled, pursued by Granatelli, whom he outdistanced.

LIFT TAX BURDEN OR WE ALL SINK, BUDGETEERS TOLD

Sargent Voices Warning of Disaster.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The local governments of Chicago must either slash their costs voluntarily or be starved out by lack of income, in the opinion of Fred W. Sargent, general chairman of the new committee on public expenditures, which was formed yesterday afternoon at a meeting in the Union League club.

FRED W. SARGENT. [Matzene Photo.]

In his speech Mr. Sargent outlined to the sixty who attended the meeting the policy which he would have adopted.

"It is hoped that reductions in the budgets of all of the local governments can be attained through cooperative efforts with those directly charged with the responsibility for making these budgets and spending the taxpayers' money," said Mr. Sargent.

Warns of Tax Strike.

"If this coöperation is impossible, then results will have to be achieved in other ways. One way is a continuation of the taxpayers' strike which will dry up sources of revenue for a number of years to come, and governments generally will be brought to the verge of a breakdown."

Regarding the necessity for budget cutting, Mr. Sargent had this to say about appropriations:

"This money cannot be secured from the taxpayers, nor from the sale of bonds and warrants, unless confidence is restored in the credit of our municipal corporations—not only municipal, but state and federal as well.

"A sacrifice now of the most drastic kind would be the best investment the people of Chicago could make, for it would aid in the restoration of prosperity and a more prompt return to normal conditions in providing for and carrying on the activities of the governments everywhere.

Tells of Danger to City.

"Unless the business men of Chicago can be awakened to this situation, unless they are united and coördinated in a militant drive, with the single objective of reducing governmental expenditures and balancing budgets, the prosperity of the city will be threatened for years to come.

"Men will not buy homes that are immediately plastered with mortgages in the form of taxes, nor will industry enlarge and expand and go forward in its usual and ordinary way when it is known in advance that its income will be exhausted through burdensome taxation."

Assails School Budget.

To emphasize his thought, Mr. Sargent cited the school board budget recently passed "as illustrative of what seems to be a complete failure on the part of some administrative bodies to realize the full extent of the economic depression." He recalled the fact that this budget is $90,180,263, exclusive of appropriations of $134,111,000 for current unpaid obligations of the board.

"A few items will demonstrate," continued Mr. Sargent, "that the taxpaying public will not receive relief unless something is done to convince those responsible for this budget that this money is not and will not be made available to meet it.

"The budget appropriations for the educational fund, playground fund and free text book fund for 1932 aggregate $56,801,000, as compared with $53,462,273 for these same purposes in 1930.

"The board has increased its budgets for these funds by approximately $3,500,000 at a time when it is known that the income from taxes will be materially reduced even under the 1930 amounts, when it is known that the budget cannot be balanced and that business, individuals, corporations and others are utterly unable to meet increased tax obligations under present conditions."

Save or Shut Schools.

After citing other like instances in the school board budget, Mr. Sargent asserted:

"If we are to have schools next year we must attempt to balance our budget this year.

"The credit of the city, the school board, the county, and, indeed, practically all tax expending municipalities is at its lowest possible ebb. Taxes are not being paid. Taxpayers are on a strike, and in the face of this local condition, which has come upon us in the worst economic depression of our history, we find that those charged with the public duty of administering our schools and appropriating funds increasing budgets by enormous sums as compared with the sums available for expenditures in 1930.

"It is hard, of course, to curtail and sacrifice, but all business and individuals are curtailing and sacrificing in their own private affairs.

"Without a revival of business, governments and public institutions cannot be supported and maintained.

"It is vital to the welfare of the city and the county, and their various municipal corporations that drastic steps be taken to reduce expenditures. Not only is it vital to the welfare of our public institutions, but it is vital to the safety of our form of government. Governments cannot continue without revenue, and revenues cannot be secured from a taxpaying constituency that has lost faith in those charged with the responsibility of governmental expenditures.

How Worker Is Affected.

"It is therefore essential that a militant organization be created that will bring home to the people of this community the great danger that confronts all of us. This danger is real. Not only will the disasterous effects be felt by large business, but they will be felt by every laboring man, for the burden of taxes ultimately permeates through the entire economic structure and affects the cost of everything the laboring man buys, the rents that he pays, the wages that his employer is able to pay him, and the opportunity for securing employment."

After a discussion of the vital problem of cutting the local tax burden, it was decided first to seek coöperation of the public officials. Just how that shall be done will be decided at another meeting of some of the members of the new committee today.

Other Officers Elected.

In addition to the election of Mr. Sargent as general chairman, Newton C. Farr, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, was chosen secretary, Graham Aldis was made treasurer. D. F. Kelly will remain in touch with the movement as a member of the advisory board. Mr. Kelly has been taking the brunt of the criticisms from public officials who object to reducing their expenditures. Yesterday's meeting was called by the following:

Graham Aldis	Ernest R. Graham
Sewell L. Avery	D. F. Kelly
W. Scott Bond	Charles B. Miller
Aldis J. Browne	Potter Palmer
William R. Dawes	John T. Redmond
Charles S. Dewey	George Richardson
William M. Ellis	George W. Rossetter
Max Epstein	Edward L. Ryerson Jr.
George O. Fairweather	Gordon Strong
Newton C. Farr	George G. Tunnell
Stanley Field	Albert H. Wetten.

The information on budgets, expenditures, and debts of the local governments, which the D. F. Kelly committee has been collecting, will be turned over to the new organization. This data is now being analized and correlated.

Northwestern Star Weds Second Time in Year

Kenneth Meenan, Northwestern university full back, and his wife, also a Northwestern university student, whom he married in Waukegan yesterday. She was Miss Jean Rogers, daughter of a Klamath Falls, Ore., banker. Meenan was married Sept. 30, 1931 to Miss Helen Major, but the marriage was annulled. (Story on page 1.)

JUDGE E. D. SHURTLEFF TELLS HIS POSITION IN ROBBER'S CASE

Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo, who interceded for Carl Parker, drug store robber who committeed seven crimes before he was arrested, wrote a letter yesterday to the Chicago Crime commission stating his position in the case, which resulted in probation for the youth. The judge said he did not know anything about the case until after Parker was sentenced to the penitentiary and brought back to the county jail after only a six hour stay in the penal institution.

Judge Shurtleff said that he believes the "status of probation ought to be maintained and stand" as far as Parker is concerned. Parker and Stanley Wilson, who were placed on probation by Judge Charles C. Williams despite the previous penitentiary sentence, following an exchange of letters with Judge Shurtleff, were put in the county jail last week by Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court. The chief justice said the entire matter should be resubmitted to Judge Williams when he returns from a vacation.

Judge Shurtleff said he never heard of Wilson and never made any recommendations in his behalf. He said he became interested in Parker through the latter's uncle, Judge Carl Sherwood of South Dakota. The judge said he never heard of the fact that Parker fired several shots at one of his intended victims.

IT'S 'OKAY' FOR POLICE IF NOT FOR HUNSAKER

Ogden K. Hunsaker, 33 years old, wanted in Los Angeles with his father and another man on charges of a $130,000 theft, was arrested in Chicago yesterday because his nickname, derived from his initials, is "Okay."

Hunsaker is vice president of the Consolidated Finance corporation. His father, A. O. Hunsaker, is president. The third man accused, Carl F. Wurzburg, is a salesman. All have been sought for a month.

Yesterday Lieut. John McGinnis and Sergts. Thomas Alcock and Matthew Quilter stood at Clark and Center streets. They saw approaching a man who corresponded to the description of the younger Hunsaker.

"Hello there, Okay," called out Lieut. McGinnis. The man halted. "You're 'Okay' Hunsaker, aren't you?" McGinnis asked. "No," the man replied, "I'm 'Okay' Kelly." But McGinnis removed the suspect's hat, revealing a bald head. That was enough. The man admitted he was Hunsaker.

At the detective bureau the prisoner said he had left his father in New York. He denied that he or his father had stolen the money as charged. He blamed Wurzburg.

Lieut. McGinnis reached for a telegraph blank, and addressed it to the Los Angeles police. "Okay on the Hunsaker arrest," he wrote.

NO GRUMBLING ON CUTMORE'S POST, JACOBS ASSERTS

J. L. Jacobs, recently appointed Cook county assessor, yesterday declared that he had heard nothing of reports that political leaders were dissatisfied with his appointment of Harry S. Cutmore as chief deputy assessor at a salary of $10,000 a year. Cutmore was ousted by the old board of assessors when he made charges of mismanagement in the former assessment.

Mayor Cermak, Speaker of the House David Shanahan, Gov. Emmerson, State Senator Arthur A. Huebsch, and others were said to have been disgruntled at the Cutmore appointment. An agreement was said to have been made at Springfield, prior to the passage of the Kelly bill which provided for the new assessor, that patronage in the assessor's office was to be divided equally between Republicans and Democrats.

Assessor Jacobs announced that he will invite an advisory committee of engineers, architects, and economists to help him determine whether the 1931 assessment has been properly made thus far. The membership of the committee will be announced later, he said.

400 'EGYPTIANS' ATTEND CLUB'S ANNUAL DINNER

An old fashioned neighboring gathering, the kind they have down in southern Illinois, was enjoyed last night by 400 former residents of that part of the state, which is sometimes known as "Little Egypt." The 400 gathered in the Hamilton club for the 25th annual banquet of the Egyptian club.

There was a great deal of visiting among friends who had not seen each other for a number of years. Banners proclaiming the diners as coming from Richmond, Wabash, Wayne, Jefferson, Alexander, White, Perry, Pope and other counties, marked the tables. There was music and speaking, including addresses by James B. Blackman and A. C. Lewis, both formerly of Harrisburg. Charles S. Deneen, former United States senator, who was to have been a speaker, was unable to be present.

E. H. Largent of Harrisburg, secretary of the club, said that more than 3,000 native "Egyptians" are enrolled in the club.

Plan Action at Polls Against Officials.

Twenty-five hundred school teachers shivered in the economy chilled auditorium of Hyde Park High school until 7 o'clock last evening. They laid plans to form ward political organizations and take action at the polls against officials whom they hold responsible for their payless condition.

The fires under the school boilers were banked at the close of the regular class schedule. School officials said that no provision was made for extra heat for the meeting, and that none would have been made in any event unless the teachers had been able to pay cash for the extra coal and engineer's hire. The teachers finished their meeting bundled in overcoats.

Clark Urges Patience.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, spoke before the meeting. He urged the teachers to do nothing drastic and refrain from "rocking the boat" for a week or ten days. Mayor Cermak, he told them, is carrying on negotiations which it is hoped will provide school pay funds, and teachers' demonstrations might affect the success of the negotiations.

"If you don't get some money in a week or ten days," Ald. Clark concluded, "then you will have a right to say what you please."

"I can't defend the school board's $90,000,000 budget," said Aaron Kline, principal of the Pullman elementary school. "Any $90,000,000 budget which spends only $40,000,000 for teachers' salaries certainly does not emphasize education. The time is ripe for political action. Politicians understand only the language. Conservatively, I believe the teachers control 100,000 votes in Chicago."

Plan Ward Organizations.

He and others urged that the teachers form ward organizations and deal directly with their ward committeemen.

"I believe a more sincere attempt at economy should have been made by the school board in other branches than the instructional department," said Ald. Clark. "No budget should be passed in excess of estimated revenues. If this is done, the taxpayer can protest and ultimately have the budget held invalid.

"The spotlight should be turned on other tax spending bodies as well as the school board. Some of their budgets could be cut as much as 75 per cent."

COUSIN FIGHTS TO BREAK WILL OF MARY MAHONEY

Attorneys for Thomas Mahoney of Atchison, Kas., yesterday announced that they were about to start suit in the Circuit court to break the will of the late Miss Mary Mahoney of 116 Sheridan road, Kenilworth, who left a $500,000 estate when she died last Oct. 6. The announcement was made as Oscar C. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, approved her will, which left nearly $300,000 to Catholic charities and divided the remainder of her property among nearly 100 friends, relatives, and servants.

Mahoney is a first cousin of Miss Mahoney, who for years was owner of the "most valuable farm in America," now "no man's land," between Kenilworth and Wilmette, which she sold in 1922 for $225,000.

Ex-Pay Rollers Storm County Board Demanding Back Wages

The band of discharged county employés, 800 strong, who are becoming known as the "wandering herd" in the county building, yesterday charged the chambers of the county board and embarrassed the much harassed county commissioners with their battlecry: "When do we get our pay?"

The former pay rollers have been lingering about the corridors of the building since they were fired last Thursday, surging after each public official they see with shouted demands for their salaries. They have more than three months' pay due them.

Members of the county board, recently relieved from the strenuous ordeal of formulating the 1932 budget with a saving of $5,500,000, turned pale when the dismissed employés jammed themselves into the assembly room as a regular board meeting started. Attorney John T. Fitzgerald, one of those fired by J. L. Jacobs, the new assessor, and boss of the herd, strode forward and took the place ordinarily occupied by the president of the board, Emmett Whealan.

Demands Payment of Wages.

"We are a peaceful group of taxpaying citizens, fathers and mothers," he shouted. Ominous mutterings came from the peaceful group.

"We were told that we would be paid in full when our jobs ended. We've got creditors swarming around us. The wolf is both at the front and the back door. We don't want to play on your sympathies, but many of us had no money for lunch today nor money for carfare."

The commissioners looked skeptical when the lawyer said: "This is not a mob scene."

"We're not threatening you here," Fitzgerald went on. "But I am advising these men that their dismissal counts for naught as long as they are unpaid and that by reporting for work each day they are entitled to a full day's pay."

"How About Pay Cut?"

"And how about that 15 per cent cut?" came a hoarse cry from the crowd. There was a chorus of approval.

"That is another thing we're wondering about," Fitzgerald told the commissioners. "We're fired and then our back salaries are cut 15 per cent. Is that justice?"

The crowd voted loudly in the negative. The commissioners were uneasy. Usually not backward in verbal discussion, there was no one ready to speak in this crisis. Philip J. Sharkey, who makes up the payrolls, was invited by the board to explain the salary situation.

Sharkey said he thought all wages might be paid in full to the discharged employés by the end of the week. The employés departed, somewhat mollified.

Calls Budget Illegal.

But there was no peace for the commissioners. They were suddenly confronted by a warning from Harris S. Keeler, director of the Chicago bureau of public efficiency, that their 1932 budget was illegal because it failed to provide full salaries for the constitutional offices. Taxpayers might attack the budget in court and refuse to pay their taxes, Keeler declared.

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell was summoned. He told the board members not to be alarmed. The budget is legal, Mr. Bell asserted.

"Don't you feel sorry for us with all these varying legal opinions?" Mrs. Edward J. Fleming asked Attorney Bell.

"You are venturing upon an uncharted sea," agreed Mr. Bell, sympathetically. And the other commissioners sighed.

OAK PARK CLERK FOR 12 YEARS IS PUT OFF BALLOT

The name of Charles N. Leadaman, who is a candidate for reëlection as village clerk of Oak Park after serving twelve years in that position, was ordered stricken off the ballot in the village election April 5 at a hearing yesterday in the chambers of County Judge Jarecki.

Judge Jarecki sat in Leadaman's place on the Oak Park electoral board, the other members of which are Village President Willis McFeely and Mrs. Dorothy Kerr, a village trustee. William J. Unfried, another trustee, the only other candidate for village clerk, filed the complaint against Leadaman through Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., who charged that Leadaman failed to submit an affidavit setting forth fitness to hold office and his consent to the nomination at the time of filing, as required by a new state election law.

POLICE SLAYING REMINDS CITY OF DUTY TO WIDOWS

Council Finds $148,000 Is Being Withheld.

The slaying of one policeman on Sunday and the serious wounding of another early yesterday morning in gun battles with robbers reminded aldermen yesterday afternoon of the failure of the city to pay funds appropriated for the widows of policemen and firemen who are killed in the line of duty. The amount now withheld totals $148,000.

The policeman killed was George Barker of the Chicago avenue station. He fell fighting bandits in a soft drink parlor at 1438 Madison street. Demitry Cal of the Shakespeare avenue station, winner of THE TRIBUNE hero and Lambert Tree awards, was the policeman wounded. He battled four gunmen single handed and shot one in the restaurant at 3306 Fullerton avenue. A girl patron was also shot.

Three of the bandits in the battle with Cal are under arrest. They are Frank Selkeimer, 19 years old, of 2153 Jackson boulevard, who was wounded by Cal; James Jackson, 20, 2420 Cortland street, and Louis Ferrari, 19, of 2500 Linden place. All have confessed, police say. Jackson was seized yesterday and Ferrari last night. The police believe Ferrari is the one who shot Cal.

Funds Held in Trust.

The benefit funds, to which aldermanic attention was directed yesterday because of the Cal and Barker shootings, are held in trust in a loop bank. Under a city ordinance, widows of policemen and firemen killed in line of duty are entitled to $5,000 each from the city, plus $2,500 for each child under 18 years of age. The maximum amount for each family is $10,000. For the purpose of the funds the city council last year appropriated $145,000, but, because of the city's financial plight, no cash has been deposited by the city for the widows and dependents of firemen and policemen killed during the last fourteen months. The amount now owed on these funds is computed at about $148,000.

"I'll take this matter up at the meeting of the finance committee," said Ald. John S. Clark [30th], "and recommend that the amount be turned over to the trustee immediately. The amount is so small in comparison to pay roll totals that it shouldn't be kept from the dependents of men who gave their lives to the city."

Also Receive Pensions.

Widows of policemen and firemen also receive pensions. A police widow's monthly pension averages about $125 until the husband would have been 57 years old. After that it is between $50 and $60 a month. There is also a pension allowance of $10 a month for each dependent child.

Every policeman contributes to the police pension fund. In addition, many belong to the Policemen's Benevolent association, an insurance organization. This association pays an insurance benefit which is in addition to the amounts paid out of the pension fund and the council appropriation.

Twelve policemen were killed in the performance of duty during 1931 and the first two and one-half months of this year. They were:

John J. Vondruska, Fillmore district.
Patrick J. Gallagher, Town Hall district.
Patrick Durkin, Traffic division.
Anthony L. Ruthy, Traffic division.
Edward Smith, Fillmore district.
Edward M. O'Donnell, Des Plaines district.
James J. Casey, Traffic division.
Joseph V. Isaacs, Kensington district.
Michael W. Oakley, Summerdale district.
James J. Caplis, Detective bureau.
Martin Knudson, Austin district.
George Barker, Hudson avenue district.

Park Police Commended.

Maj. James U. Sammis, commander of the Lincoln park police, issued a general order yesterday commending the members of the force who helped to suppress the riot of communists in front of the Wrigley building Saturday. Lieuts. Pincus and Klatzko, Sergts. Johnstone, Hadlick, Sward, Kiefer, and Leonard, and 25 patrolmen were named in the general citation. There was also a special citation commending Sergt. Kiefer and Patrolmen Eddy and Breslin, who were wounded in the riot.

CLEMENTI GOES ON TRIAL TODAY AS AUTO THIEF

CRIMINAL COURT.

Walter Hennessey and William Hart, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge George Fred Rush.

Harold Williams, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell; Paul Smith, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell; William Collins, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Frank Lukas, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Amos Flagg, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary, and Jack Lawrence, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Patsy Clementi, west side hoodlum, who has boasted to the police that he can "fix any rap," will go on trial before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court today on a charge of automobile theft. The stolen car was of the same model as the one used in the murder of Benjamin Rosenberg, foe of racketeering in the cleaning and dyeing industry.

When Clementi appeared before Judge Prystalski yesterday, his attorney, George Crane, said that his client was ready to plead guilty to a charge of petty larceny. George Price is a co-defendant in the case.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert L. Donigan refused to waive the felony charge against Clementi, and Judge Prystalski set the trial for today.

DRIVE LAUNCHED ON RACKETS IN TRUCK HAULING

A campaign to halt racketeering motor truck operators was started last night by the Illinois Motor Truck Operators' association at a meeting in the Midwest Athletic club.

Walter E. McCarron, manager of the association, said that the profits of the racketeers not only ran into the hundreds of thousands of dollars a year, but that their cut price freight rates were ruining the legitimate trucking business throughout the country.

BANK PRESIDENT FOUND GUILTY OF HIDING ASSETS

Witness Attacks Story of Miss Shosky.

Fred Groen, 1024 Belford avenue, Oak Park, former president of the Cragin State bank, which closed on July 10, 1931, was found guilty yesterday by County Judge J. G. Van Keuren of concealing assets. The law provides for a maximum sentence of six months in jail on such a finding.

Groen was brought before Judge Van Keuren when he refused to pay a $6,000 judgment obtained against him last November by the Unity Trust and Savings bank, 3909 West North avenue, which closed voluntarily last week, paying all its depositors in full. Evidence was presented to show that Groen had concealed assets. He maintained that all these assets were up as collateral for other loans.

When Judge Van Keuren made his finding of guilty, Groen stepped forward and said he was willing to turn over all his assets to satisfy the judgment. Judge Van Keuren suspended sentence for a week to allow this transfer. Attorneys in the case said it was probable that Groen, under this arrangement, would be let off with a light sentence or none at all.

Charges Lax Banking.

Charges of lax banking methods used in the defunct Second Northwestern State bank were made from the witness stand in Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg's court yesterday by Miss Harriet Shosky, secretary to the late Frank E. Lackowski, president of the bank, who recently committed suicide.

Miss Shosky began her testimony by denying the statement made last week by Frank Block, 5045 North Menard avenue, a bank debtor, that she had purchased stock for herself in his name, notifying him of it after the stock was bought. She said Block had given her permission to use his name.

"Did you ever buy stock for yourself in any one else's name?" asked the court. When the witness answered in the negative, Norman N. Ferdinand, 5139 Washington boulevard, was called to the stand. He said he had never had an account at the bank.

"In June of 1929, Miss Shosky called me on the telephone and asked permission to purchase stock for herself in my name," he said. "I told her it was all right with me."

Girl's Testimony on Deal.

Miss Shosky had testified that Ferdinand gave her $4,100 one afternoon after banking hours and that she had given it to the cashier of Charles Sincere & Co., for safe keeping.

"I never heard of that," said Ferdinand, "until she came to me last week and asked me to testify that such a transaction had taken place. When I told her that I couldn't, she started crying and left."

Before Miss Shosky had a chance to answer this testimony, her attorney, Edgar Cook, objected.

"I can tell more," Miss Shosky suddenly burst out, "about how the bank loaned more than $200,000 to officers and employés of the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank and how the Northwestern Securities company has been a dumping ground for the Smulski banks."

Miss Shosky will be questioned further today.

Beg Your Pardon

Rupert F. Bippus, attorney for the secretary of state of Illinois, denies that he was in any manner ever on the pay roll of the sanitary district during the "whoopee" régime or any other time. On Feb. 12, THE TRIBUNE quoted Prosecutor John E. Northup as saying, in substance, that the son of former Representative Frederick J. Bippus "appeared on the district pay roll for seven months."

EXPLORER FIGHTS BUTTERFLIES IN UNKNOWN JUNGLE

Poison Insects Attack Him; Eats Worms.

BUENOS AIRES, March 14.—(AP)—Out of the jungles of northeastern Paraguay—"a land of mold and blood"—has come the story of an American zoölogist who is fighting his way back to civilization under the lash of hunger, heat, and every creeping thing.

Dr. Donald S. Wees of Elkins, W. Va., is under commission from the Harvard University museum to explore the headwaters of the Parana river as far north as the Brazilian border. He left Rio Yuquin with two native companions three weeks ago in a 16 foot canoe and is following the bends of the stream over a region lying about 700 miles west of Rio De Janeiro and the same distance north of Buenos Aires.

Pestered by Insects.

"While flicking fire ants from the paper in 90 degrees of heat and 90 per cent humidity, polvorines are devouring me and yatebui are crawling up my trouser legs," he wrote under date of Feb. 20. The letter was sent out by runner.

Harassed by brilliant butterflies which bite like horseflies and living sometimes on yellow worms cooked with wild gourds, he says:

"The final ranch of thatch and split palms has been left far behind. This is the most grandly deserted district outside of Chaco, which lies westward and is less hot, wet, forested or prolific with fauna and insects.

"We spent days and nights hunting and when we shot nothing we were hungry in a forest of game. Braised alligator tail tastes like flaked cod fish. Here spider webs enmesh birds. Ants drive us from our hammocks into a circle of ashes.

Nights Are Sleepless.

"The hordes of insects for which the region does not provide a living cause us night after night of sleeplessness. One especially virulent species has poisoned us all. Potent does not describe this land of mold and blood, much of which is fully as challenging to the explorer as the Matto Grosso or Chaco jungles.

"There are uncounted leagues of uninhabited forest which supported every form of animal life. We are launching into it with a bag of rice, a tin of yerba, and eight kilograms of flour, hoping to shoot enough game as we go on."

Dr. Wees, the first American to penetrate the region, left Buenos Aires last October and expects to reach his goal about April 15. He probably will proceed to Corumba, Brazil, and from there by rail to Rio de Janeiro.

ALDERMEN FAVOR 30 YEAR GRANT TO TUNNEL COMPANY

Also Willing to Reduce City's Compensation.

The council committees on local transportation and on gas, oil, and electricity fixed 30 years yesterday as the term of the proposed franchise for the Chicago Tunnel company. The franchise will be dated from Februrary, 1929, when the old tunnel grant expired, and will continue through the 30 year period, subject to termination after that period by six months' notice from either the city or company.

ALD. ARVEY.

Corporation Counsel Sexton informed the aldermen that the franchise term arrangements, similar to those in the telephone company franchise, were advisable. They make the franchise a form of lease, he held, recognizing the city's ownership of the merchandise tunnels under the loop, which become its property at the termination of the old franchise.

Favor Cut in Compensation.

The aldermen indicated that they favored a reduction of the compensation paid by the company from 12 per cent, the figure fixed by the old grant, to 3 per cent of receipts. Details of the compensation section were referred to a subcommittee, consisting of Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], Barnet Hodes [7th], Oscar F. Nelson [46th], B. A. Cronson [4th], and Thomas J. O'Grady [14th].

Attorney John E. Richert, representing the tunnel company, objected to paying 3 per cent of the gross receipts of the properties as a whole. He proposed that the city receive 3 per cent of the receipts of the tunnel company proper, but that some other arrangement, based on tonnage, be made for shipments originating with the Chicago Warehouse and Terminal company, which is owned by the holding company controlling the tunnel company.

Shows Juggling Possibility.

"What guarantee would we have then," Ald. Arvey asked, "that some agreement would not be made giving the warehouse company 90 per cent of the receipts, leaving the city out in the cold in its claim against the tunnel company?"

Ald. Arvey was supported by Mr. Sexton, who produced an old contract between the tunnel and warehouse companies, in which it was agreed that the division of receipts could be settled at any time by agreement between the general managers of the two companies. The agreement was signed for each company by S. W. Tracy, and Mr. Tracy admitted that there is only one general manager of both companies.

Santa Barbara, Cal., March 14.—[Special.]—Violet Cressy-Marcks, English woman explorer, was married last night to Frank Fisher of Hertfordshire, England.

JUDGE PROBES EVICTION OF FARM FAMILY

Property Owned by Governor's Friend.

County Judge Win G. Knoch of Du Page county yesterday ordered that the eight children of James Cox, 60 years old, and his wife, Clara, 45 years old, who were evicted from their home last Friday and were found camped along the roadside by charity workers, should be cared for at the Hillside sanitarium for a week. Meanwhile an investigation of the family's condition and the circumstances of the eviction will be made.

The home from which the Cox family was evicted is two miles north of West Chicago on a farm. It is the property of John MacQueen of Kirkland, millionaire sheep rancher, a friend of Gov. Emmerson.

Fishing Companion of Governor.

Mr. MacQueen is a fishing companion of Mr. Emmerson and is a member of the governor's World's Fair committee on sheep breeding. It was erroneously stated in THE TRIBUNE that the farm was owned by John McQueen of Elgin. John W. McQueen of Elgin is an attorney and has no connection with the property.

According to MacQueen's representatives, he had ordered James Edwards, manager of some of his properties, to evict the Cox family because they were not paying rent. Edwards told Magistrate Joseph Heiser of West Chicago when the eviction writ was issued that Cox had never paid a cent of rent.

Edwards asserted that he had tried to get the Cox family off the property, but they refused to move. He told Magistrate Heiser that James Sherman of Chicago, a war veteran, had rented the place for a chicken ranch.

Judge Hears Couple's Story.

Only Mr. and Mrs. Cox appeared before Judge Knoch yesterday. After hearing their story the judge asked Mary MacAfee, Du Page county probation officer, to take charge of the investigation.

"We're not going to break up this family," said Judge Knoch. "I'm not going to stand by and watch these children grow up like grass." Another hearing was set for Monday.

Mrs. Edna Kane, daughter of Cox, and her two children, who were among the group found huddled over a cookstove at the roadside after the eviction, have been taken to the home of relatives in Elgin. Mr. and Mrs. Cox have found a temporary home with relatives in Aurora. Their furniture, with the exception of the cookstove, which was smashed by Constable Edward Lang, according to charges, has been placed in a barn in St. Charles.

"A PYORRHEA specialist made THIS toothpaste"

Of course it is MORE THAN A TOOTHPASTE

There is a reason for this double-duty toothpaste, a reason that appeals to all men and women who are interested in keeping their teeth.

Nobody today believes that simple polishing is all that is needed to keep healthy teeth. When teeth "come out" there is a deeper cause than the mere cleanliness or non-cleanliness of the enamel.

Watch your gums as well as your teeth. Half of the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea. Dr. R. J. Forhan specialized in this disease. He spent twenty-six years in his chosen work and produced the toothpaste which bears his name—"Forhan's."

Brush your teeth and massage your gums with Forhan's. Follow the directions in the package. Trust Forhan's to keep your teeth white and glistening. Even for this purpose there is no finer toothpaste made. But that is only one duty of Forhan's. Its other duty is to protect your gums.

Dentists all over the country are using the professional formula of Dr. Forhan in treating pyorrhea and Forhan's Toothpaste preserves the same scientific principle for preventive hygiene at home. Forhan's is a pleasant-tasting, agreeable toothpaste for general family use. It is pure and mild—liked by the children. But remember: "it's more than a toothpaste." Large tube. Lasts long time.

It's So Easy to Stay Slender . . . .

Semi-starvation is not necessary to combat overweight—but correct eating is! If you would stay slim, just substitute Jack Sprat, the delicious health bread for starchy, fat-producing foods and forget pills, drugs and starvation diets. GERMANY SEES VON HINDENBURG AS SURE WINNER

Hitler to Put Up Fight on Second Ballot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 14.—The ultimate reëlection of President Paul von Hindenburg is generally regarded as a certainty in Germany with perhaps the exception of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist [Nazi] party. The 84 year old president, who yesterday missed reëlection by one-half of one per cent of the total vote, or 161,202, today consented to run on the second ballot, April 10.

ADOLF HITLER.
[Assoc. Press Photo.]

Although he ran nearly 7,500,000 votes behind Von Hindenburg, Hitler today voiced his determination to fight it out to the end. He said that the 2,500,000 votes for Lieut. Col. Theodor Duesterberg, the Nationalist candidate, would go to him in the "run off" election, besides "millions of Von Hindenburg's votes."

Hitler Issues Appeal.

The Nazi candidate, who polled 11,338,571 votes to Von Hindenburg's 13,667,730, tonight issued a fervent appeal to his followers from his headquarters at Munich.

"We must resume the fight in the fiercest form," he said. "I expect the party, to the last man, to increase its efforts without hesitation. I will take the lead myself."

If Hitler had not announced that he would again seek the presidency on April 10, the reichstag probably would have met to extend Von Hindenburg's presidential term for seven years by act of parliament.

Berlin residents today were asking why another ballot should be necessary with the result a foregone conclusion.

"It means just another month of political agaitation and strain," one neutral observer said.

New Blow to Hitler.

Lieut. Col. Duesterberg today said that his "Steel Helmets" are not inclined to switch to Hitler. The candidate said the party's attitude would be settled at a conference tonight or tomorrow.

Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm almost became a presidential candidate tonight. Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, henchman of former Kaiser Wilhelm, asked Hitler's party to join the Nationalists in nominating the crown prince, but Hitler quickly turned him down.

The communists are bemoaning their showing. They fell about 100,000 short of 5,000,000 votes. Their candidate, Ernest Thaelmann, is expected to become a candidate on the second ballot despite the apparent futility of making another race.

U. S. Indicts Film Company Manager for Tax Evasion

Neil F. Agnew, a branch manager of the Paramount-Publix corporation at 1302 South Michigan avenue, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on a charge of evasion of the income tax. The government prosecutors claim that Agnew did not file a return from 1927 to 1929, inclusive, although his average yearly income was $12,200. He owes $600 in income taxes, according to the government.

FINDS FORMOSA TRIBESMEN LIKE INDIANS OF U. S.

Although thousands of miles remote from North America, certain tribes in the mountain wilds of Formosa, an island off the southeast coast of China, have been found to be closely related to the American Indians, according to a German ethnologist, Capt. Carl von Hoffman, who arrived yesterday to lecture at the Field Museum of Natural History.

CARL VON HOFFMAN.

Capt. Von Hoffman, known to various African and Formosan tribes by long native names meaning "Lone Traveler," returned from Formosa in December after six months on the island, during which he penetrated far into the interior and passed into unprotected areas which the Japanese government, the owners of the island, has barred to foreigners.

Most of the tribes in this region are "head takers"—not cannibals, but addicted to the practice of murder for possession of human heads—which are considered quite valuable as property and particularly to impress maidens eligible for marriage.

Skulls Like Indians.

One tribe of these "head takers," the Ami tribe, Capt. Von Hoffman found to be strikingly similar to the North American Indians in customs, habits, dresss, and skull measurements. Their personal decorations included the use of highly colored plumage similar to the feathered headdress worn by American braves. This tribe had high moral standards and practiced monogamy. Adultery is punishable by death, execution being accomplished by pushing the offender from a high cliff.

Capt. Von Hoffman was safe among most of the tribes, being accepted as a "blood brother" in many of them. When he reached the Bunnun tribe, however, far in the mountainous interior and well within the limits of the forbidden area, he seemed for a time in danger of losing his own head. But he produced a camera and by showing the savages their images he finally won them over.

Capt. von Hoffman related his experiences yesterday in the office of Stephen C. Simms, director of the Field museum. He will deliver a free lecture there Saturday afternoon.

Travels Much

Mrs. Stephen Garretson Browning, mother of Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, chose to spend her 91st birthday in the Carribean sea, her 92d in Biloxi, Miss., her 93d in Washington, D. C., and her 94th in Pasadena. Today, her 95th, she will observe with Chicago friends at the home of her daughter in the Drake hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Loesch will entertain at a tea this afternoon in honor of Mrs. Browning, and the lady with the silver hair who loves a party almost as much as she does traveling, will receive her birthday guests, and with some pride cut her cake with its 95 candles. She may even find time to give an inkling of the contents of the little book, "Full Harvest," containing her experiences and observations, to be published soon.

Mrs. Browning was born in Cooperstown, N. Y. Her father, Col. John Holmes Prentiss, brought her to Chicago for the first time when she was 17 years old. Forty years ago she came here to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Loesch in time to attend the World's Fair.

OLIVER, J. GUZIK LOSE APPEALS; TO PRISON FRIDAY

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Tax Cases.

Appeals from the income tax convictions of both Gene G. Oliver, former Cook county assessor, and Jack Guzik, business manager of the Capone gang, were rejected yesterday by the United States Supreme court. Both the politician and the gangster, who are at liberty on bonds, will be taken to Leavenworth penitentiary Friday night.

Oliver was sentenced to eighteen months in the penitentiary and fined $5,000, while Guzik was sentenced to five years and a day in prison and fined $17,500, both by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

Keeps U. S. Record Perfect.

In declining to review the two cases, the Supreme court maintained the federal government's 100 per cent record in the prosecution of tax dodging gangsters and politicians. The victories won since United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson launched his income tax drive three years ago include nine before the federal District court, five before the Circuit Court of Appeals and four before the Supreme court. Al Capone's conviction, recently affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, probably will be taken to the Supreme court and it is now the only income tax case on appeal, but half a dozen other cases, including that of Chris Paschen, former building commissioner, are awaiting trial.

Guzik's sentence, imposed in January, 1931, was at that time the highest of record for an income tax case and it still stands second only to Capone's eleven year sentence. Federal prosecutors regarded his conviction as a triumph for law enforcement almost equaling the Capone victory, styling him the "official corruptor" of the gang.

Evaded $200,000 in Taxes.

Guzik filed returns and paid taxes, but he was charged with understating his income and attempting to evade $200,000 in taxes on an income of more than $1,000,000 for 1927, 1928, and 1929. A large portion of his deposits in the Congress Trust and Savings bank, totaling almost $1,000,000 for the three years, were identified by the government as profits from a circulating gambling house in Cicero which netted from $25,000 to $35,000 a week. His defense was that the government failed to identify all the deposits as income and placed the burden of proof as to their source upon the defendant.

Oliver was tried without a jury by Judge Woodward, who found that the Republican leader had "prostituted his office for gain." This referred to evidence of tax fixing by Oliver as a member of the board of assessors, abolished recently by the state legislature.

The evidence showed that $42,000 was paid by Werner A. Wieboldt, head of the Wieboldt stores, for "tax adjustments," and that $18,731 of this sum went into Oliver's saving account. Oliver's alleged total income, including his salary of $9,000 a year as an assessor, was almost $500,000 for 1926, 1927, and 1928, and he paid taxes on only $43,000 after he had filed delinquent returns.

Oliver's defense was that he won and lost large sums on the horse races, losing in the long run, and that he kept no books or records, hence his failure to file returns until the government started investigating his income.

Benjamin N. Cardozo Is Sworn as U. S. Supreme Court Justice

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—Benjamin Nathan Cardozo raised his right hand high and tried, in vain, to control the quiver of his long, sensitive fingers, as he stood in the Supreme court of the United States today and took the oath which made him an associate justice of that tribunal.

JUSTICE CARDOZO.

And when the clerk, in concluding the charge, asked the New York jurist if he would execute his new duties faithfully, the white haired man in the brand new black silk gown, intoned the words, "So help me God," with an ecclesiastical solemnity.

No need for the bailiff to urge quiet. It was so quiet that the tiny click of Justice Cardozo's glasses falling against the rustling folds of his gown was heard throughout the chamber, packed with visitors. The ceremony was over; the jurist's hand dropped to his side; the trembling slowly left his broad shouldered frame. He smiled.

Walks Up Marble Steps.

Then he turned and walked up the two marble steps to the bench which is the highest in the land. Officially, Justice Cardozo takes the place made vacant by the retirement of former Mr. Justice Holmes. Actually, however, as new man, he takes the last seat to the left of the chief justice, who sits in the middle, with the ranking senior justice, now Mr. Justice Van Devanter, to his right; the next in seniority, Mr. McReynolds, to his left, and so on down the line of years.

When the new justice reached his chair a page boy was there to slide it noiselessly back. Just before he sat down he took a deep breath and turned his dark eyes full on his new colleagues. Each smiled back at him in a tableau that drew little gasps of emotion from the crowd. His immediate neighbor, Mr. Justice Stone, reached over and shook his hand. Then he sat down in the big chair which the page noiselessly pushed forward.

It had taken exactly three minutes by the clock beneath the glistening gold eagle above Chief Justice Hughes' chair. And the audience waited, sure that something dramatic still was to happen. But, even as the new jurist settled in his chair, from the extreme other end of the bench came the voice of Mr. Justice Roberts, outlining a case. Work had begun.

Work to Involve New Justice.

It is work that will at once involve the newcomer. For it is the rehearing of three cases which, evidently, have resulted in a four to four tie among the eight members left on the bench at the retirement of Justice Holmes. And so the new member speedily may have an opportunity to demonstrate his views, said to follow the liberal path of his predecessor.

In giving up his place as chief justice of the New York Court of Appeals Justice Cardozo leaves a salary of $22,500 a year, for the $20,000 position he now has. But as he sat on the bench yesterday and smiled he looked as if he thought the ceremony well worth the $2,500 yearly cut.

HEAD OF POLAND WINS RIGHT TO RULE BY DECREE

WARSAW, Poland, March 14.—(AP)—The Polish sejm today passed a measure empowering the president to issue administrative decrees and decrees concerning unification of laws for a period of three years, but limited these powers to parliamentary recesses. Decrees on economic and financial affairs would be issuable, however, only during the recess following the present session of the sejm.

The opposition declared that the measure, which was introduced by the government, destroyed parliamentary government.

It was explained that all matters concerning foreign loans, monetary affairs, or taxation would be excluded from the president's new powers and that he would have recourse to decree only when prompt action was needed, for instance, in reducing the cost of production, or combating usury, or protecting Poland's foreign trade.

COUNTY AWARDS $1,076,000 ROAD BUILDING WORK

The county board yesterday awarded contracts totaling $1,076,000 on twenty-two highway projects. Eighteen are road improvement jobs involving twenty-six miles of highway. Two are bridge projects and two are drainage structures.

Homer J. Byrd, chairman of the roads and bridges committee, said that work on these improvements will start immediately and will result in putting to work between 1,600 and 1,800 men. The cost of the improvements will be met out of the county's share of the state gasoline tax fund.

BRITISH SCHEME TO EASE NAVAL RESTRAINT UPSET

U. S. Senator Protests; Proposal Is Dropped.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, March 14.—Whether an admiral's tongue slipped is not clear, but certain it is that Vice Admiral Alfred D. P. R. Pound of the British navy today made a suggestion at the disarmament conference that would upset the Washington and London naval treaties. And certain it is that Claude Swanson of the United States senate was on the job.

It all happened in the naval commission. The admiral arose and proposed to eliminate from the draft convention of the conference an article taken from the Washington treaty providing that a nation engaged in war shall not seize a war vessel of another country being constructed in its own yards.

Senator Swanson Protests.

Admiral Pound explained that he well knew the restriction existed in the Washington treaty, but suggested that in the future such restraint, which he considered "abnormal," should be dropped. He said it is not logical to expect a country at a moment when it is straining to the utmost not to lay its hands on all available material.

Senator Swanson said this would not do at all. Ships constructed in time of peace for another power could not possibly be considered available to the builders in time of war, he said. Otherwise, there would never be a chance for the governments to agree on their relative strengths, Mr. Swanson exclaimed.

If the restriction were removed, the entire question of equality and agreed ratios entered into in time of peace would break down, the senator assured the commission.

"If the American people even felt that these ratios could be destroyed on the outbreak of hostilities," Mr. Swanson said, "they would view the whole system with suspicion."

Other Nations Respond.

The delegates of France, Japan, and Italy responded to the senator's oratory. All strove to convince him that they were not implicated in the British maneuver. Everybody appeared to be thunderstruck by the apparent grandeur of the admiral's attempt.

The British delegation immediately afterward told the Americans their point was only a technicality. It is understood that they really intended to suggest that all such articles predicated on the outbreak of war should be deleted because war is now outlawed. The admiral's thought apparently missed its cue.

Charles Dumont, former minister of the French navy, aware, as is Mr. Swanson, that British shipyards take more orders for warships than any others, also spoke against the proposal. He argued that by cleverly advancing loans in return for shipbuilding contracts from smaller countries, a big power could build itself quite a subrosa navy.

Admiral Withdraws Proposal.

The Japanese delegate said that the admiral's suggestion, if carried out, would shake the whole foundation of the naval agreement. The admiral, remarking that "there seems to be no agreement to my proposal," withdrew it.

The French scheme for internationalizing civil aircraft will receive a thorough technical examination before the question of principle is faced, the conference also decided today.

COMMUNIST HELD ON $51,000 BOND AFTER SHOOTING

Stephen Chuck, 27 years old, 765 West Van Buren street, communist who wounded three policemen, a woman and her son and a bystander during the anti-Japanese demonstration north of the Michigan boulevard bridge Saturday, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Municipal Judge J. William Brooks in the Boys' court on three charges of assault with intent to murder and a charge of rioting. Chuck was not present at the hearing. He is in the Bridewell hospital.

Chuck was one of 26 defendants who appeared before the judge. The others asked jury trials on charges of disorderly conduct, rioting and resisting arrest. They will face trial March 22. Four were dismissed by the judge when they were able to prove they were not in the demonstration. The judge raised the bonds of the remaining defendants to $2,400 each on the three charges and set the bond of Chuck at $51,000.

Among those who asked jury trials were Mrs. Anna Rejba, 38 years old, 1820 Evergreen avenue, woman agitator, and her son, Edward, 17 years old. Both were wounded by Chuck.

OHIO KIDNAPER GOES ON TRIAL WITHOUT A JURY

Abducted Boy Relates His Story.

Warren, O., March 14.—[Special.]—Fate of Dowell Hargraves, 31, will be in the hands of Judge Lynn B. Griffith tomorrow when Hargraves' trial on a charge of kidnaping James De Jute Jr., 11, son of a well to do Niles contractor, is completed. Hargraves today waived jury trial. His attorney, Samuel P. Mango, indicated he plans a statement of general denial of an extortion plot and will argue the indictment is faulty and should be dismissed.

DOWELL HARGRAVES.

A huge crowd packed the courtroom and a corridor while the boy calmly told his story from the witness stand from the time he was kidnaped ten hours after the Lindbergh baby was stolen.

Tells of Abduction.

Jimmy said he was on his way to school with his cousin, Anna May Mollica, Wednesday, March 2, when two men in a coupé called him.

"One of the men got out, grabbed me, put me in the machine and held my head down," he said. "I screamed and tried to grab the steering wheel. They drove to the house.

"They put dark green goggles on me—the kind aviators wear, and they took me into the house. They put me on a chair and told me not to worry. That they wouldn't hurt me."

Masks Put in Evidence.

Two gren hood masks introduced as evidenc were idntified by the boy as having been at the house. They boy said one guard wore a mask, but Hargraves did not. He said the day of the rescue those in the house did not hear the officers approach until the cars pulled up beside the house. The boy said he was not struck and was not afraid of the men.

He was unable to identify Hargraves when he was asked to look about the courtroom. For two minutes he looked at the crowd and then said, "I don't see him."

TROTZKY TAKES TRIP FOR HEALTH; WIFE IS HOSTAGE

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 14.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky, the exiled bolshevist war lord, has been granted permission to spend three months in Czecho-Slovakia for his health. He will leave here within two weeks.

It will be the first time he has been allowed to leave Turkey during his three years of exile, and even now the Czech government has demanded, and the Turkish government will require, that Mrs. Trotzky, also in frail health, must remain here as a hostage to guarantee her husband's return at the end of three months.

Trotzky has no passport as he no longer holds his Russian citizenship, but will travel with Turkish secret service men on a special visa as far as the frontier. When he comes back he must have the visa of the Turkish consul in Czecho-Slovakia.

"ANTI-POISON" WATER DISCOVERY CURBS DIABETES

Dozens of diabetes sufferers are now telling how a new mineral water discovery is mysteriously restoring health to them. Doctors are amazed at finding how this mineral product, called Sleepy Water, acts to increase sugar tolerance.

It has long been known that certain body poisons, carried by the blood stream, cause and aggravate diabetes, as well as nearly thirty other common ailments. But these poisons cannot be driven from the body by ordinary methods. Sleepy Water, however, possesses two singular properties that act to curb diabetic symptoms. First, its mild alkalines act in the blood stream to neutralize acids. Even more important, however, Sleepy Water increases the capacity of the kidneys to filter out and drive off the poisonous substances.

Right now Sleepy Water is brought to you under a generous Free Trial arrangement. It must prove to you in thirty minutes, or less, how it drives out body poisons, or the test costs you nothing. You are not obligated. You can make this test easily, by just dropping a line to Chewaukla Mineral Springs Co., Dept. CA-10, 3330 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, or by calling Kedzie 1228. WILL O' WISP TIPS IN LINDY SEARCH LEAD TO NOWHERE gated tips that the missing baby was aboard a ship and that it was in houses in Baltimore, in Lexington, Ky., and in Jamaica, Queens. Tips also came from Hamburg, Germany. The net result of these efforts to find the child was to leave the police just where they were on the day after the crime was discovered.

Clews Fade as Fast as They Bloom.

A photograph of the baby seized with two couples at Crosswell, Tenn., was rushed to the Lindberghs by airplane. "That's not our baby," was the parents' answer. The two couples, alert to cash in on the resemblance and the interest in the case, had a sign in their car reading:

"See the kid that resembles the Lindbergh baby. Admission 15 cents."

Little Activity at Lindy's Home.

A light snow fell in Hopewell yesterday afternoon and this morning a biting wind was sweeping over the hills. There were few automobiles passing the troopers' outpost and most of these belonged to higher police officials traveling back and forth between Trenton and the headquarters established in the Lindbergh garage.

Tradesmen who called at the Lindbergh home said there was little activity to be seen. The troopers were sticking close to the garage and only five cars were parked at the side of the house.

Mrs. Lindbergh was seen sitting beside the library window reading. Col. Lindbergh left the house several times during yesterday morning, but remained inside all afternoon.

PLEA FOR AID IN KIDNAP CASE REACHES CHICAGO

The coöperation of officials in the solution of the Lindbergh kidnaping was asked yesterday in a communication received here the department of justice in Washington. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police, had sent the request.

The communication asks that "all evidence and data, including photographs, fingerprints, descriptions, etc., of known kidnapers and abductors and their method of operation and any other information you may have on file" be sent to Col. Schwarzkopf at Trenton. The communication was postmarked at Washington 7 p. m. last Friday.

City police and federal officials received copies of the circular during the day. They were posted among the other official bulletins and in other conspicuous places in the federal and police buildings.

Divorces Wife Who Left When He Got Screen Role

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—[Special.]—William B. Davidson, screen actor, won a divorce today when he testified his wife became so annoyed because he insisted on accepting a lucrative film rôle with Marion Davies, that she left him. She wished him to sell life insurance. Mrs. Davidson is now engaged in social service work in New York.

FOILED IN SUICIDE PACT, SON SLAYS MOTHER, HIMSELF

Kankakee, Ill., March 14.—[Special.]—After his 83 year old mother, a patient in the state asylum here, had refused to enter a suicide pact with him, Sherman M. Hawks shot her twice today and then sent two bullets into his own head.

Both died within a few hours. Before she became unconscious, Mrs. Emma Hawks told authorities of her son's entreaties to join him in the death plot. He had made several visits to her in the last four days in which he broached the subject, she said.

Today he entered the ward where she had been a patient for several years for another visit. He again suggested the suicide pact, and she refused to join him. Then he drew a revolver, shot her, and turned it on himself.

Hawks had been a bookkeeper for the Kankakee Tile and Brick company for 26 years, and was reputed to be worth in the neighborhood of $300,000. He owned a farm in Michigan valued at $100,000 and had other property in and about Kankakee.

He was married, and his home life was happy, neighbors told police. His employers said that he had lost money in the stock market crash two years ago, but that he still possessed a comfortable fortune. They were at a loss for a motive, they said.

Bites Tongue and Dies; His Widow Gets Annuity

Boston, Mass., March 14.—(AP)—Mayor James M. Curley today granted an annuity to the widow of Traffic Police Sergeant John P. M. Wolfe and at the same time disclosed a peculiar case. During his police service, Wolfe had been bitten by an intoxicated man, a dog, and a cat. He died Dec. 1, 1931, from septic poisoning in a wound caused when he bit his tongue.

AUSTRALIA OPENS FIGHT TO BRING BACK PROSPERITY

Economic Crisis Tackled by Federal Parliament.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANBERRA, Australia, March 14.—Early restoration of economic stability and suppression of communistic activities are the main objectives of Australia's 13th federal parliament which is now in session, under the guidance of the newly elected United Australian party government of Prime Minister J. A. Lyons. Opening of parliament by Sir Isaac Isaacs, governor general of Australia, was without the glamour of "horses and the gold coach" as in England, but nevertheless it was an outstanding social event with the men appearing in top hats and morning coats and the women in fashionable frocks.

In his address Sir Isaac voiced the policies of the new Lyons government, emphasizing that the two fundamental problems of the nation were "the maintenance of the soundness of national finance and the solution of unemployment."

Raps New South Wales.

"Unless definite action is taken," he said, "the whole commonwealth may be involved in a financial collapse, the avoidance of which has been the main objective of the self-sacrificing measures adopted by all other governments. The cabinet views with utmost concern the failure of the government of New South Wales to meet its financial obligations overseas."

Other important matters which the new United Australian party government pledge themselves to solve in 1932 are:

Stimulation of private industry, encouragement of empire trade reciprocity, preservation of a satisfactory balance of trade, and adjustment of customs tariffs.

The present year will also see the commonwealth government legislating against "unlawful association." This action comes under its pledged policy of "suppressing communistic activities."

May Unite Rail Systems.

Coördination of transportation services with the possibility of all six state railway systems coming under one national commission or federal control, is one of the government's aims. A bill to provide for a commission to control radio broadcasting, which is now controlled by the postmaster general's department, will also be introduced in parliament.

The matter of solving Australia's unemployment problem is a serious one. The federal government hopes to remedy the condition by stimulating private industries rather than rely upon the "dole." At present, there are 400,000 idle men and women throughout the country in a population of only 6,500,000. This army represents about 30 per cent of the total number of workers in normal times. New South Wales is the only state offering the dole, which will cost that state $30,000,000 this year, obtained by special taxation.

BARE KREUGER'S APPEAL IN U. S. FOR $10,000,000

Suicide Fails to Shake Swedish Banks.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 14.—Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, who three years ago negotiated a $50,000,000 loan within six hours from the time he stepped off a boat in New York, killed himself here Saturday because in three months of effort he failed to raise a mere $10,000,000 in America.

This piece of tragic irony was revealed today by an international banker who was in close touch with Kreuger's affairs.

It is not true, this banker said, that Kreuger had gone to America to obtain a $100,000,000 loan. Actually one-tenth of that sum would have been sufficient.

Needed Money to Pay Bank.

Kreuger, this informant said, needed the $10,000,000 to refund an advance from a Swedish bank, which the bank was unable to renew. Remembering the ease with which he always had obtained credit in Wall street in the past, Kreuger hopped a boat to New York.

To his amazement he found the American mentality completely changed and negotiations with the same group who had loaned him $50,000,000 three years ago failed. He finally left New York with a verbal promise from another group to let him have $7,000,000.

But when he got to Paris, he was informed that the Stockholm bank would have to have the entire amount due on the date specified and he also received a cable from the New York group saying it could not advance the $7,000,000.

Fails to Shake Swedish Banks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, March 14.—Business interests and banks withstood calmly today the shock of the suicide in Paris Saturday of Ivar Kreuger.

Influenced perhaps by the emergency moratorium measures taken by the Swedish government, the financial structures of this country went through the day with but superficial damage. Banks experienced nothing which could be termed runs. The Kreuger and Toll company asked for a moratorium of only two weeks to get ready to fulfill its obligations, and the Swedish Match company asked for no moratorium at all.

Paris Bourse Hit.

In view of the comparative calm, it was expected that the Stockholm stock exchange, closed in fear of panicky repercussions, would reopen by the end of the week.

Kreuger's suicide exerted its greatest effect on the Paris bourse and the London Stock exchange, dispatches indicated. The bourse, in particular, had trouble absorbing sales, and prominent issues such as the Banque de Paris and Credit Lyonnais dropped.

The Kreuger stock on the Berlin bourse slid from 81 to 50 in the first hour of trading, reports said. After dipping from there to 40 it rallied and closed at 42. Other issues registered only slight losses, however.

Dispatches from other European exchanges showed comparatively little reaction to the financier's death.

Toothless for Ten Years, Nebraskan Is Cutting One

O'Neill, Neb., March 14.—(AP)—Henry Ritts, 69, is cutting a tooth. Ten years ago he had his teeth pulled and replaced by a "store set." The new molar was first felt about a week ago.

PAINTERS OFFER ART FOR TEETH BUT PREFER FOOD

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Dentists who are willing to fill teeth in exchange for oil paintings and physicians who agree to accept the same fees for treating ailing artists will be able to begin collecting art within the next few weeks.

The same prospect is held out to landlords and merchants by the Society of Independent Artists, who have decided in their show this year to consider other media than hard cash in exchange for their work.

Whether a painting is worth several gold inlays or merely an amalgam filling will be for the artist and prospective customer to decide.

John Sloan, president of the society, said:

"Artists are always on the bread line but this year they are in even worse straits than usual. Dental services, medical care and clothing will be the most welcome media of exchange, but best of all will be offers of food or rent for six months or a year."

Stunning! Her figure

But her skin, Tragic!

By Julia Foster ★

I just can't describe the loveliness of her figure. I was charmed. Until I saw her skin. Then . . . all loveliness was forgotten. Hard to believe so much beauty could go to waste for want of a few little words of advice!

This is what many, many beauty experts have told me . . . Simply, twice a day, morning and evening, apply a generous lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water to face and throat. Work well into the pores. This is best done with the hands. Then rinse away with warm water. Finish with a cold rinse. Hot water should never touch your skin. If your face is dry, apply oil or tissue cream after the night treatment.

More than 20,000 of the world's leading beauty specialists have urged that for this foundation cleansing you use Palmolive Soap. The panel at the right, headed, "Beauty In a Test Tube," will tell you why. Please read it carefully.

Rest in a beauty bath!

Let me pass on to you another valuable suggestion given me by a beauty expert. It's really a beauty treatment! And it's the best relaxation for tired nerves I know.

You can easily afford this because Palmolive Soap is so inexpensive. Shave up a whole bar of Palmolive Soap. Then melt it by boiling in 4 cups of water and pour the solution into your tub. When you get in, just relax for a minute or two. Then, with the rich lather from another cake of Palmolive, massage your whole body. Don't miss a pore! Your skin will be the better for it, because of the olive and palm oils. Fatigue, nervousness, will be gone. You'll feel like dressing up in your best things, like going places. Try it!

And I'm sure you'll want to start at once those twice-a-day Palmolive treatments for your face I told you about. It's a truly marvelous way to keep your skin young!

BEAUTY IN A TEST TUBE

But can you get enough olive oil in soap? How much, actually, goes into Palmolive? Here is the exact amount of olive oil that goes into every ten-cent cake of Palmolive—in this test tube at the right. To this generous olive oil content can be directly traced Palmolive's great complexion benefits. It is the only large-selling soap made of vegetable oils exclusively. The only one using olive oil as a base. Other ingredients are simply oils from palm trees necessary to produce a richer, creamier, more workable lather. The color is the natural green of olive and palm oils—no artificial coloring.

More than 20,000 of the world's beauty experts have for years urged Palmolive Soap in preference to all others. Heed their advice!

URGES EDUCATION TO CONCENTRATE ON APT PUPILS

Savant Asks Changes at U. of C. Meeting.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

New policies in the educational system of this country were advocated yesterday before the group of local and visiting educators attending a two day series of conferences to dedicate the new graduate education building of the University of Chicago. President Robert Maynard Hutchins will preside this morning in the closing session.

ROBERT MAYNARD HUTCHINS.

A selective system, both for the students to be educated and for the type of education they will receive, was suggested last night by Prof. Edward L. Thorndike of the teachers' college at Columbia, one of the most prominent educational psychologists in the United States. Such a system would insure adequate educational opportunities to those best fitted to improve them; would afford the nation in general a vast economical saving, and make life happier and more profitable for both the more intelligent and the less gifted pupil, he argued.

Urges Change in System.

"Zeal to increase the amount of schooling in our country has been one of America's finest idealisms," Dr. Thorndike said. "Such zeal should be preserved, but with it should be zeal to distribute education so that those will have most who will use it best.

"What shall we say of laws and customs which systematically and emphatically distribute the most schooling to those least able to get the most out of it? Are they not intolerably unwise and unjust?

"The passion for equalization, which had a certain nobility when a large percentage of children barely learned to read and write, becomes unwise, almost ridiculous, when the question is of spending our resources to keep in school boys of 16, 17, and 18 who would be happier and more useful at work or play."

Praises U. of C. Work.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Homer F. Rainey of Bucknell university, one of five college presidents who were speakers, and an alumnus of the department of education at the University of Chicago, had lauded his alma mater for its "trail blazing reforms" in the science of teaching.

The golden age of American education, he predicted, will have arrived when the student comes to his courses in a receptive attitude of mind.

LOSES PLEA

VINCENT KERENS.

Washington, D. C., March 14.—(AP)—Vincent Kerens, son of the late Richard C. Kerens, St. Louis millionaire, today was refused an opportunity by the Supreme court to present his claim that by sobriety and good behavior he was entitled to his share in the Kerens fortune.

The will of Richard Kerens, former ambassador to Austria, provided that Vincent was to receive approximately $2,000,000 when and if he behaved himself and stayed sober for five years.

His father died in 1916 and in January, 1928, Vincent asked a court to declare him entitled to his inheritance.

Kerens' two sisters, Mrs. Gladys Colket and Mrs. Madeline Kenna, objected, claiming that the circumstances surrounding their brother's divorce and remarriage were not their idea of good behavior.

Their ideas were upheld by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals and former Senator Reed of Missouri, young Kerens' counsel, appealed to the Supreme court.

ORDERS RETRIAL OF LAWYER IN CONTEMPT CASE

A retrial of civil contempt proceedings against Attorney William E. Lamb of Evanston at Clarksdale, Miss., was ordered yesterday by the United States Supreme court. The original proceedings grew out of Lamb's acceptance of a $30,000 retainer fee from Mrs. Florence T. Holland of Clarksdale and were started by Sterling B. Cramer of Chicago. Judge Edwin Holmes of the federal court at Clarksdale dismissed the contempt case. However, the Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans reversed Judge Holmes' decision and the Supreme court yesterday upheld the reviewing court. The Supreme court held that no criminal contempt exists, but that the civil contempt must be tried before Judge Holmes.

BRITAIN WINCES UNDER BOYCOTT BLOWS IN INDIA

Gandhi's Revolt Becomes a Silent Struggle.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DELHI, March 14.—India's independence movement has settled down to a silent struggle, wielding as its chief weapon the unspectacular, but highly effective boycott.

The civil disobedience phase of the battle, the demonstrative feature of it, is undergoing a lull. There are fewer flag raisings, fewer processions, fewer salt making ceremonies, and less peaceful picketing of shops where British goods are sold and of the mint in Bombay where Indian gold is bought with paper rupees and then shipped to England to strengthen the pound sterling.

The British masters of India declare they have crushed the civil disobedience movement. They have triumphed physically and have thrown all the leaders into prison, from Mahatma Gandhi on down.

Poetess Revolt Leader.

Mme. Sarojini Naidu, the poetess, today became the leader of the civil disobedience movement. She succeeds Abulkalam Azad as president of the all-India Congress party. Azad was arrested last Saturday.

Demonstrations continue but their leaders are arrested and sentenced to prison terms as soon as they appear. The demonstrations, too, are weaker editions of the earlier ones. They are also more and more being followed by rioting started by hoodlums. Violence is becoming harder to check as the more capable exponents of passive resistance disappear within prison walls. This is why the Congress party leaders plead for slowing down the demonstrative feature of the campaign. They fear that the irresponsible element will get out of hand and reflect on their movement, which is avowedly nonviolent.

Congress party leaders have announced that they will be content for the time being with continuance of the usual flag raisings and processions on a moderate scale until the no rent campaign by the peasants of the Bardoli region begins. This campaign was planned two months ago, but will become effective only when the government begins to collect rents.

Congress party leaders admit the civil disobedience drive is being driven into the ground. But the British success, if it is a success, is costing them dearly.

Flame of Hate Fanned.

It is fanning up a hot flame of resentment and hatred all over India. Hundreds of Indians of all classes deeply resent the harsh and arbitrary set of British edicts by which the government is attempting to throttle the struggle for freedom.

The entire Moslem priesthood has joined the "war" against England. Their organization, known as Jamiat ul Ulema, has decreed a countrywide picketing of liquor shops.

Intelligent young men, trained in English universities and who owe their jobs to British rule or to the maharajahs whose rule is subordinated to the British "paramount power," object strongly to the present regime. Knighted members of the moderate and conservative sections in the handpicked Indian assembly at Delhi who frown on Gandhi's campaign, are opposing British tactics.

But there is another thing which may force the British to their knees. It is the boycott, a weapon which police and soldiery and prison sentences cannot put down. There is, after all, no way of forcing a man to buy British goods if he doesn't want to. The national resentment against ordinance rule is taking increasing expression in the boycott.

How effective the boycott is cannot yet be estimated. The British trade commissioner in India in a recent report admitted that the swift dwindling of business with Great Britain is due not only to the general depression, but also to the boycott.

SOUR GRAPES CRY USED BY HORNER AGAINST RIVALS

Addresses Large Crowd at East St. Louis.

East St. Louis, Ill., March 14.—[Special.]—The cry of "political sour grapes" was raised against his primary opponents by Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor, before a large outpouring of St. Clair county Democrats tonight. Referring to Michael L. Igoe, and Bruce Campbell, who are contesting the primary with him, he said:

"These two gentlemen submitted their names to the state committee but failed to receive its endorsement, although both for many months prior to the meeting of the committee had been campaigning throughout Illinois, seeking to bring influence to bear upon the committee and direct its choice their way.

Would Support Men Indorsed.

"During all this time I made no effort in furtherance of my candidacy, and if I had failed to win the indorsement you would have found me working in the front rank for the man whom the leaders of my party had selected.

"It is to be regretted that these opponents of mine have refused to abide by the decision of the committee, and have decided to contest as primary candidates anyway. Does any Democrat in this state believe for an instant that if either of these gentlemen had received the indorsement they sought and which was denied them, that they would now be condemning the organized Democratic leadership of the state?"

In explaining his selection by the committee, Judge Horner cited his vote getting record in Cook county as probate judge and alluded to the fact that he had carried that county by nearly 400,000 votes in the election of 1930.

"The state committee," he explained, "felt it to be its duty to choose a ticket of men who, when elected at the primary, could draw such strength to the party at the general election as would insure the carrying of the state for the Democratic nominees for President and Vice President, as well as the state nominees for office."

The Horner caravan arrived here from Springfield this evening on the start of its second week of downstate campaigning. The party was reinforced at Springfield by Edward J. Hughes, candidate for secretary of state, who will make the balance of the tour with his fellow candidates.

Before leaving Springfield Judge Horner was the guest of honor at a testimonial luncheon given by the citizens of Springfield at the St. Nicholas hotel. So large was the attendance that the main dining room of the hotel was crowded beyond capacity and tables were set up in the lobby to accommodate the overflow.

Campbell Hits Dry Law.

Quincy, Ill., March 14.—[Special.]—Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis, Democratic candidate for governor, opened his campaign in western Illinois today, speaking at Pittsfield this morning, Winchester this afternoon and here at 7:30 tonight. The Circuit courtroom was crowded and Mr. Campbell was greeted with applause.

Mr. Campbell declared prohibition is costing the people of the United States millions of dollars each year in a futile attempt at enforcement, whereas if the states strictly regulated the liquor traffic themselves, as every state ought to have the right to do, such regulation would bring in tremendous revenue instead of the great expense it now entails. This would lighten the crushing tax burden on the people, he said.

High Court Again Denies Harry Powers' Appeal

Charleston, W. Va., March 14.—(AP)—For the second time the state supreme court today refused to grant an appeal to Harry F. Powers, "mail order Romeo" under sentence to be hanged March 18 for the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro, Mass., divorcée.

Time up! . . .

NOW your hair can't ruin your looks. Your scalp is healthy, your hair well-groomed, attractive. You're ready for the most critical eyes!

The 60-Second Workout keeps your HAIR well-groomed

IT doesn't matter how good-looking you might be. The fact is, you can't actually be good-looking unless your hair is.

The 60-second workout for your dried-out scalp is as important to your looks as your well-tailored suit, and your well-polished shoes. Unhealthy-looking, straggly hair spoils more men's appearance than any other one thing!

Take just 60 seconds, twice a week, to rub Vitalis briskly into your scalp. A brief vigorous massage with this pure vegetable oil preparation will make an immediate difference in your looks.

The natural oils that nourish the hair roots will be restored. Circulation will be quickened in the scalp. Loose dandruff, forerunner of falling hair, will be checked. Your hair will look rich, healthy, naturally lustrous—without a trace of that objectionable "patent-leather" look. And it will stay in place always!

Get a bottle of Vitalis today. Barbers have it. Druggists have it. It is the preparation made after the formula approved by leading doctors who specialize in hair culture. Begin your 60-second workouts today, and look your best!

You'll never get such a good view of your hair as your barber does. And nobody can tell you better what it needs. Don't ignore expert advice. When he says "Vitalis?" you'd better say "Yes!"

KEEPS HAIR HEALTHY AND HANDSOME

are not the only things to worry about!

"I would do almost anything rather than go through another miserable year," you may say.

So would other chronic sufferers. What they fail to realize is that not outdoor exposure or poor ventilation alone, but germs as well, are the cause of their usual ills.

Squibb Adex Tablets can help you.

They are a new concentrate of the vitamins in cod-liver oil. People who are susceptible to common ills especially need the two factors they supply—Vitamin A and Vitamin D.

Vitamin A helps to maintain resistance against infections of the nose and throat. Vitamin D, commonly known as the sunshine vitamin, tones the system.

Each Adex Tablet supplies as much of these factors as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil.

People who have known for years the value of good cod-liver oil as a health-builder will welcome this opportunity of receiving its benefits in a pleasant, new form.

Adex are so easy to take! Just sugar-coated, little tablets.

Start taking them today, and keep it up regularly.

Hi-tense-itis

It plays havoc with your sleep and rest . . . drags down your vitality . . . makes you cranky and irritable. It menaces your business and social success . . . ruins romances. You can't escape it in this strenuous age—but, you can get relief.

Hi-tense-itis—it's the modern name for a modern malady . . . high tension "NERVES." Most of us fall victims to it sooner or later these days. You know, that tense, distracted, nervous condition. G. O. P. ASSAYS ITS 5 HOPES IN GOVERNOR RACE Campaign Thus Far Sets Record for Languor.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republican politicians, the April 12 primaries being only four weeks away, began yesterday to estimate the relative strength of the five leading Republican candidates for the governorship nomination and the speed they may show down the home stretch.

An apparent lassitude in the Omer N. Custer camp, a drop for Len Small and gains made by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom and Edward J. Brundage, the last one to enter the race, were tendencies in the political muddle to which Cook county leaders representing all groups pointed. The candidacy of William H. Malone, former head of the state tax commission, they regarded as about where it was a week ago.

Complexity and Languor.

The campaign itself so far has been the most languid in years. It is more complex than usual—which is saying much in Cook county politics—due to cross currents, splits, and hookups clustered around the ward committeeships and control of the party organization.

Brundage's stand for legalization of 3 per cent beer by congress and repeal of the 18th amendment was followed yesterday by reported accessions of strength. Carlstrom's liberal plank was said to have increased his following. Prohibition still stands out as leading issue. Economic issues, the tax spenders' orgy! bureaucracy, and government in business are evoking responses from audiences, but the wet and dry issue gets the heaviest hand.

Malone is liberal. The Small campaign is being painted wet in Cook county and dry downstate. Custer has straddled the issue. The situation thus has the complication of three liberals—Brundage, Carlstrom, Malone—splitting the wet vote in Cook county and Small being paraded in the wet places as a wet, while downstate Custer and Small are splitting the dry vote and the wet vote is again divided three ways.

Results of Straw Votes.

Leaders in all camps theorized that if the Brundage, Carlstrom, and Malone camps were combined behind one candidate, the outcome would be a walkaway.

Straw votes have been taken by various agencies. A poll by the Rock Island Argus in Rock Island, Mercer and Henry counties—Carlstrom territory—gave him 57 per cent of the vote, Custer 22 per cent, Small 14 per cent. Less than a thousand straws were taken, but much interest was displayed in the figures. A poll conducted by downstate precinct committeemen at the request of Howard Savage, of the Carlstrom camp, gave the following: Carlstrom, 5,759; Small, 3,832; Custer, 2,312; Malone, 554.

Some Chicago committeemen who are lined up with Custer declared that Carlstrom is picking up fast, especially on the south side and in the northwest wards. Arguments that Carlstrom got a "dirty deal" from Gov. Emmerson, to aid whom Carlstrom pulled out of the governorship race four years ago, are reported to be showing effect.

See Brundage Advancing.

Brundage likewise seems to be walking right along, according to testimony which ought to be neutral since it was gathered from men in the Custer camp. The word in politics has been that Brundage entered too late to make a strong campaign. The Brundage managers, however, report that this does not seem to be militating against them as much as expected, this by reason of the extreme slowness with which the entire governorship contest is getting into activity.

The wet issue and an attack projected by the Brundage forces upon the "statehouse" clique and "downstate pay roll bosses" are awaited by the politicians to indicate whether the primaries are to be only an organization controlled affair or whether the independent voters this year will rise again and smite. One straw vote yesterday showed Brundage gaining, and the politicians were inclined to invest it with some significance.

Apathy in Small Camp.

Meanwhile apathy still seemed to pervade the Custer and Small camps. The Small managers found things so stagnant at the Auditorium that they got ready to move into the Morrison hotel, where they are chasing Custer out of one of the several suites his headquarters occupy. Small's Cook county support comes from some of the fragments of the old city hall machine which was thrown out last April. He has strength in the near south side wards, stronghold of the Negro voters.

Politicians hold the theory that Small has been slipping for the last two or three weeks. Downstate he was expected to draw much of the anti-Emmerson strength, which might be cool toward Custer as being the governor's pick. He has been regarded as having a lead due to a divided field, but reports arriving from central and southern Illinois are to the effect that Small has been weakened by his exciting hall support.

The argument, too, is percolating that if Small headed the Republican ticket it would mean defeat in November for the state ticket and also for many downstate county tickets which otherwise might win. The same argument, that if Small should win the Republican county ticket in Cook county would stand a chance of being buried in November, is cutting into him.

Flipflops Occupy Committeemen.

In the Custer camp administration leaders are perplexed at the slowness with which the campaign is progressing. Some 33 ward committeemen who signed up a round robin pledging fealty to Emmerson as party leader are lined up with Mr. Custer, hypothetically. Many of them are members of the old city hall machine who have landed on park and other pay rolls through the beneficence of the governor.

Headquarters resounds with talk that what the 33 are most interested in is election as ward committeemen, and one that an abundance of trading and flopping is expected. The political history of many of them is studded with political crosses.

Dry Stand Causes Murmurs.

Even among the big shots in the camp there are murmurs of disaffection on the ground of the wet and dry issue, which Mr. Custer says is something on which a governor "can do nothing." In Custer headquarters three of his supporters said yesterday that it looks like Carlstrom in their wards, remarking that Custer has three handicaps in Chicago: First, he is not a well known figure; second, he is the choice of the governor who vetoed the repeal of the search and seizure act, and third, he did not come out on the liberal side of the prohibition issue.

Downstate Custer is regarded as having better sailing. During his two terms as state treasurer he built up a little organization of his own. He has the support of many of the followers of ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden, having twice been Illinois manager of Lowden presidential campaigns, and he has the backing of Gov. Emmerson and the statehouse organization. His position on prohibition is expected to aid him in the dry downstate counties.

Mr. Malone is running with the support of several organizations of taxpayers. He makes boast that he is not backed by the political bosses. Downstate he has been drawing large audiences, while in Cook county the politicians figure his largest vote will come from the country towns and the outlying residential wards.

SMITH IS WILLING TO SET DELEGATES FREE IF HE LOSES

Boston, Mass., March 14.—[Special.]—Alfred E. Smith, in a letter replying to questions asked by Mrs. Jessie W. Sayre, daughter of Woodrow Wilson, stated that a Massachusetts slate of delegates pledged to him would be "entirely free" to vote for any candidate for the presidential nomination they chose at the national convention when and if he should be eliminated from consideration.

Two other questions were asked by Mrs. Sayre, secretary of the state committee.

As to Mr. Smith's preference he replied:

"I have already stated that I am neither for nor against any of the men so far mentioned and I give as my reason that, as leader of the party by virtue of my nomination in 1928, I should not take sides, but rather should leave the whole question to the Democratic national convention."

Another question was: "What is your present attitude toward the league of nations?"

"I do not believe the league of nations today to be a political issue," he answered. "I am firmly convinced that our entrance into the league of nations is a matter that will have to come up from the rank and file of the people."

DOCTOR TURNS TABLE ON POLICEMAN IN AUTOMOBILE ARREST

Dr. Dennis Crile, 822 Michigan avenue, told Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston yesterday that he believed the law should be observed by all persons alike when he paid a $5 fine for his chauffeur, Martin N. Karbens, charged with speeding. "I want to sign a complaint against the policeman that made the arrest," said Dr. Crile.

He pointed to Policeman Henry Dricker. "On the way to the police station this policeman failed to stop his squad car at two stop signs," Dr. Crile said.

He signed the complaint against Dricker for reckless driving and passing a stop sign. The case will be heard on Thursday.

JEWELRY SHOP IS ROBBED.

Burglars entered the Sheridan Jewelry shop at 6572 Sheridan road late Sunday night and carried away watches and rings valued at $412.

MALONE CHARGES POLITICS CHEATS BANK DEPOSITORS

Assails "Spoils" System of Receiverships.

William H. Malone, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, declared in a speech at Waukegan last night that if he is elected there "would be just one receiver and one attorney for all the closed banks in Illinois and that one the state itself."

"The appointment of receivers and attorneys has been political in every county in the state," Mr. Malone said. "These appointments have gone to former office holders and to factional leaders of the spoils machines.

"It is a crime for the state of Illinois to allow your money to be eaten up in the guise of fees for attorneys and receivers."

Raps State Administration.

Mr. Malone added that the present state administration had done nothing to avoid "scandalous conditions," under which depositors of closed banks get little after the liquidation is completed.

He reiterated his charges that an indefensible situation as regarded taxes had existed in Chicago for years. He said that the board of review had declined, in violation of the law, to publish its findings until he, as chairman of the tax commission, made the board do so with the courts aiding.

In paying his respects to the present state administration, Mr. Malone declared that all it had done to relieve the tax burden was to add more taxes. He denounced the state income tax law passed by the legislature, averring that it would do nothing to relieve realty owners.

Pledges Tax Reduction.

"It will just add 1,000 snoopers," he declared. "If I am elected governor I will reduce taxes 40 per cent in a year. I'll do it by purging the pay rolls of pay rollers, of useless bureaus, of useless commissions and useless snoopers. And I'll have no alliances with the Ellers and the Serritellas, either."

Discussing the prohibition issue, Mr. Malone asserted that the 18th amendment had built up a gangster element of serious proportions. He favored repeal, he said, and would leave drinking "to the common sense of the people."

Mayor William McKee of Park Ridge presided at the meeting, which was held in the Waukegan Masonic temple.

Life Insurance that does TWO Important Things:

Protects Your Family Now . . .

Pays You an Income When You Retire

Available in a variety of forms of contracts. Your exact needs and your checkbook can be fitted by one of these or a combination of two or three.

Some contracts balance the insurance and income features, some emphasize the insurance protection, some emphasize the retirement income.

These contracts—forms of property that are cherished by all who own them—may be purchased outright for a lump sum or for payments spread over a short or long period of time. Such payments may be made annually, semi-annually, quarterly or monthly.

A well-trained insurance man can contribute materially to the service you receive for the dollars you pay for insurance. Consult him on all matters affecting your insurance problems.

Representatives of The Travelers are always ready to render you valuable assistance and, in addition, are in a position to apply to your problems the sound advice and broad experience of company experts.

Agencies, Branches, and Service Offices throughout the United States and Canada

IN 1931 many individuals, many families and many business organizations came face to face with hours of need and found in insurance a dependable friend—a friend that was able as well as willing to help in their emergencies.

Through the timely aid of funds from all forms of insurance, many adversities of life were prevented from becoming tragedies, and many untoward events were robbed of their terrors and oppressions.

Life insurance, unlike some other forms of property, instead of adding to or intensifying the woes of the public during a period of economic readjustment, ministered to many and provided relief and comfort to scores of persons who had exhausted all other means.

Prepared for just such events as have occurred, The Travelers was in a position to meet these extraordinary contingencies and paid in cash to policyholders and their beneficiaries the largest sum which the three Travelers Companies have ever disbursed in one year—$113,771,821. To distribute this, paying the right amounts to the right persons at the right time, required the issuance of 957,636 checks and drafts. Over one billion dollars has been paid by The Travelers Companies to policyholders since organization.

There have been many surprising changes since the close of the war. We have seen severe liquidation of manufactured goods, lower prices for commodities, soaring stock prices and then a fall in market values that has caused embarrassment to many individuals and their fortunes. All these violent events have crowded to the fore the value of life insurance, as an investment of sound, steady and continuing value and one that has brought aid and sustenance to many who were and are overwhelmed.

To afford policyholders sound protection, the Companies have followed the policy of distributing their investments broadly, and not only carry large amounts of cash, but have supplemented these with large holdings of United States Government Bonds, and marketable bonds of many of the best municipalities and corporations in the country.

The Companies' reserves meet the requirements of the strictest of state laws and additional reserves are carried to meet extraordinary contingencies which may arise in the future.

During the sixty-seven years of its corporate existence, The Travelers has encountered many such periods as this. It has experienced the panics of 1873, 1893 and 1907. It faced the problems arising from the war, the influenza epidemic and the post-war deflation. In each of these periods it has played an important part and in all of them rendered valuable assistance to its policyholders.

One of the important factors responsible for the great growth in the volume of life insurance, which took place between the years 1922 and 1929, was the demonstration of the value of life insurance protection afforded by the war and the influenza epidemic. Recently we have witnessed a striking demonstration of the value of another phase of life insurance—of its strength and stability as an investment medium. If history is any guide to the future, it seems reasonable to expect that the next ten years will witness an expansion of the purchase of the investment forms of life insurance, for at no time has that value been so clearly demonstrated as at present.

How One Man Lost 22 Pounds

Mr. Herman Runkis of Detroit writes: "A few lines of thanks from a rheumatism sufferer—my first bottle of Kruschen Salts took all the aches and swellings out of my joints—with my first bottle I went on a diet and lost 22 pounds and now I feel like a new man."

To lose fat SAFELY and quickly take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast, cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen—the cost of a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle at any drugstore in the world and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. All good druggists will be glad to supply you.

WOMAN AUTO VICTIM DIES ON 66TH BIRTHDAY

Seven Fatalities in County Make Toll 218.

Mrs. Matilda Peterson, 624 West 111th street, died yesterday, her sixty-sixth birthday, at the Jackson Park hospital from internal injuries sustained Sunday morning when the car in which she was a passenger struck another machine at 83d street and South Park avenue. Mrs. Peterson was riding in a small sedan driven by Le Roy Holmes of Dolton when the auto collided with the car of U. J. Heaney, 7220 Princeton avenue. Heaney was arrested and charged with assault by Burnside police when Holmes said that he had failed to stop at South Park avenue, a through street.

Three deaths and six others yesterday in Cook county raised the 1932 toll to 218. The other victims:

Mary Andrews, 4 years old, 2034 Pensacola avenue. Died at St. Mary's hospital from injuries sustained Sunday when she fell from a taxicab at Crawford avenue and Palmer street. The child, riding with her parents, Clare and Mary, was playing with the door handle when the door swung open and pitched her to the pavement.

Mrs. Rose Schreiber, 30 years old, 2410 Pensacola avenue. Killed when the taxi in which she was riding was thrown against a street car following a collision with another auto at Belmont and Crawford avenues. Her escort, Albert Maes, 3908 North Irving avenue was seriously hurt.

George Lee, 45 years old, 1319 North La Salle street. Fatally hurt when he was struck at La Salle and Goethe streets. The driver was Joseph Murphy, 1244 South Albany avenue.

Thomas Brown, 46 years old, 7030 South Chicago avenue. Died at the county hospital from hurts suffered Friday when he was struck at South Chicago and Keefe avenues. The driver was William Young, 1744 East 73d street.

Joseph Krueger, 49 years old, 5601 South McVickers avenue. Died at the Southwest General hospital from a skull fracture received March 8 when he was run down at Archer and Massasoit avenues. Harry Clark, Oswego, Ill., was the driver.

Mrs. Ora Baughn, 55 years old, 832 Sherman avenue, Evanston. Died at the county hospital from hurts sustained Feb. 28 when she was struck by the car of a hit and run driver at Sherman avenue and Main street, in the suburb.

Dr. James T. Groot, 45 years old, 2716 Logan boulevard, suffered a fractured left leg and two firemen, William Maher, 4328 Maypole avenue, and William Stringer, 2124 North New England avenue, sustained severe bruises yesterday when the former's sedan and a fire truck collided at Central and Fullerton avenues. All the injured were taken to St. Anne's hospital.

Carlton Groves, 24 years old, of Aurora, was killed Sunday afternoon when his automobile skidded over a 10 foot embankment near Iowa City, Ia. Another passenger escaped injury.

EVANSTON NIECE OF EASTMAN DEPARTS ON NEWS OF DEATH

Mrs. George B. Dryden, 1314 Ridge avenue, Evanston, a niece and the nearest of kin to George Eastman, Kodak millionaire who killed himself yesterday, left last night for the Eastman home in Rochester, N. Y. She was accompanied by her husband, her son, George Eastman Dryden, and her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Moller of Wilmette.

Friends of the Drydens speculated last night on the possibility that the niece might be the principal heir to the estate of Mr. Eastman, which may run more than $100,000,000. The friends doubted, however, whether the Drydens knew anything of the contents of the will.

Mr. Dryden is president of a rubber company. He and his wife are socially prominent on the north shore. With his son Mr. Dryden has hunted extensively in the wilder parts of the globe, from Alaska to Africa, and have a large collection of animal pictures gathered in their travels.

According to the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dryden, they were among the first Chicagoans to go to Northport Point, Mich., and establish a summer residence. Many others have followed their lead.

George Eastman Dryden is the father of two children, George E. Jr. and Dorothy Ellen. His wife, who was Dorothy Heissler, and he were married in 1925.

The elder Dryden and his wife both said that they knew nothing about the death of their kinsman except what had appeared in the newspapers.

HEALTH FAILING, GEORGE EASTMAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Laughs as He Plans Final Chapter.

"He had been ill for several years, during which period, to use his own expression borrowed from motion picture parlance, he made a 'fadeout' from active business.

"During his illness his mind remained keen, active. Mentally he was the George Eastman of old. Physically he was weak—very weak.

Dreaded Long Illness.

"He had always expressed a dread of a lingering illness and a life of uselessness.

"To those who knew the orderly working of his mind, his passion for being useful—always useful, his dread of an illness that might make him mentally, as well as physically, inactive, his act can be understood.

Death Rocks Market.

Belated word of the manufacturer's death caused a selling flurry in Eastman Kodak stocks on the New York stock exchange. The price broke about $8 a share, but some of this loss was later recovered.

Mr. Eastman distinguished himself in many ways.

His inventions and improvements of cameras and film made possible the development of the "still" camera and motion pictures as they are today, and only recently his plant perfected the process by which the amateur cinematographer might take pictures in natural colors. His trade name for the camera, "kodak," has become a standard identifying name throughout the world.

Mr. Eastman was a noted patron of music, a big game hunter and an excellent amateur cook.

In only one thing did he court publicity, that was his plan for the institution of the now famous thirteen month calendar, which on Jan. 2 was adopted for business purposes by several leading business houses, including Sears, Roebuck & Co.

The thirteen month calendar, with equal length months, except for an annual holiday or two, added to equalize the calendar year and the solar one, has advanced to the point where it is being studied in many countries and is the subject of research by a committee of the league of nations. In the earlier days of the growth of the idea, Mr. Eastman appeared personally in Washington frequently. He also maintained a special bureau in those days to "lobby" for his cause.

Came from Poor Family.

Born on July 12, 1854, at Waterville, Oneida county, N. Y., Mr. Eastman was educated in Rochester until he was 14, when he had to seek employment. His father, George W. Eastman, had attempted unsuccessfully to found a school. The family was poor, and George's mother, Maria Kilbourn Eastman, started a boarding house.

George worked as messenger, later as a clerk, and finally obtained a position in a bank. Meanwhile he was experimenting with amateur photography in a studio he had set up in the attic of his home.

Photography at that time required the use of a plate dampened in a special solution. In 1878 the young experimenter discovered a chemical coating which made dry plate photography possible. That he also invented the camera is a misconception, but his work with it consisted in improving and developing it into the universally known kodak.

Having saved $5,000, Mr. Eastman took a partner in 1880 and began making his dry plates in a small factory. His partner was Col. Henry A. Strong. They became lifelong friends.

Started Inventive Era.

The Eastman Kodak company, which started with a small plant in Rochester, immediately began a long career of improvement and development of photographic processes. After the dry plate the bromide paper negative was developed and when, with others, the company developed the roll film, the new era of photography had arrived.

Then came the development of transparent film, which opened the way for motion pictures, and within a few more years films were developed which made daylight loading of kodaks possible. Other developments made possible the printing of the films by amateurs.

Twenty-two years after the organization of the Eastman Kodak company of New York the Eastman Kodak company of New Jersey was incorporated for $35,000,000, its purpose being to acquire and consolidate properties which would be of service in developing the parent company.

The business today is conducted principally in the home plant at Kodak park, Rochester. There seventy buildings comprising the manufacturing plant occupy 400 acres and employ 19,000 persons. One item of the business is some 200,000 miles of film supplied to the motion picture market annually.

Throughout the world are located sources of supply owned by the company. It operates branches in Paris, Budapest, Tokio, Peiping, Manila, Honolulu, Panama City, and other centers. Mr. Eastman retired from the presidency of his companies recently, but remained as chairman of the boards of directors.

HE CRAVED ACTION AND BOUGHT IT BY GIVING MILLIONS TO HUMANITY

Rochester, N. Y., March 14.—(AP)—If a man has wealth, George Eastman once said, he has to make a choice, because there is the money heaping up.

"He can keep it in a bunch," said Eastman, "and leave it to others to administer after he is dead, or he can get it into action and have fun while he is still alive. I prefer getting it into action. That is why I give."

Here's how he gave:

University of Rochester, $35,500,000.
Massachusetts Institute of Technology, $19,500,000.
Tuskegee institute, $2,362,000.

FORMER CHICAGO COUNTESS SAFE IN AFRICA DESERT

LONDON, March 14.—(AP)—Anxiety for the safety of the Viscountess de Sibour, daughter of H. Gordon Selfridge, the former Chicago department store magnate, was dispelled today when a message reached London from central Africa, where she and the viscount are on a flying tour, announcing that they had reached Naimey. They left Paris for Birni, central Africo, on Feb. 11, with a spare engine for Mlle. Maryse Hiltz, French flyer, who was stranded there on a flight of her own. A delay in hearing from them gave rise to anxiety for their safety.

Escape colds and save $2—
Relieve colds in half the time

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth washes. Hence it goes 3 times as far. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

FOR greater protection against sore throat colds and unpleasant breath (Halitosis), remember: There are really only two leading kinds of antiseptics. On one side you have the mouth wash that kills germs only when used full strength. On the other side you have Pepsodent Antiseptic—utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to kill germs in 10 seconds when diluted with 2 parts of water. Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least three times as powerful as other leading antiseptics.

Hence, it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds. What a fine way to save money. Instead of paying $3 for three bottles, you pay $1 and make the three bottles yourself. And don't forget, everyone usually adds water before gargling. So when choosing your antiseptic, be sure you choose the one that kills the germs even when mixed with water. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe! Be safe—and save money!

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)
The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds, prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Pepsodent Antiseptic is over 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, it kills germs even when diluted with water!

will bring out Idle Dollars

IT is hard to legislate money into activity, but values will stir it up.

Long-deferred purchases have built up imposing want lists. Many of these wants now are becoming more acute than the reluctance to part with money.

New styles, new or improved products, new uses for the old, better service .... values .... confidence—that is the kind of news which will increase buying.

Advertising will play an important part .... timely advertising in newspapers,—woven in with today's important news of reconstruction and recovery.

Philadelphia has a just claim for preferential consideration as a market: The greatest city of home owners; a billion dollar volume in retail sales; diverse manufacturing which tends to stabilize employment; higher-than-average incomes for workers; extensive rail facilities, and a great tidewater port—

Because Philadelphians prefer it, The Bulletin has grown to 558,184 net paid daily without premium, prize or contest. More than two and one-half times the circulation of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper; greater than the total of all morning newspapers.

Advertising results have given The Bulletin, in six days, more individual store advertisements than all other morning and evening, daily and Sunday, newspapers combined .... and a greater total of all advertising, in six days, than any Philadelphia seven-day newspaper.

Seldom is newspaper choice so clear-cut. Rarely does one newspaper cover a great metropolitan market. And nowhere is the advertising cost so low!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A VICTORY FOR REVISION.

The vote in the house of representatives in favor of submitting revision of the eighteenth amendment to the people exceeded the expectations of the proponents of revision and gives some slight indication of the strong trend of public opinion away from the prohibition régime. That legislators could be put definitely on record for or against giving the people a chance to speak was a legislative victory and permits constituencies to act with full knowledge in the next elections to congress. The movement for revision has broken through the obstructions which organized bigotry has maintained up to this time and is on its way to success. A new stage of the fight for restoration of the American constitutional order has begun.

TAXES AND LIVING COSTS.

The opposition in congress to the sales tax has emphasized the fact that the tax must increase the costs of living and therefore lower the living standards of the American people. There is no doubt that this is true. It is curious that congressmen have failed to see that the argument applies with equal force to any tax which may be imposed. Any money which the government takes is thereby withdrawn from the purchasing or investing power of the country. Some taxes may prove less punishing to one section of the population than another, but any tax, however carefully devised, is bound to cripple the economic life of the country in direct proportion to the amount of the levy.

What is paid to the government cannot be spent for bread and butter, for education, for real estate, for bonds, or for repairing the teeth. Those who are criticizing the sales tax should carry their thinking a step farther. The remedy for the evil they foresee is the reduction of government expenditures. That will reduce the amount of taxation and to that extent promote business recovery.

WITHDRAWING AN ANCIENT RIGHT.

Senator Norris thinks that parties suing or sued in a state of which they are not citizens ought to be deprived of the right to sue in the first instance or have a suit removed to the federal courts. These rights have been recognized in the federal law virtually since the beginning of the republic. They were founded on a recognition that local interest or prejudice was likely to operate in some cases against a just decision in state courts. Senator Norris and others think that danger no longer exists, or, rather, they pretend to think so. Common experience does not support their theory. The assertion that there is no prejudice in Nebraska or Kansas or the Dakotas against the people or enterprises of New York or New Jersey is grotesque. The press and politicians of Nebraska and Kansas and the Dakotas reveal the opposite repeatedly.

Senator Norris' bill, No. 939, would prevent a suit between citizens of different states from being brought in or removed to the federal courts. Corporations are treated as persons. His alternative bill, No. 937, while it grants jurisdiction in suits between citizens of different states, provides that where an outside corporation "carries on business in a state other than one wherein it has been organized it shall, for purposes of jurisdiction in a District court of the United States, be treated as a citizen of such state wherein it carries on business as respects all suits brought within that state between itself and residents thereof and arising out of the business carried on in such state." There might be some justification for this provision if it related to corporations licensed to do business in a state other than a state of its creation, but the amendment has to do with the fact of doing business, an involved and doubtful legal question, which would require much litigation to define.

However, the main objection to withdrawing from noncitizens, individual or corporate, the right of access to the federal courts is ignored by both these bills. It has been pointed out that states which need foreign investment and foreign enterprise for their development will find that resource reduced materially if the right to seek protection in the federal courts from local self-interest and prejudice is withdrawn. But we suppose that this argument does not appeal to Senator Norris, whose socialistic preferences are hostile to all private enterprise. His reliance for state development, no doubt, is in drawing liberally on the federal treasury for Nebraska. Nebraska pays in only $170,000 more than it draws out of the federal till, and there are thirteen states west and south which get substantially more than they pay back to Uncle Sam. Probably their representatives will be found supporting the Norris bill. State development at the expense of the taxpayers of the nation is a system which is calculated to moderate any fears the states benefiting may have felt lest private investment and enterprise should be discouraged. But representatives of the contributing states would do well to see that Senator Norris' measures do not become law.

THE GERMAN ELECTION.

While the failure of President Hindenburg to receive a clear majority at the first voting is greatly regretted throughout the United States, as no doubt elsewhere, the probability if not certainty of his success in the second voting is reassuring. The number of votes cast for Hitler and for the Communist candidate, to say nothing of the two others, indicates that discontent with the moderate régime is formidable enough to cause plenty of trouble in Germany, but with Hindenburg as head of the state reckless experimentation in international affairs is a danger avoided for a while at least, and Chancellor Bruening should be able to work more effectively for substantial readjustments.

We are not inclined to prediction, for the stability of the German republic depends upon many factors which are not easily controlled even by wise statesmanship. But the election keeps policy for the time being in the hands of moderate men, and there are reasons to hope that the trend is gradually yet noticeably toward a better international coöperation. Hitlerism, though perhaps it was not taken as seriously in France as some of the French politicians would have had us believe, was and is a threat to better relations between France and Germany, and upon the development of better relations the peace, if not, indeed, the possibility, of European restoration depends. At any rate, the fears aroused by the strength shown at the preceding elections by Hitler's party were obstructive to progress toward conciliation and agreement and it should now be possible to take some definite steps forward to firmer ground.

Hitlerism will continue to be a disturbing factor, no doubt, but, at least to outside observation, it does not seem to be a force likely to grow unless events are critically unfortunate and the efforts of Chancellor Bruening to relieve pressure and to work out a better understanding are failures. With a growing disposition among Germany's creditors to consider readjustments, the prospect of better relations, and therefore of stabilization and recovery in Europe, is improving. A more decisive victory for President Hindenburg was desirable, but ground has been gained for European stability.

A WATERWAY BY OCTOBER.

The last contract for the construction of the Illinois waterway, covering the building of a retaining wall at Joliet, is to be let about April 1. It is expected that the work will have been completed by October, six months ahead of the schedule originally set.

Much of the credit for this accomplishment belongs to Col. Daniel Sultan, United States district engineer. He viewed the waterway as something to be completed as quickly as sound engineering would permit. Before he took over, delay had succeeded postponement. Under his direction the work has been pushed steadily. Had his method been pursued from the start the waterway for which the state made its first appropriation in 1908 would have been completed twenty years ago.

FASTER TIME TO THE WEST.

The substantial reduction in the running time of the Chicago and North Western's train to Yellowstone—a third of a day—is the latest reported advance in railway service. It is welcome evidence of the awakening of railway management to the importance of higher speed. With this, one of the chief advantages the railway has potentially over motor transport, its competition, we are convinced, is going to enter a new and more successful stage, to the great benefit of both the railways and the traveling public.

Motor transport has its limitations as well as its own field. But especially for the long haul the modern railway vehicle, which the enterprise of the Pullman company has been steadily improving, running swiftly on steel rails and well ballasted roadbeds, has no equal. Add the speed obtainable by modern equipment and methods and the railways will regain and keep much of the passenger traffic they have lost in recent years.

This is in the interest of the traveling public, which is a large proportion of our whole public, and should be encouraged and supported by freeing the railroads from improper restrictions and in the present emergency giving them such aid as will enable them not only to escape insolvency but to modernize equipment and improve operative standards. The exhibition of initiative in self-improvement under present difficulties will do much toward bringing about the assistance the railways need for their prosperity and progress.

Editorial of the Day

"ALFALFA BILL" GOES EAST.

[The Peoria Transcript.]

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray, governor of Oklahoma and presidential candidate, plans to invade the east in support of his campaign. It appears from advance announcements of the speaking tour that he has laid out that he proposes to give to the east some of the same medicine he has been prescribing for the southwest.

Considering the fact that several straw polls—notably the one in Iowa—indicate that he may receive more support than newspaper correspondents think he will get, his intention to invade the east is significant. What effect, if any, it will have upon his candidacy is not especially important. He is not politically available or factionally desirable from the standpoint of the Democratic party. He will not be nominated. Nor can he, considering the radical nature of his personal platform, expect to use any support he may receive in the convention for trading purposes. But the invasion, unimportant politically because "Alfalfa Bill" is unimportant politically, may turn out to be interesting socially.

The Oklahoma governor will bring to the east a personality as fresh as a southwest breeze and a mind as agile as a prairie dog. He talks like a demagogue, and although his followers insist he is anything but that, he will appeal to the east as modern and amusing. He has a store of quaint wisdom, and is by no means sophisticated. In politics he is a maverick. In social science and economics he is an individualist who talks about weird policies of banking, taxation, and social regulation.

In many ways "Alfalfa Bill" will be good for the east. Discontented now because of business recession, the east is inclined to be apathetic toward politics and government or desperately anxious to do something to save the economic structure. "Alfalfa Bill" tosses off panaceas so easily that he will probably revive the waning sense of humor of the Atlantic seaboard and even bring smiles to grim lipped New England.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the line, let the quips fall where they may.

SCIENTISTS ANNOUNCE with much pride and complacency the opening of the tomb on the Island of Cypress of a young woman who died over four thousand years ago. And goody, goody, she had on a pair of gold earrings and two solid silver hairpins, all of which will look swell in a museum. The scientists that prowl around our grave four thousands years more or less from now are not going to do so well. All they're going to find is some ashes in a sardine tin marked "Extra Fine" and the name of the crematory that did the job. The "Extra Fine," however, will refer to the sardines that once tenanted the tin can, not to us.

TO ——.

Old memories steal back sometimes, dear heart,
And then it is I need you most of all.
There'll come a day when we no more will part,
When you no longer will be serf and thrall
To sordidness and weary, dragging days,
To sleepless nights and endless tasks undone,
When once again you'll traverse gayer ways,
And all your windows open to the sun.

But now we must ignore the present while,
Forget its raucous and discordant screams,
Assume a brave if still a wistful smile,
And live as far as possible in dreams;
Old hurts will heal, old nightmares fade away,
So here, my dear, is to the dawning day!

YACHTSMEN OFF THE COAST of southern California report that pirates have again appeared and are looting all ships that fall into their clutches. We deeply deplore pirates and their custom of removing the ears of their captives and nailing them to the masthead. We never could understand how it added either in beauty or utility to the mastheads. And then the dirty joke habit the pirates had of compelling their victims to walk out on a plank which ended right short off just above the spot in the ocean where it was five or ten miles deep never got a laugh out of us. But, after all, even when we recall Captain Kidd, Stede Bonnet, Bartholomew Roberts, and other eminent pirates, we still think we'd rather fall into their hands than into the clutches of our modern racketeers, bandits, kidnapers, gangsters, and so on. They had their faults, did the pirates, but at least they were picturesque, which is much more than you can say for the outlaws that harass us today.

THA DUKE CONSIDERS A NEW LEASE

Dick: Me and tha B and C sit down the other night an do a little figgering. Fer once we did'n do any fighting (that is, I did'n), we got a problem what I'll bet Einstein cood'n solve. Ya see our lease is up May 1st an tha landlord tells us he will be glad to renew it if we could pay last Aug. an Sept. rent. Tha Mama claims that if we do this act we oughta get a reduction of at least 10 bucks, 2 mo. concession and a entire redecorating job. I'm a little scared to pop this to his nibs fer fear he'll shove tha dotted line at me. I been gypped so dammuch lately I feel that I gotta watch my step. My idea is to disregard tha back rent entirely an sign a new lease by paying 2 months rent, said rent to apply against the last 2 months of tha new lease. This way he cood'n shove us out an if he did he'd hafta let us back in again fer 2 mos. In the days of 12 buck stove-heated flats Old Simon Legree wood stick a 5-day notice on your door. Seems now they aint got tha price of a notice. I was talking to Jim McGee the other day about landlords an he tells me he kicked hell out of his fer not gettin enough heat an now it's so hot in their dump that they cook on tha radiators thereby saving a lot of tha gas bill. Jim's now a big apple magnate, with an establishment on State St. (opposite a light pole). He aint paid rent since he's in his flat an is now hesitating about signing a new lease. Seems to think he can do better. The big sqwauk my landlord is complaining on is taxes. He tells me that fer the past 3 yrs. they have jumped him 50% a yr. This makes 150% which aint according to my arithmatic cause I was taught there aint nothin over 100%. When I asks him if he's paid anything he tells me he didn't so as far as I can see he shood give a damn if they boost it some more. He also tells me that he got a bad break lately when he reads that janitors got cut 10% cause he dont keep a janitor. Guess he's right on tha cut stuff cause I noticed the ash dumper next door sold his town car and is only driving tha limozine. After listening to woes fer 2 hrs. I suggested that tha landlord could save some dough if he occupied one of tha vacant flats in his own building an he tells me he hasn't got tha heart to move.

DUKE BAKRAK.

P. S.—Cause he owes 5 months rent where he's at.

THAT LIFE IS JUST A MATTER of contrasts seems to be demonstrated by the suicide of Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king. Kreuger had probably lost many millions lately, but he still had millions left, probably more than he lost, yet he killed himself. And there's many a man today out of work and with a family and not a cent left in the house pluckily tramping the street cold and sick, but with never a thought of giving up the battle. If we had been as rich as Ivar Kreuger was when his losses were heaviest, when he decided nothing mattered any more, we would have said, "Well, there's a few hundred million bucks we won't have to worry about any more." And then we'd bought a fine breakfast of ham and eggs and that pair of hand embroidered silk suspenders that we've wanted so long.

BUTCHER'S ITCH.

MOST of the eruptions on the hands, which in the good old days went by the name eczema, are now known to be due to exposure in connection with occupation. Recently an issue of a journal of industrial medicine contained six articles, each dealing with a kind of eczema caused by some exposure during a particular occupation.

There are surely one hundred kinds of eczema, each due to some occupation, and going by the name of the trade which causes it. The latest is butcher's itch. It appears that butchers have known of this trouble for a long time, just as bakers have been talking about baker's itch for a quarter of a century, but nobody paid any attention to them. Other names for it are swine itch, cattle itch, and sheep itch.

The eruption generally starts between the fingers. It extends over the back of the hands, and up the arms as far as the elbows. Other parts of the body are not affected. The eruption has the appearance of a red spot which itches intensely. Up to this point it appears to be hives, or to belong to the hives family. Presently small blisters appear and these are followed by oozing surfaces, scabs, and crusts. This later appearance is that formerly known as eczematous, and is quite unlike hives. The itching keeps up and that symptom suggests hives more than eczema.

It generally develops in men after they have been butchering meat for about a month. It tends to heal up and then break out again—to be cured, and to relapse. The behavior of the eruption suggests that the butcher becomes sensitized to something in meat or meat juices after he has been working at the business for a while, but, unlike most eruptions of the kind, butcher's itch tends to disappear spontaneously after several months. The skin seems to become immunized in the course of time.

Dr. B. Schwartz of the United States department of agriculture, who has investigated butcher's itch, finds it rather easily prevented, and cure is not difficult. To prevent it the butcher should wash his hands frequently in clean cold water. After that he should apply any good protective fat. In washing he should pay especial attention to the space between the fingers. The nails should be cared for. Washing in hot water does harm.

To cure, Dr. Schwartz recommends that the affected skin of the hands and arms be greased with any simple ointment. Any of the following are effective: Oxide of zinc ointment, vaseline, leaf lard, any of the skin creams and hand lotions. He says that vinegar locally applied is good, as is lemon juice. Butchers have considerable faith in these weak acids.

IT MAY BE SERIOUS.

Mrs. M. W. writes: What is meant by albumin in the urine? My son, 10 years old, was refused by an insurance company on that account. He has never had a sick day since he was a baby.

REPLY:

The kidneys are in contact with the blood. They remove water and some other chemicals therefrom, but when it comes to albumins they should be like the French troops at Verdun, whose battle cry was: "They shall not pass." Sometimes, however, this organ does let some albumin pass. This we call albuminuria. A simple chemical test reveals the condition.

The significance of the symptom varies. If the urine contains also casts, blood, and kidney cells, albuminuria may indicate a serious kidney disease. In children, especially of that age, it generally means Bright's disease, resulting from some form of infection such as scarlet fever, pneumonia, diphtheria, or even a sore throat, a common cold, rheumatism, or growing pains. The albuminuria which is encountered in rapidly growing older children, say 16 year olds, is less significant.

GET MEDICAL ATTENTION.

Mrs. G. writes: I am 30 years old, the mother of three children, and in very good health. About two weeks ago I started waking up nights with one hand, arm, and elbow "asleep." Rubbing and exercising seemed of no avail, but when I got up and moved around they would become normal. However, during the last week this numbness never leaves my fingers, and during the night they are not only numb but there is pain in each joint in the fingers, wrist, and elbow. I am still able to do my work, but am conscious of my hand every minute and it is very annoying.

REPLY:

You have neuritis in the nerves of your arm. Pressure was a factor and may still be. It calls for medical attention.

MAY REDUCE WAISTLINE.

A reader writes: Will using a rowing machine reduce the abdomen and thick waistline of middle-aged women?

REPLY:

It should do so if persisted in. The muscles which get most of the work in rowing are those of the back, neck, chest, and arms. But there is considerable bending and use of muscles of the abdomen and legs.

MUST PAY FOR REMOVAL.

Chicago, March 6.—[Friend of the People.]—Roots from a willow tree, between the curbing and the sidewalk in front of our house, are clogging up the sewer. Does the city remove the tree and clear the sewer? H. N.

We are mailing the writer a permit to remove the willow tree, the roots of which are clogging up the sewer in front of his home. The city can remove live trees only at the expense of the property owner.

COLLECTING LOAN.

Chicago, March 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Five years ago I loaned a man $5,000 on his note. He has never returned it nor paid interest. Sickness now compels me to get it. He claims he cannot pay. He owns his home with a small mortgage on it, has an automobile and a controlling interest in his company, a rather new concern, but apparently doing all right. Of these three assets, which could we lay claim to? G. R.

It seems probable that you could reach any one of the three. We advise you to place your claim in the hands of an attorney.

AUTOMATIC RENEWAL.

Chicago, March 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In August, 1929, I signed a lease for an apartment to expire July 31, 1930. The building was sold and in July, 1930, I signed a new lease with the new owner to expire in July, 1931. At the expiration of that lease I signed no new lease, but continued to occupy the apartment at a reduced rental. If I moved could the owner hold me for the rent until July, 1932? C. B. H.

Where a tenant under a lease for a definite term holds over beyond the term and the landlord accepts additional rent, these circumstances, in the absence of other circumstances showing a contrary intent on the part of the landlord, result in a renewal by implication so that neither party can terminate the tenancy nor increase the rent during such renewal.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX.

Brookfield, Ill., March 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Has a police magistrate the authority to collect delinquent 1928 personal property taxes? 2. Does he turn the payment over to the county collector, or is the money used for political purposes? G. J. F.

1. Yes, if they have been placed in his hands for collection.
2. Presumably he does.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

TIENTSIN, Oct. 2.—It is announced officially that 5,000 Japanese troops have arrived near Passiet bay near the Russian frontier. Previous to this announcement it was reported that a Japanese fleet had been sighted Sept. 28, ten miles from Shan Hai Kwan, 200 miles from Peking. Large bodies of Chinese troops have been drafted to that district in the last few days to prevent the Japanese from landing. Passiet bay is not far from Vladivostok, the great Russian stronghold and railroad terminus of the east.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—It is reported that 35,000 Japanese troops have been landed on Shan Tung coast between the Yellow river and Tientsin. If this is true the Japanese are within striking distance of Tientsin and may be preparing to push on to Peking, leaving the formidable Taku forts on their right. Tientsin is the port of Peking and is seventy miles distant from the capital.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 3.—It is reported that the Japanese have captured Kiu Lien Cheng on the eastern side of the Yalu river. One hundred and fifty thousand men have been gathered at Peking for the defense of the city, but of this number only 7,000 are effectively armed. A Japanese army has landed to the north of the Yellow river in the southern part of the Gulf of Pe Chi Li to intercept the transport of Chinese troops from the south to Tientsin. A Japanese fleet of seventeen ships is now blockading the Gulf of Pe Chi Li. It is reported that the Chinese soldiers who have retreated from Pingyang have taken up a position at Ngan.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The Evening News publishes the sensational statement that the cabinet council was called to consider a dispatch received from Minister O'Connor from Peking in which it was said that Russia was intriguing to assist China against Japan in return for the cession to Russia of certain ports of Corea. If this is true, the News says, it will be a question of sending first class British men-of-war to thwart Russia's intention.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 15, 1904.

LONDON.—Vice Admiral Makaroff, after taking the Port Arthur fleet outside the harbor, has blocked the entrance by sinking four steamers and is waiting with steam up to do battle with the Japanese fleet. This is the news brought during the night from Newchwang and Yinkow. The action is interpreted by naval experts in London as an indication of an intention to battle the Japanese fleet at once. The Daily Telegraph's Tokio correspondent sends a rumor that Japanese marines have landed and occupied Dalny.

YINKOW.—There are signs that Russia is preparing to withdraw from the Liaotung peninsula. Premature reports of the evacuation of Port Arthur were caused by the flight of all non-combatants and the movements of troops preparatory to a retreat. It is secretly admitted at Port Arthur and Newchwang that the Russians will fall back to Mukden and perhaps to Harbin to wait for the mobilization of 500,000 troops.

TOKIO.—Viceroy Alexieff's report that a Japanese torpedo boat destroyer was sunk and the cruiser Takasago heavily damaged by the shell fire of the Russians during the attack on Port Arthur is officially pronounced untrue.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 15, 1916.

EL PASO, Tex.—Reports from Deming and other sources are to the effect that the invasion of Mexico by the United States army under command of Brig. Gen. J. J. Pershing began at 2:30 this morning. Gen. Pershing has taken control of the telephone and telegraph wires running out of Columbus, N. M., under a military censorship as strict as that in Europe. It is the announced plan of Gen. Pershing to maintain this censorship until after the army has a sure footing on Mexican soil.

COLUMBUS, N. M.—The commanding officers of the Mexico expeditionary force issued orders tonight that the men should take with them only such equipment as they could carry on their backs or saddles. Extra clothing and the equipment known in the army as the "surplus kit" will be left behind.

DOUGLAS, Ariz.—Half a million cartridges consigned to Gen. Calles were seized here by United States soldiers. A heavy guard has been placed over them and the American authorities are trying to trace their source.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States army is to be raised to full war strength in order to carry out the "punitive expedition" against Villa.

LONDON.—After 36 hours of continuous bombardment of the French lines, the German infantry has begun what may prove to be the crucial attack against Verdun. Slight gains by the Germans are admitted by Paris.

SYMBOLS.

Chicago, March 10.—With a presidential election so close at hand, I wish to suggest a change of emblems for the Republican and Democratic parties. I believe that the elephant and the mule, respectively, are no longer appropriate insignia to represent them.

Elephants do not make a practice of hypocrisy. When they take a drink for their insides they usually throw an extra trunkful on their backs. Thus they are as wet on the outside as they are on the inside, whereas I believe that when the majority of Republicans take a drink for their insides they usually throw an extra trunkful on the back [end of their car], but pretend to be as dry on the outside as they are secretly wet on the inside.

Elephants are just the same today as they have been in the past. I think that they are, for the most part, very good natured workers and always ready to use their strength to help folks out of trouble, whereas I believe that the majority of Republicans are far from being the same today as in the past. I think that they are, for the most part, very good natured liars and always ready to help folks—particularly the American public—into trouble.

Therefore, I suggest that they change their emblem from that of the elephant to that of the wolf, dress him up in a suit of lamb's wool, put on him a high hat, a diamond stick pin, shirt studs, and ring, adding walking cane and gloves, and there they would have what I believe to be a more truly representative emblem of their party.

I suggest that the Democrats change their emblem from that of the mule to that of the giraffe. Its commanding view of everything going on around it, together with its ability to see a good way ahead, is suggestive of at least two excellent qualifications for any aspirant to public office, especially that of the presidency. A COMMON CITIZEN.

IGNORING THE SUBURBANITE.

Chicago, March 8.—Mr. D'Esposito's terminal plan has its virtues, but if a terminal is built at Roosevelt road the suburban service of the Rock Island and other roads leading to the La Salle street station will be seriously impaired. Thousands of people find the La Salle street station very convenient, but who would care to walk to the central part of the loop from a station located south of 12th street?

Furthermore, is there such an urgent need for more buildings, when there is a surplus of industrial and office space which will absorb the future needs for such space for many years? These dreams of city planners are not always practical, it seems. READER.

THE IRONING OF COLLARS.

Chicago, March 11.—Now that the "snoring situation" seems to be well in hand, I wonder if some experienced housewife can tell me how to iron attached collars, especially on white shirts, without getting them all wrinkled and creased.

Hubby is a city employé, so I can't possibly have the ironing done outside. JUST A BRIDE.

A PLEDGE AND A PROGRAM.

Chicago, March 1.—As a reader of THE TRIBUNE I admire your editorials, and especially the one appearing in this morning's edition entitled "Economy Pledge." As a candidate for nomination by the Republican party for representative in congress for the 9th congressional district of Illinois, I wish to pledge "to work and vote for drastic retrenchment of federal expenditures."

I have formulated a definite platform whereby the federal government, in utilizing state and municipal bonds, can issue a scientific asset currency. The result is to place more currency in circulation and reduce taxation.

OBSERVER.

A CANDIDATE'S REMARKS.

Chicago, March 10.—Listening to Judge Michael Feinberg on the radio the other evening I certainly marveled at the tactics of these politicians when they are running for a job.

Feinberg is so solicitious for the bank depositors, the poor people whose whole savings are lost or tied up in the many closed banks. He is so sorry for them. Why? Because it makes good campaign material.

Why doesn't he tell the people that the man behind him, the man who with his ward committeemen and ward workers is doing everything in his power to push him into the state's attorney's office, is Robert E. Crowe, the man from whose law firm—Crowe, Savage & Gorman—a bill went out the other day, a bill for $49,000, O. K.'d by their friend Oscar Nelson, to be paid by the poor depositors of the Garfield State bank.

Why doesn't he say something about the political receivers who have been appointed to the many closed banks, about the money they are wasting. Why? Because he is a politician's politician and he is for them.

WIFE TELLS HER SIDE IN "SPYING" DIVORCE BATTLE

Mate's Activity No Secret, Mrs. Reinken Says.

Mrs. Louise Marian Reinken, 37 years old, who is fighting the divorce suit of her husband, Dietrich G. Reinken, 70 years old, Gold Coast interior decorator, testified yesterday before Circuit Judge Craig Hood that her husband's spying activities, revealed in a previous hearing, were no secret to her and that she herself had observed her husband's bald head in a window of the Maryland hotel opposite her apartment in the Delaware towers, 25 East Delaware place.

"And I never could mistake that head," she told Judge Hood.

In his bill for divorce Reinken charges desertion and adultery, and in her cross bill Mrs. Reinken charges desertion and conspiracy to defame her. Sleuth testimony that a necking party was seen in Mrs. Reinken's apartment in June and July, 1930, on six occasions, by means of binoculars from Maryland hotel windows has been introduced by Attorney Wilfred M. Doherty, counsel for Reinken.

Dentist Aids Wife.

The necking was being done by Dr. Ralph M. Grassle, 400 Irving Park boulevard, a dentist, and his fiancée, later his bride, the dentist testified in Mrs. Reinken's behalf.

Judge Hood, interrupting the cross-examination of Mrs. Reinken yesterday, asked her if she knew she was being shadowed by detectives prior to a raid Reinken led on her apartment on July 4, 1930, when she and Charles F. von Zukeschwerdt of Evanston, a roomer, were arrested in pajamas.

Not only did she see her husband and detectives watching her apartment, she said, but whenever she went to a food shop in the neighborhood various strange men tried to flirt with her, she said. When she complained to Reinken of the activities of his detectives, she said, he told her she should be examined, that she was losing her mind.

JUDGE HOOD—You kept the curtains down when you knew you were being watched, of course? A.—Yes, I kept them down. But I never undressed before the window. If I was going to undress I wouldn't do it in front of a window.

Knew of Spying Activities.

JUDGE HOOD—Did you tell Dr. Graessle and his sweetheart they were being spied upon? A.—They knew it all the time, but they were desperately in love.

Q.—They were so desperately in love they didn't care? A.—Yes.

At that point Attorney Doherty introduced checks totaling $3,674, or an average of more than $260 monthly, made out to and cashed by Mrs. Reinken, on her husband's account, from May, 1929, to July, 1930. No objection was made by former Judge Charles S. Cutting, attorney for Mrs. Reinken.

JUDGE HOOD—Did you love him, or did you marry him for a home? A.—I'll tell you, your honor, I never had so much respect for any one. I thought he was a God-fearing man.

Had Beautiful Ideals.

Judge Hood again questioned the witness as to whether she loved Reinken, whereupon she replied in her Alabama drawl:

"Well, I've known younger men, more my own age and everything. But I didn't care about them because they had no principles. I married Mr. Reinken because he had beautiful ideals, I thought. Then I found out later, after I thought I could learn to love him, that he didn't know what romance was—nor truth.

JUDGE HOOD—How soon after your marriage did you become disillusioned? A.—The second day. We had a quarrel about money.

JUDGE HOOD.—And your first trouble was about money and that's always been the trouble? A.—Not all money. There were other questions but the second day after our marriage he accused me of marrying him for his money, and I never got over it.

On cross-examination Mrs. Reinken said she met Von Zukeschwerdt at a church social in Wadley, Ala., in 1910 or 1911 and later attended an all-day basket picnic at the church with him, and that later he married another girl who attended the church socials. She next saw him in Christmas week, 1929, in Chicago, some months after she and Reinken were separated.

Questioned by Judge Hood as to whether she had not ceased living with Reinken as man and wife within a few months after marriage, she replied: "Your honor, we never were husband and wife."

HUBBY'S SLEUTHS FLIRTED WITH HER, WIFE SAYS

CITY GETS ALLY IN ITS FIGHT TO LOWER GAS RATE

Hearings Resumed Today Before I. C. C.

The case of the city of Chicago versus the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company will be resumed before the Illinois commerce commission at 10 o'clock this morning with a new ally on the city's side in the fight for lower gas rates.

The city's ally is the Illinois Municipal league, whose attorney, Harry R. Booth, will file an entry into the case as an intervening petitioner. Booth is an associate of David E. Lilienthal, authority on utility rates and member of the Wisconsin industrial commission.

Financial support for the city's fight will be sought from a committee of the city council this afternoon by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman. Mr. Grossman is seeking an appropriation to engage auditors to examine the gas company's books to determine whether a correct capital setup is being present to justify the rate the company is asking on the new natural-manufactured gas mixture.

What City Will Argue.

While Mr. Grossman has been forbidden by the commissioners to discuss the case in the newspapers, and while the hearings have not yet advanced to a point clearly indicating the issues, an inkling of the city's theory justifying a lower rate has been learned from other sources.

The hearings have brought out that some $78,000,000 represents the investment in the pipe line and equipment serving Chicago with natural gas from the Texas panhandle. The hearings have also shown that the utility companies concerned expect by amortization to reduce their capital investment to $32,000,000 within fifteen years.

But meanwhile, according to Mr. Grossman's interpretation, the companies wish to continue charging a rate based on the full sum of their investment. In other words, as one commentator expressed it, "the gas company expects to eat its cake and have it too."

Will Attack Billing System.

It is reported that Attorney Booth, whose primary concern is with natural gas rates in Illinois cities other than Chicago, will attempt to challenge the British thermal unit system of billing, a system which the commission permitted the companies to substitute for the cubic foot system when the new gas was introduced.

The commission has yet to make permanent its authorization for the new billing system. Hundreds of gas consumers in and outside Chicago contend their bills are greater under the new system than under the old.

Are you hard to please?

Black and white is one of the smartest things a woman can wear evenings.

Two other outstanding black and white numbers are from Lanvin. We have them both!

Patou's three blues are smartest in combination.

By all means see Lucile Paray's "Grege."

Watch for the new tucked sheers.

If nine-tenths of the dresses you see don't interest you . . . if you're "picayunish" about edges, seams and hidden details . . . if you'd rather have one really lovely dress than a half dozen "little specials". . . then come to the French Room. It's a quiet, unassuming spot on the Sixth Floor . . . but don't be fooled. It deals in important fashions . . . whether Chanel's new cornucopia silhouette or Vionnet's ice blue. The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Faire Chapelle is the stepdaughter of Ma Chapelle, who owns Flaxen's casino, a cafe of ill repute, near the waterfront of Port Bai. Faire and Aya, Ma's daughter by her first husband of dubious color, have been trained to assist in Flaxen's. The Chapelles are looked upon as outcasts by respectable island residents, and Faire feels their attitude keenly, because her father was of unimpeachable antecedents. He had brought her as a little girl into these unsavory surroundings and left her there at his death. She has kept aloof from all that Flaxen's represents.

Sir Philip Persian is governor and commander-in-chief of the Tama islands; Bai and St. Rosario. His young secretary and ward, Robert Grand, is involved in an affair with Mira Worcester, a faded beauty. Her husband has become suspicious. Malise Bookes, aid de camp of the governor, to avert a scandal asks Faire, as a favor to the governor, to clear Mira by proving it was she who'd been meeting young Grand secretly, threatening to close Flaxen's and have the Chapelles deported unless she consents. Sir Philip is furious with Bookes when he learns that Faire has been forced to accept Mira's guilt. He sends for Faire to try to make amends.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

GOING HOME.

Faire went on, still almost in a whisper, her head turned away as if she were communing with herself rather than with him.

"I've been so proud—of myself. Always kept out of the mud . . . always thought there was something beautiful, somehow, to save myself for, not in Port Bai! O, no! But somewhere in the world outside. I wanted to be different from Flaxen's. I was different."

"My dear," said Persian hurriedly and huskily, "you know you don't need to tell any man these things. He knows them."

"Too late."

"There is nothing for me to say," said Persian. "I delegated responsibility. I've hurt you—and myself. But I want to beg you, dear, to let me help you."

"'Help' me?"

"Somehow. Anyhow. You won't marry Robert?"

"How dare you send him to ask me!"

"I am sorry for it all, dear," he said steadily. "About the marriage—well, that's a man's first way of righting a wrong. You're proud and you reject it."

"Don't you want me to reject it?"

In a moment he was leaning over her again. "Yes. I want you to reject it. Do you suppose it delights me to think of you with any man?"

She lay very still in the chair, and he mastered himself again. "Listen," he said, moving from her back to the desk, "there must be something you want, something I can do. I want you to forgive me by letting me do it. Let me serve you, Faire Chapelle."

"My steamer will take you to Jamaica. I want you to go."

"What could there be that I want—that I could possibly have?"

"You want nothing?"

"Tell me. Go on. Go on."

She was on her feet in one lithe movement.

"Go on, Faire. Go on. You said: 'Hopeless'?"

She shook her head.

"I've no money. Not any at all, of my own."

"That is the least obstacle."

"It is the biggest obstacle of all."

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-two."

"You can go tomorrow," said Persian very gently.

"I can go tomorrow?"

He nodded, standing straight and still. His gray eyes darkened, looking at her as gently as he had spoken. She gave a little cry and pressed her hand to her mouth as if to check other broken cries of ecstasy and disbelief.

"So glad?" he mused, watching her.

"So glad . . . only it can't be true."

He opened a drawer of his desk and found a sailing list. "My steamer will take you to Jamaica. Thirty hours' steaming—you'll get a boat from Kingston almost at once. You can stay a night or so at the Myrtle Bank hotel." He paused and then said more grimly: "I want you to go!"

"Money?" she murmured again.

"I have asked you to let me do something for you. Don't be cowardly, dear. Don't be small. Take what you want." And he said with urgent impatience. "It is nothing to me."

"Thank you," she whispered.

He lifted a hand. "Don't thank me. I have been a brute and a swine." She denied that now protestingly. "I want to make some amends," he said. "I want you out of Bai, away from that gang. Mrs. Chapelle is your stepmother?"

"Yes."

He asked swiftly: "Do you know anything of your father's people? Have you people of the right sort in England?"

She put her hand inside the clinging coat, through her blouse. She found the oil silk belt she had made for herself to wear next her skin. Her fingers felt for the pouch that held the letter about which neither of the Chapelle women had ever known. As a child she had feared that it would be taken from her. As a woman, of habit she still guarded it. She drew it out. The creases were almost worn through, the pencilled scrawl nearly obliterated. There was a worn snapshot of a girl of perhaps her own age folded into it.

Persian took the letter and the snapshot, warm from her body. "Am I to read?"

He read:

"Poor little daughter, your father's dying and a dam' good job for all concerned. Some day you'll get off this accursed island, I pray. When you do, remember you belong to people who . . ." and the rest faded away except at the end: "This portrait is your sister, of whom your mother's people took care, and I haven't seen her since I came out here, or heard . . ."

"This is all you have?" Persian asked.

She nodded, trembling.

He looked at the snapshot hard—a vivid picture, catching a personality. "Who is it?" he muttered. "One knows her."

"Can you tell me who my sister is?"

"Bookes probably could say——" He stared at her and broke off. "I won't call him. I'll take it if I may." She nodded and he went out.

Malise Bookes was writing letters. "You want me, sir?"

"To look at a photograph. Can you tell me who it is?"

Bookes took the snapshot. And he concealed the shock of surprise and memory and emotion that shook him. His voice came steady: "It's—it's—I think Lady Rosewood, isn't it? You know, sir—Rosewood died and she went on with what she was doing before she married him—beauty stuff. She's the beauty specialist what's-her-name, Sheba in Grosvenor street. Related to the Brynnes."

"I thought you might know," said the governor briefly. "And before her marriage to Rosewood she was a Chapelle, eh?"

"Sister of Faire Chapelle."

Bookes was amazed then, disconcerted, abashed, struck by the irony of what he had done. "Queer, sir," he stammered sullenly, "queer, isn't it, if it is so? I—I'd forgotten her maiden name. I—met her a few times as Lady Rosewood . . . it's queer, you will admit."

"It doesn't improve on your blunder of the other night."

"Blunder, sir?"

"We'll drop it," said Persian coldly, "after I've asked you one thing. Why did you pick on Faire Chapelle?"

As they looked at each other Bookes thought: He knows why all right. But he only answered as before with plausible regret, yet sullen: "She seemed ideal, sir, and she had no objection."

Bookes kept his eyes squarely facing Persian's eyes. Their looks challenged, hardened, froze.

"Very well," said the governor. "That, as I say, is an end of the matter. She is leaving for Kingston tomorrow on her way home."

"Is she indeed, sir?" the aid answered, warm and suave. "I'm glad to hear it, for her sake." And an anger more savage than he was accustomed to feel for any cause shot through him.

Persian regarded him with steely reflective eyes that stated, 'You're a liar!' and turned on his heel abruptly.

Faire Chapelle stood exactly as he had left her, eloquent of suspense, agony, ecstasy, relief.

The big desk was between them.

Persian folded the snapshot again slowly into the letter. "Bookes is a perfect social directory. Your sister is Lady Rosewood, otherwise the beauty specialist called Sheba."

"O! My sister!"

She breathed it with a little sob of ecstasy. "My sister!"

He went on:

"As soon as you get to London go to your sister. Also make yourself known to other relations—the Brynnes, who have, I think, a place in Kent. You are going into a new world, child. I hope it will be good to you. I am going to cable to my lawyers, who will advise you in case of any necessity. And I would like to give you——"

He paused for what seemed a long while, Faire listening, and then went on: "I would like to give you letters to women relatives of mine. A girl wants decent kind of women about her. But no. No. Forget me. I go out of your life after intruding on it briefly and damnably. Only as a little sign of forgiveness to me I ask you to accept what money you want for your journey. The steamer can go tomorrow if you will be ready."

"You mean—the government steamer?"

"Yes."

"I can be ready." Her breath forsook her, her heart labored. "I have very few things. Very, very few."

"At midday then. I shall see you off. Don't tell even that family of yours until the last moment. I will arrange everything."

Substitute for Butter Getting Like Original

BY MARY MEADE.

Again economy and economical foods hold the floor. This time it's oleomargarine—margarine for short.

Margarine was originally intended as a substitute for butter. But it can scarcely be called a substitute any longer. Recent experimental and laboratory work has developed a product that so nearly resembles butter that the two can be distinguished only with difficulty. Even the nutritive value of butter, which at one time seemed to be the hardest characteristic to imitate, is being very nearly duplicated in the newer margarine products. It may not be a complete substitute, but it is just as digestible, is palatable and keeps better than the poorer grades of butter.

The need for such a substitute was the result of a deficiency of fats in Europe and a consequent increase of pressure of the European population on the supply of foods [fats included], thereby raising the price of butter.

In order to satisfactorily take the place of butter, the new product had to successfully and reasonably imitate its characteristics. That is, it must have a low melting point [butter melts on the tongue], the same plastic consistency [other fats are brittle when cold], must approach the flavor of butter, the smooth spreading properties, its behavior in cooking, and its appearance, color, etc. Besides this there is the nutritive value to be considered. Butter has long been considered one of our best and most abundant sources of vitamin A. Perfection in all of these branches is being more nearly approached every year. Improvement in flavor is probable, too.

Both animal and vegetable fats are used in varying amounts in the makeup of this inexpensive but worthy product. The ingredients vary with each manufacturer's formula. And the product varies with the ingredients. This is also true of the nutritive value. All margarines have a food value equal to that of their constituents. The choice of materials depends, of course, on their price and the resulting product. Vegetable oils, such as palm oil, cottonseed oil, coconut oil, etc., are used to a much greater extent now than animal fats, though animal fats impart a greater vitamin content to the product than do most oils. Margarine, in fact, is practically void of vitamins, unless they are added through the incorporation of cod liver oil or some such concentrated material.

Margarine has always been one of the most unjustly maligned foods. If the objections to the use of margarine as a substitute for butter are founded on nutritional grounds they must be based on the contention that the intake of vitamins is so reduced as to jeopardize the health of the consumer, or on the grounds that margarine is less digestible.

There is in reality slight difference in the degree of digestibility. Neither, in a normal balanced diet, do we depend on the intake of butter as a sole source of vitamins. If, however, our regular intake of vitamins is so low that we are able to create no reserve, then there might be a possible objection raised to the recommendation of the use of margarine. Margarine, and butter, too, for that matter, need to be supplemented with milk.

Love Flown, Girl Usually Sends Back Presents

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What to do with the presents and photographs that have been exchanged in happier days? Do you think they ought to be bundled up and returned to the sender when a permanent looking misunderstanding arises 'twixt the two?

Generally speaking, the attitude of the male and the female on this particular phase of a broken romance differs widely. So far as the average man is concerned the gifts were part of an investment in which he lost and the sooner he forgets about girl and gifts, the better. Rarely does he pursue the trinkets given in love's name.

The only time you hear of the male turning collector is when the gift represents property or properties of value with which he would like to invest another girl. For example, here is one of the male sex in a letter on my desk urging me to help him get back the engagement ring he gave one girl so that it might grace the finger of his new flame. When a man wants gifts back, they represent money—fairly big money. So, there's an economic motive in his madness.

But girls are ruled by other motives. True, some feel in honor bound to return gifts that were given them on the premise of a marriage union. They feel that they have no right to them. But I am afraid more girls feel the itch to bundle up those gifts, the man's photograph included, and send them back with the hope their return will prove a "stinger." They're meant to hurt. A last drive on the enemy, so to speak. The casualty accounts to date are so limited in number that girls might just as well abandon the practice and enjoy the gifts as much as they can.

Personally, I think the gifts belong where they were bestowed—that, outside of the engagement ring, they were purely voluntary contributions. The ring is different. It is a symbol of a pact. While it may be construued as a voluntary contribution, still it is a gift expected of a man to seal a certain contract. However, I recall a learned judge ruling the ring the girl's once it had been bestowed on her. Also, as recompense, in a way, for the months or years lost in devotion to the now absconded suitor. I suppose it is up to the girl and the value she attaches to the sparkler, sentimental or commercial. Ordinarily, she returns the ring because she feels in honor bound so to do.

SPRING 1932 FASHION REVIEW

PUBLISHED FRIDAY, MARCH 18

What's in fashion for Spring . . . How can you spend your money to the greatest advantage . . . Where can you try on the new models, see the new fabrics, study the new colors?

Friday's Chicago Tribune tells the complete story. On Friday this newspaper will place before the women of Chicago the most comprehensive fashion review ever attempted by any newspaper anywhere.

Women writers of the Chicago Tribune, co-operating with Rhea Seeger, Tribune fashion authority, have been busy getting the fascinating story for you. They have shopped the town from one end to the other. They have spent hours in the department stores and in the women's specialty shops. On Friday the results of their investigations will be yours.

They took along with them a squad of cameramen. In addition to the most thorough-going fashion articles you've ever read, you'll find the story retold in pictures. What a complete story, too! You'll find everything here from hats to shoes, perfumes to lipsticks. Don't miss it!

In the same pages Chicago merchants will tell you about their choicest offerings. You'll be surprised at how little a new Easter wardrobe will cost you. From all over the world they've brought fashion-right merchandise to Chicago. On Friday they'll tell you all about it. Don't forget . . . Daily Beauty Hints by Antoinette Donnelly

Woman Pens Her Story of Maeterlinck

Georgette Leblanc Tells of Life with Poet.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Souvenirs," by Georgette Leblanc. [Dutton]. Published today.

IF grand passions have survived the romantic poets, and if there is any present day record of them, Georgette Leblanc's "Souvenirs" will perforce be added to the list of such publications. For twenty years

GEORGETTE LEBLANC.

Georgette Leblanc and Maurice Maeterlinck lived together in what was such sternly marital seclusion that the world "married" them. They were spoken of as man and wife. They live in those strange dungeons of the past, newspaper "morgues," as man and wife. [How "morgues" came to be called that has always been to me a tantalizing research which I have never had time to pursue. The obvious reason of the clippings and pictures sheltered there for reference being "dead" is not good enough for me, for the blood of life still pulses through those documented envelopes ready at a moment's notice to give a throbbing reality to any future acts of the persons whose past they chronicle.] It was something of a surprise to me, as it will be to other readers, to find that they were never legally married.

It is no frivolous love affair which Mme. Leblanc chronicles, however, but almost a lifetime's devotion and spiritual union between one of the most spectacularly successful prima donnas of her day and the outstanding Belgian poet and Nobel prize winner. Through all of the almost miraculous success which came to Maeterlinck through "The Blue Bird" and "Pelleas and Melisande" and "Monna Vanna" and his almost frantically awaited volumes of essays, he and Georgette Leblanc lived together as man and wife and they were accepted as a ménage in every contemporary social circle.

Sees Herself Dedicated to Love.

Mme. Leblanc tells the story of those two decades with a passion that an apologia pro vita sua always enlists in its author. To her their love was one of the few great loves of all time. She sees herself dedicated to it as to a religion. She describes their strange, secluded introspective life as a phenomenon of love, not of genius [which it really was!]. The business of protecting the genius of Maeterlinck from any extraneous annoyance, even from the unavoidable physical disturbance of a squeaky door or a heavy footed servant fills more pages than ecstasies of love.

As a matter of fact, she reiterates that their love was one of the supernal unions of souls, but a good deal of the book is given over to the delineation of her sublimation of her own personality in the personality of the poet. In one chapter she says that so much did he "steal" of her personality and her ideas that she felt she should be named collaborator in his work, that it was impossible, with two minds so closely knit for two geniuses to exist, and she gave, through her love, her right to expression to him.

Takes Role of Sacrifice.

She makes herself out always as the one who sacrificed herself, always the one who protected, always the one who gave. One gathers from the end of the book that she believes she was done an unpardonable wrong by Maeterlinck's marriage to the young woman whom she had taken into their house six years before. The book charges that Maeterlinck was cold toward her, and that he refused to give her any financial aid in her later illness and in her difficulty in remaking a life which had been for twenty years devoted to Maeterlinck. She had interpreted his plays and operas so exclusively that her whole artistic reputation was founded on Maeterlinck. She writes he even refused to allow her to lecture about him. Such statements are both too little and too much. They are too much because they deal with reputations and too little because "Souvenirs" is a statement of emotional reactions.

Says Fanny Butcher of—

Mrs. Abraham Lincoln

By W. A. EVANS

"About no other mistress of the White House, except Mrs. Andrew Jackson, have there been so many vicious and vituperative tales as about Mary Todd Lincoln. . . . It has remained, however, for Dr. W. A. Evans to sift the fact from the fiction. . . . (in this) popular but scholarly treatise . . ." The author is well-known as editor of the "How to Keep Well" column of this paper. One might well conclude from his portrait that Abraham Lincoln became president due almost as much to Mrs. Lincoln's efforts as to his own. Illustrated. A few numbered copies still available on all rag paper at $7.50.

Muslin Frocks Borrow Tricks of Bygone Time

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — In-between dresses for summer evening wear are now a fixture of Paris fashions. These are frocks that have a pretense of sleeves, and that can get by in late daylight. The last word in chic is the muslin dress in this category. We've worn organdy frocks for evening in the last few seasons but the muslin dress is something different, for it is without starchy stiffness and lies as limp as chiffon.

Muslin frocks as seen in Paris styles are invariably white or cream, and this old fashioned material is used by the French dressmakers with the tricks and details of bygone epochs. It is chic to suggest the narrow silhouette of the Directoire and the latest muslin dresses for summer are cut on these lines. Refer to the accompanying sketch if you want to see exactly what the silhouette is. This is a cream colored muslin frock from Lyolene, and it has the sash and ruffle trimming which interpret perfectly the material and the epoch.

The simple bodice of this dress has a square neckline in front bordered by a narrow standing ruffle, at the hem of which is sewed a line of velvet violets. A wide ruffle covers the puff sleeves and borders the rounded back neckline. The violets edge this ruffle across the shoulders.

The skirt, narrow and gored, has five circular ruffles at the bottom, and the sash at the waistline has ruffled ends. This sash is half muslin, half violet colored velvet.

Richard Bennett Will Not Attend Daughter's Wedding

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 14.—In place of her father, Richard Bennett, veteran actor, who had to leave for Mexico City this week, C. Gardner Sullivan will give Joan Bennett away at her wedding Wednesday morning to Gene Markey.

As the plans now stand, none of the parents of bride or groom will be present at the ceremony to be performed by a Los Angeles judge in Miss Bennett's apartment on Wilshire boulevard. Several changes were made in the wedding plans over the weekend. It had been reported that the actress would be married by Father Michael Mullins of Beverly Hills Church of the Good Shepherd.

Mrs. Eugene Markey of Evanston, Ill., the groom's mother, visited her daughter-in-law-to-be during a short trip to Los Angeles which ended last week, and neither she nor Mr. Markey will be able to attend the nuptials.

Mrs. William B. Kelly of Chicago will be one of the twelve witnesses to attend the wedding at 11 a. m., after which fifty friends of the couple from the motion picture colony will be guests at a wedding breakfast. The twelve invited as witnesses include Capt. Alan Clayton, best man; Mr. Sullivan, representing the bride's father; Constance Bennett, the bride's sister, as matron of honor; Miss Bennett's husband, Marquis Henri Falaise; three year old Adrienne Fox, the bride's daughter by her former marriage, and the baby's nurse; Mr. and Mrs. William K. Howard, Mrs. Sullivan, Neil McCarthy, Dorothy Watkins, Frederick James.

Good morning!

"Prestige" records a distinct personal success for Ann Harding, and, in a lesser degree, for Melvyn Douglas, but those who see the film will remember it as one of the most unpleasant movies they have ever viewed.

The picture, which portrays life in the French jungle penal colony of Lao Bao, Indo-China, may be realistic to the nth degree. I can't say, for all I know about penal colonies is what I have read. That's all most of us know about cancer, too—or want to know—if you get the idea. Great is realism—but motion pictures are primarily for the entertainment of the masses, and discretion should be used by producers in their choice of subjects about which to grow realistic.

In this story a brave girl—daughter of a soldier—goes to join and marry her fiancé who is stationed at the God-forsaken and alligator-infested spot above mentioned. She finds him in a sad way, due to weather, alcohol and loneliness, and, for a time, finds existence tough sailing. But she never forgets that she's a soldier's daughter, whose father has taught her that the "prestige" of the white race will carry through those who never lower its flag.

She so inspires her despairing spouse that, by the end of the narrative, he has, single-handed, fought a regiment of mutinous blacks, found himself, and, forever justified Therese's pride and faith in him, and her loyalty to the man she has known him to be even in his most reprehensible moments.

Miss Harding is a lovely, lovely creature and never was she more a treat for the eyes than in "Prestige." Her portrayal of Therese Du Flos is a fine and appealing character study. And she has, I am sure, the voice of an angel. Anyhow, it's one of those voices you love to listen to and never forget. [Right there, you see, are three good reasons for seeing "Prestige."]

Melvyn Douglas is excellent as the husband. Likable, good-looking chap and a polished actor always. Adolphe Menjou is effective in his few entrances as the villain. Supporting rôles are well taken and it does your heart good to think of how many fellows got "extra" pay for blacking up and acting cantankerous. Sets, scenery, alligators, elephants, etc., are properly atmospheric. Direction's conscientious.

When Ann Harding saw this picture, I understand that she begged to buy it so that it might not be released—realizing, no doubt, that movie audiences do not like being left with dark brown tastes in their mouths.

"COSSACKS OF THE DON."
Produced by Amkino.
Directed by Olga Preobrazhenskaya and Mikail Pravov.
Presented at the Punch and Judy.
Featuring Emma Cessarskaya.

KIND: Russian drama. First made as a "silent." Sound has been added.
QUALITY: Just—fair.
ACTING: Acting! When the heroine emotes she emotes all over. Such heaving of breast and shoulders, such wildly rolling orbs, such mouthings, gesticulations and grovelings have not met these eyes since the days of the Theda Bara vogue.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Exquisite—at times. Poor at others.
DIRECTION: Intense.
SUBTITLES: Labored. In English.
STORY: I imagined that the "Don" would turn out to be a Don Pedro or a Don José or a Don Manuelo or a Don Juan—or something—but it transpired that the Don is a Russian river. The rich lands along its banks were given by the czars to the Cossacks in recognition of the latter's services in protecting royalty from any and all enemies, and here the Cossacks settled to farm, and raise families—and trouble.

Most of the incident of this picture is concerned with the grande passion between a married woman and the son of her next door neighbor. It is a turbulent affair with many side issues. A tragic enough story if the pantomime were not at times so unintentionally funny.

REMARKS: From all appearances the Punch and Judy theater is to become a little Russian theater. And the Russians intend to support their own if Saturday afternoon's packed house is any criterion.

See you soon!

MOVIE CLOSE-UP

I was quoted by the management of the Cinema theater in their movie ad as saying, "Brigitte Helm is another Garbo, and knows how to wear clothes." This was a misrepresentation. My comment on Miss Helm read as follows:

"Some will hold that Brigitte Helm is another Garbo, and rave about her. Others, as did I, will think her a stiff, starey-eyed, sleep-walker sort of pantomimist of no appeal whatsoever. She is striking looking in an emaciated fashion and knows how to wear clothes." MAE TINEE.

Declares 'Brainy' Children Are Tall and Good Looking

New York, March 14.—(AP)—Tall, heavy, strong, and good looking—that is the description of "brainy children" given today by Dr. Leta S. Hollingsworth, professor of the psychology of exceptional children at Teachers college, Columbia university.

"We found," Dr. Hollingsworth said, "that gifted adolescents exceed adolescents of average intelligence in beauty of face. They are taller, heavier and stronger than the others and superior in character.

"They are better in athletics than average children except, peculiarly enough, they find it difficult to lift their body weight. They are poor at chinning themselves or making a standing broad jump."

New Book Gives Landscape Plans for Small Homes

BY PAUL POTTER.

Hundreds of small lot and home owners who are anxious to develop the best possible landscaping at the most reasonable cost will be interested in a new and handsomely illustrated book of 48 pages and covers being supplied for TRIBUNE readers through its service bureau beginning today.

Through the farm and garden department, arrangements have been made to supply these copies through each of The Tribune public service offices at 25 cents. The book is titled "Landscape Designs for Your Garden" and contains designs for home grounds, planting plans, and photographs of gardens developed from such designs.

So far as the author, F. A. Cushing Smith, a fellow of the American Society of Landscape Architects, can learn, this work is the first which has set out the simple rudiments of landscape design, and supplied actual photographs of the development of the designs.

The material is different from that of most works on landscaping in that modest and typical suburban homes have been picked out, instead of the expensive and elaborate plans now available, which require modification for the ordinary home.

Church Federation Lenten Services Opened in Loop

Crowds of churchgoers of various denominations attended the opening service of the two weeks Lenten series yesterday at the Chicago Temple. The series is conducted by the Chicago Church federation. An organ recital by Arthur Dunham opened and closed the noonday service.

"Jesus did not reveal his greatest daring when he drove the money changers out of the temple or when he faced Pilate," declared the speaker, the Rev. Albert Bucker Coe, pastor of the First Congregational church of Oak Park. "His real daring was revealed when he looked upon a hungry mob and said: 'I am the bread of life.' The assertion was doubly daring when we consider that the people whom he addressed had eaten nothing for twenty-hours.

"The followers of Jesus must be equally daring at all time," the speaker continued. "As Americans we must be daring in these abnormal times by backing the President of the United States is his efforts to restore economic balance, by aiding the unemployed secure work, by giving of our substance and interest in the support of worthy plans for the future."

Society Attends Style Shows at Opening of Spring Season

Shops Crowded as Women's Interest Turns to New Wardrobes.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IF YOU think women aren't just as interested in clothes this spring as they always have been you are wrong for in spite of their activities in relief work, politics and all the serious affairs which occupy so much of the average society woman's time nowadays, she still has time to spend part of an afternoon seeing some pretty girls display the latest in spring fashions.

This was proven yesterday when two smart Michigan avenue shops had their spring openings with young women whose names make social news as hostesses and mannequins, for both shops were packed with smart audiences. At one on North Michigan Miss Dorothy Schmidt, president of the Junior league, and some of the most prominent members including Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Mrs. Walter McLallen III., Mrs. Williard Boyden, Miss Janet Kirk, Mrs. John L. Cochran, Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. Murray P. Brush Jr., and Miss Virginia Skinkle acted as hostesses, all dressed up in most attractive new spring outfits which well might have been used in a parade of fashion, but at this shop the mannequins were all professionals. One of them, however, the lovely Frances Weary, is a Junior league member and she came in for much admiring comment by her many friends who were there.

Lighthouse Aids Are Models.

At a South Michigan avenue shop the mannequins were a dozen of the best looking of the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids who did not lose their amateur standing even though they were paid for their services, for the money they earned goes to the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind. This fashion show was a real party with tea served afterwards and never have I seen such a crowd; during the performance the crowd bulged out the front and back doors and I am sure there couldn't have been another woman in the shop, unless she could have swung from the chandeller! Modeling were Mrs. Stanley Morrill, president of the Lighthouse; Mrs. Harry B. Clow Jr., Mrs. Oliver P. Kline, Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, Mrs. Bostford Young, Mrs. Sidney Strotz, Mrs. Clifford Templeton, Mrs. David Peck, Mrs. Gerald B. Horton, Miss Dorothy Moorehead, Miss Elizabeth Ricker, and Miss Betty Histed, each one as pretty as a picture in the five or six costumes she modeled.

An interesting and unusual feature of both shows was that the price of each costume was announced by the model and it was particularly nice for the women with limited clothes allowances this spring to realize how inexpensive good looking clothes are just now.

The Aids already are making plans for their annual supper dance at the Bal Tabarin, to be given this year on May 14. Miss Janet Kirk and Mrs. Edward A. Fargo Jr. are in charge of the ticket sale, Mrs. Clifford Templeton of table reservations. Miss Barbara Graf of the cigaret girls, Mrs. Tracy L. Turner Jr. of the features, and Miss Elizabeth Ricker of the entertainment.

Getting Spring Wardrobe Not Simple Affair

Many Capricious Models Await Shopper.

By Rhea Seeger.

AFTER you have seen all of the spring showings about town you'll agree that assembling your new wardrobe isn't going to be the simple and uncomplicated affair you thought it was going to be! As usual the great French designers are as capricious and even a little more changeable than the feminine personalities that wear their creations.

Vionnet still emphasizes femininity with dresses that are molded close to the figure, gracious, flowing, bias and circular treatments and this season she goes into the wrapping racket, scarfs, fichus or what ever you want to call them, that come around the front of the waist, cross, go around the back, cross again, and to the uninitiated cross, wrap and recross without any end in sight. But the result is super-feminine and most seductive. Her afternoon dresses sign up for the season with very short, snugly fitting bolero jackets . . . the sleeves are long with most of the wideness caught at the wrist in a narrow band or cuff. These same dresses without the bolero have either tiny cap sleeves or are sleeveless models that can be invited out to dinner or to dance.

Some Colors Startling.

Schiaparelli's things are as startling as they are colorful . . . the fabrics found in her collections are almost spectacular, nevertheless she is more widely copied in America than any other designer, because of the crisp, dashing, youthful and exciting way she takes with color, cut and cloth. Schiaparelli chose deeply crinkled crêpe for the most successful models, especially evening gowns, last season. This spring she clings to it faithfully and designs extremely smart blouses of the same fascinating stuff. Her tweeds and sports clothes fabrics are going to be hard to copy, at least cheaply. Schiaparelli also follows the leader (whoever he or she was) in placing the wandering waistline as high as possible.

Molyneux maintains his reliable reputation for wearing clothes but refuses to join the rest of his distinguished fellow creators in pushing the waistline beyond the normal anatomical position. His tailored daytime ensembles are simply perfect . . . his coats and suits are beyond compare and the mediocre copyist . . . and his color combinations are incomparably distinctive . . . all his spring models shown here in Chicago shops, parade the unmistakable evidence of his genius.

Americans Offer Excellent Models.

American designers are showing new spring things that cleverly outsmart many French models . . . clothes that are as American as ice cream sodas and iced water . . . good looking dresses, suits, gowns and sports clothes that make wardrobes to rave about. These same American houses adapt certain rather stilted and difficult French models into successes with good American breeziness and freedom . . . knowing the average American woman's likes and dislikes infinitely better than their French confreres, it is no wonder that the American designer and the originals made in America for American women are rapidly achieving a richly deserved popularity.

Whether you still believe in the supremacy of the great couturiers, or whether you are rabidly patriotic . . . whether you are able to spend pre-depression allowances for clothes or whether you are one of the great new enthusiastic army of shoppers who gayly stretch small budgets to unbelievable limits . . . your shopping tours for new spring clothes will be breath taking adventures this year, for clothes have never been so lovely, so individual, or so amazingly low in price.

Rock River Conference Will Be Held at Dixon

Dixon, Ill., March 14.—(AP)—The annual meeting of the Rock River Methodist Episcopal conference will be held in Dixon the first week of October, it was announced today.

Program for Today Crowded.

On today's list of events are the third of four talks on current events and recent books to be given by Mrs. Anthony French Merrill at 11 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club; a meeting of Le Cercle Francais at 2 o'clock at which Mrs. Dwight Smith will conduct a "causerie," Mrs. Louis P. Mann will sing and Henri David will talk on "Le Vocabulaire Miroir des Temps;" the last of five Lenten lectures for the benefit of the Chapel guild of the Cenacle, to be given by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Philip F. Mahoney at the residence of Mrs. Edward I. Cudahy, 1501 State parkway, the subject to be "The Philosophy of the Good Christian;" a Mexican fiesta to be given by the Junior Friends of Art at 2:30 in the afternoon at the Drake, and a tea at the Blackstone given by the English Speaking union at 3:30 o'clock.

In Winnetka this afternoon Mrs. Albert S. Gardner is giving a tea at 3 o'clock at her residence, 745 Ash street, for Ralph Church of Evanston, who is running for congress after 16 years in the state legislature at Springfield. Mrs. Eulalie Kober Stade of Wilmette will give a short program of piano selections, after which Mr. Church will make a brief talk, and then tea will be served. Mrs. John I. Shaw, Miss Lois Truesdale, Miss Lucie Jacobs, and Miss Margaret Emily Lynde pouring.

Mrs. Henry F. Tenney will open her residence at 193 Chestnut street in Winnetka Thursday of this week from 10 to 5 o'clock for a sale of articles from the shop of the Vocational Society for Shut-ins. Mrs. Langdon Pearce, Mrs. Laird Bell, and Mrs. Walter Strong will assist Mrs. Tenney as hostesses. Mrs. Dewes Bergweger is president of the society which aids so materially those unfortunate "shut-ins" who otherwise would have great difficulty in disposing of their handiwork.

"Germany After the Elections."

The Chicago Council on Foreign Relations is to have another of its popular luncheon discussions on Saturday at 12:30 o'clock at the Palmer house. Dr. Richard von Kuhlmann, former imperial Germany secretary of state for foreign affairs, will speak on "Germany After the Elections."

Among the important international agreements negotiated by Dr. von Kuhlmann were the treaties of Bucharest and Brest-Litovsk which eliminated Rumania and Russia from the world war. Prior to the outbreak of the war he was for many years counselor of legation at London. Since 1918 he has been active in industrial circles and is at present president of the Saar steel works. He has written a number of articles and his book, "Thoughts About Germany," will be published within a fortnight.

Social notes of interest:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed left last evening for Castle Hot Springs in Arizona. Chicago May Get Valuable Suit of Armor

Harding Seeks Piece for His Collection.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

THREE suits of armor—each one of noble strain—are to come out of Russia this summer. Chicago, if fortunate, will acquire at least one of these treasures for George F. Harding, the collector, will be among the bidders.

The Metropolitan museum of New York city, Clarence Mackay, and one more private collector in the east, have also indicated their interest in the pieces. At least four bidders, it appears, and only three suits of armor. But to judge by Mr. Harding's former success in assembling the finest private collection of armor in the world, there is little doubt that another knight of history will take form again in the medieval castle at 4853 Lake Park avenue—it will be the sixty-fifth.

This castle, an amazing place!

Collection Valued at $5,000,000.

There, and in the Harding home adjoining to the north, is all the romance of ancient Egypt, of medieval and modern Europe. Canvases of international repute, the finest of Oriental rugs, armor, bronzes, ivories, wood carvings, historic musical instruments—all of these pieces and many more form an collection valued by connoisseurs several years ago at more than $5,000,000. It represents the personal interests of Mr. Harding and his father, the late George F. Harding, who have scoured foreign continents for valuable objets d'art.

"Mr. Mackay told me recently his son had objected to some of his treasures as junk," said Mr. Harding, yesterday. "It reminded me that I used to make the same comment to my father. My first impulse when I went to Paris to settle his affairs a number of years back (he started the collection about 25 years ago) was to sell everything, but when I saw the spontaneous enthusiasm and heard the appraisals of noted connoisseurs, I caught the infection. The objects assumed new and exalted value in my eyes—so much so I became a collector."

Castle Copies French Chateau.

To describe the museum in its entirety, a stupendous task. Reminds me of President Hadley of Yale who, on being questioned by a convocation speaker about the length of his address, remarked, "Remember, you won't convert any one after the first 20 minutes." Not even 20 minutes is required to appreciate the worth of this collection, but hours and days are necessary to enjoy the contents of the old south side castle.

Patterned after an ancient French château in Bordeaux, the fortress is a particularly appropriate setting for the armor, the motif of the whole collection. "Of course, our space was too limited to copy every detail," said Mr. Harding, "but we at least have an exact duplicate of the old tower stairway. Do you remember climbing up in a lighthouse or the Washington or Lincoln monuments? Well, you went to the right as you followed the circular staircase and each lift was about six inches. This stairway is different—it goes to the left for the knights of old had to have their right hand free for defense. Then, too, the lifts are much higher to make climbing more difficult."

In the base of the tower is a duplicate of the old castle dungeon with a knight completely armed doing vigil. A perfect reproduction! 'Round about are the 64 suits of armor, many of them mounted on figures engaged in a joust, astride a horse, or off to battle.

"There is nothing so hard to acquire as armor," Mr. Harding further explained. "Our greatest painters today will be the masters 300 years hence but the German helmet used during the World War is all that is left of medieval armor. The suits either come from a museum or through private families—then only when they are in the notion to sell. English armor is the hardest to get for the nobility still retains most of it. Now that Spain is a republic, it should be easier to buy valuable pieces there."

The history and identity of armor is most frequently traced through detailed records left by makers and owners. Then, too, the owners were often fond of being painted in their favorite suits, and these portraits establish further proof of identity.

"Here is a little suit," Mr. Harding explained, "I paid more for than the castle, house, and all the ground. Over there is a boy's suit of armor given by Queen Victoria to the German Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm on his tenth birthday and that was worn by the prince of Malta. Some of these suits weigh only 45 pounds, some three times that much."

Closely associated with these great metal blankets are Mr. Harding's firearms—guns, ivory and gold inlaid, swords, maces, and sword canes. Best of all are those from the Bertha Krupp collection. "Rare, well, they're so rare they're rare," said Mr. Harding, "and I happened to be on the ground when the bidding was going on. I had both Mr. Mackay and the Metropolitan museum against me."

"Masterpiece Rug" a Treasure.

There are more treasures, hundreds more—in particular, the "masterpiece rug," a Kirman woven by five Persian court artists over a period of 12 years. According to custom, it was ordered by the present shah of Persia for the Grand Duke Alexis, the crown prince of Russia, and presented to him a few months before the beginning of the world war. After the overthrow of the Romanoff family the palace was looted and the rug fell into the hands of the bolsheviks and was taken to Geneva, Switzerland, to be sold.

The rug is an historical composition with Christ as the central figure. Around are the great figures of history—King Solomon, Romulus, Socrates, Napoleon, George Washington, and many more. Then still another border of great Babylonians and Assyrians. The designs woven in the fabrics, the motifs, the expressions in the faces all proclaim the rug a masterpiece.

There is a Rubens, a Van Dyke, a whole collection of Hans Larwin, the piano on which Lizst did his composing, an ivory of the bloodthirsty Assyrian king, Assur Bal Pal; a Dresden from Sarah Bernhardt, and the King Charles VII. clock that took first prize at a London exposition 101 years ago.

Perhaps you will see them a day hence in the Art institute or in a museum of their own, for it is Mr. Harding's intention to give the collection to the city.

"Because of my family's history, which is so intimately intertwined with my treasures, I will never countenance the thought of allocating my treasures among the nation's museums. They belong to Chicago."

SUFFERED FOR FORTY YEARS

Then One Lucky Day She Used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here is great news for sufferers from constipation. Read Mrs. Kendig's voluntary letter:

"For about forty years I had been praying for a lasting remedy for constipation and its attending evils, To make it short, I ate nothing but ALL-BRAN and a little broth. Since that time (about ten years ago) I have not taken any medicine. Have been well and entirely free from constipation."—Mrs. I. H. Kendig, R. F. D. 2, Lancaster, Penna.

Constipation is caused by lack of two things in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN furnishes both. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the wastes.

Isn't it much pleasanter to enjoy ALL-BRAN than to risk taking pills and drugs—so often harmful?

Two tablespoonsful daily will overcome most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, or use in cooking. It is not habit-forming. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Stiff Joints May Result in Stiff Brains

Walk Off Old Age; Keep Peppy.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Stiff in your joints—stiff in your brains—and heart." This line I caught in an article the other day.

We'll turn the heart interest over to the lovelorn adviser and repeat for our use here: "Stiff in your joints—stiff in your brains," and vote it a rattling good line to hang on a poster where every day it will be called to the attention.

It's so overpoweringly true! Terrifyingly true! Yet we go on day after day letting the joints jell—the brains ditto. Or, letting the brains jell—the joints ditto. After all, it is the brain you've got to put to work first, to dictate directions to the joints. O well, if there's going to be an argument about it, put them both to work at once and there won't be any jelling.

Not that you are expected at the joint-jelling age to sign up for a tennis tournament! There are certain activities that rightly belong to the unjelled joints of youth, and working strenuously at these is nothing short of crippling to the older members of the family.

You ought to see the women I saw the other night at the indoor skating rink — women of deb-daughter age, easily. And were they making their heels fly? Anyway, they were getting around that rink nobly, as well as with touching grace of motion—lovely motion of the body that skating gives. Well, we wouldn't advise that, either, as a first exercise after years of setting down to jell.

Walking we do indorse heartily for the woman who hasn't exercised "since she was a girl." Golfing, too, in season. Swimming where it is convenient. But stretching and deep breathing before an open window you can surely do without having to get the doctor on the run.

Navy Blue Woolen with Vivid Red Makes School Dress for Young Miss

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

A light topped bodice on this small girl's dress is unusually pretty. It stimulates a scalloped front closing, and a similar idea is carried out in the sleeves at the wrists. It will make up equally well in woolen, novelty cottons, or linen. Navy blue thin woolen with vivid red will make a darling school dress, and later on brown linen combined with yellow.

The pattern, 2702, comes in sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 10 requires 2 yards of 35 inch material with ⅞ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Technique of Praise Needs a Little Study

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

How much to praise a child—and how little—and what is the wisest way to do it?

It came to me, the other day, that we hadn't ever gone into that subject in this column. The importance of praise and encouragement—yes, we've emphasized that. But once agreed upon, then what?

It seems to me there are two ways of praising a child's achievement. One is to center your praise on him as a person. The other is to center it on his accomplishment. The latter is the more wholesome way and can serve to nourish his enthusiasm and enterprise without making him egotistical—or without getting him into the habit of doing things for praise.

The praise a child gets should be most of the time, either a great interest in his achievement, or an appreciation of his motives. Suppose your small daughter has done her first piece of carpentry. You will like it and let her know it. But chiefly you will show your interest in the details of how she made it, how long it took her, what tools she used, etc.

If it's your son and even though he hates chores, he's chopped kindling and laid two open fires, you will be pleased at this thoughtfulness, talking about how you love to have a fire all ready when you want it, and praise the way it's laid with lots of air between the sticks.

Then, of course, we will find that we need to change our ways of praising from age to age. But we won't get confused if we remember that praise has usually three purposes—one, to assure the children of our interest in what they do, another, to encourage them to further accomplishment, and third, if the thing is done for us, to make them feel our appreciation.

GASSY STOMACH TORTURE ENDS

"I am glad to say that ACIDINE helped me quicker than anything else I ever tried," says W. Rontz, Windgap, Pa. "I will tell you there are a good many people killed with this gas in the stomach. If you have a weak heart it is dangerous."

"Was in pain from gas on my stomach all of the time. I would become weak and faint," says G. H. Buzzerd, Bath, N. Y. "Could not eat much of anything until I used ACIDINE. Now I eat anything I want. ACIDINE is a Godsend for anybody troubled with gas."

End gas, sourness, heartburn, dizziness, sleeplessness, headache resulting from acidity. Maker guarantees ACIDINE ends your stomach trouble or money back. All druggists have ACIDINE.

KOTEX reduced in price

KOTEX reduces prices. Now, women who want the best, the most comfort-giving sanitary protection can easily afford it.

No question mark hovers over Kotex. No endless doubt as to how it was made, where, under what conditions.

Kotex, you know, is cut, folded, even packed by machine. Made of tested materials. In air-washed rooms. Inspected 76 times during the course of manufacture.

The fact that hospitals used 24,000,000 Kotex pads last year is reason enough for selecting Kotex.

Kotex provides perfect comfort—downy softness; quick, protective absorbency. Wear it on either side with equal safety. Disposable, of course. When buying it wrapped, make sure you get genuine Kotex.

Genuine Kotex—the best—now costs less the art of equitation. Mrs. Alfred H. Granger of 900 North Michigan avenue has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr., in New York, and is awaiting news from Mrs. Brown about her plans for a trip abroad before she makes definite plans for the spring and summer, for she may decide to go to France with Mrs. Brown. The Grangers' house in Lake Forest is rented to the junior Robert J. Dunhams until next fall, so there isn't a chance of the Grangers returning to Lake Forest for the summer. Mrs. Granger, by the way, has invited a number of her friends for Thursday afternoon of this week at 3:30 o'clock to hear Miss Marianne Willisch talk on "Austrian Enamels."

More News of the Travelers.

Mrs. Delano De Windt and her two daughters, Ruth and Mary, of Great Barrington, Mass., will arrive Thursday for a ten day visit with Mr. and Mrs. Heyliger A. De Windt of Winnetka.

Mrs. Francis Beidler and Francis Beidler of Lake Forest are at the Breakers in Palm Beach.

Mrs. George Plamondon will open her Wheaton residence in mid-April. She's prolonging her winter stay in town in order to work daily on plans for the spring flower show.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Gara of 1350 North State parkway and their son, Lincoln O'Gara of St. Paul, are motoring to Florida. They will be at Miami Beach for several weeks and will stay a while at Asheville on their way back to Chicago.

Garden Club Luncheon.

The Illinois Garden club board members showed their wisdom in the way of using flowers by limiting the decoration of the table for their luncheon yesterday at the Palmer house to one low bowl of snowy gardenias in the center of the table.

Most of the talk through the courses concerned the flower show which will open on April 2 at the Navy pier. The show will occupy almost the entire length of the north side of the pier and will include dozens of competitive exhibitions.

Among the new classes this year will be a 20 foot section border, mantel arrangements, children's playhouses, terrace gardens, and back door plots which should be of particular interest to city dwellers.

Hostesses at the luncheon included Mrs. George M. Kendall and Mrs. Joseph E. Callender, co-chairmen of the show; Mrs. George Plamondon, chairman of the hostess committee; Mrs. William L. Karcher, president of the Garden club of Illinois; Mrs. John T. Pirie, member of the executive committee; Mrs. Euclid Snow, editor of Garden Glories, the club's official publication; Mrs. D. M. Workman, Mrs. P. F. Oakes, and Mrs. Frank Kingsley of the publicity committee.

A preview of the flower show will be held on the night of April 1. Gov. and Mrs. Emmerson, Mayor Cermak, and a number of other officials have promised to attend. A special admittance price wil lbe charged for this opening ceremony.

New Orient Society Elects.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the New Orient society last Friday the following officers were chosen for the ensuing term: President, James H. Breasted; vice president, William R. Shepherd; secretary, Miss Catherine Cook; treasurer, John P. Kellogg.

The society is now incorporated under the membership laws of the state of Illinois, with headquarters in Chicago. The original national society, of which Prof. William R. Shepherd of Columbia university was president, will become a branch of the society and will work actively to establish similar groups in all the large university centers. The board of directors of the new corporation include Prof. Breasted, Martin Sprengling and Albert T. Olmstead of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago, Dr. Berthold Laufer and Henry Field of the Field museum, Edwin H. Cassells and John P. Kellogg.

The annual meeting of the American Oriental society will be held in Chicago March 29, 30 and 31, in the new oriental institute of the University of Chicago. An invitation to attend a smoker on the night of the 29th is extended to all members of the New Orient society.

Display Results of Hobbies

Mrs. William C. Kolbin showing a Chinese canister made in 1750 at the silver display at the hobby show.

Collectors

Members of the Chicago Woman's Aid ransacked their homes and demonstrated yesterday that women as well as men are hobby enthusiasts. The treasures were collected and placed on exhibit at the club headquarters, 185 North Michigan avenue, in the first hobby and handicraft exhibit.

Snuff boxes, the hobby of Mrs. Moses L. Rau, proved a popular collection of odd shaped and queerly carved bottles of many colors. Mrs. Clement C. Appel chose to exhibit her collection of china, wooden and ivory dogs, which she started collecting when a little girl. Mrs. B. Leo Steif brought her shelf of teapots, pitchers, and bottles; Mrs. Herbert Byfield her collection of antique jewelry, and Mrs. Maurice L. Rothschild her antique Sheffield and etchings.

The collection of purses and bags exhibited by Nathaniel A. Mayer contained a bag that had belonged to Josephine, wife of Napoleon. This was of white satin embroidered in gold. Mrs. Albert Stein had on display two clocks of ancient design with Hebraic numerals and decorated with Biblical characters in gold.

Washington Society

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann left today for Boston, where she spoke this evening, and will return tomorrow.

Mrs. Stimson, with the wives of other cabinet officers, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, and several of the other ladies of the Supreme court circle attended the annual "stunt" party of the Women's National Press club given in the ball rooms of the Willard hotel. The guests numbered about 250 and included the women representatives in congress.

Mr. and Mrs. David E. Finley have returned to Washington from a visit in the south with the former's mother and are now guests of Mrs. Finley's mother, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, until they sail for England the end of this month. Mr. Finley has been special assistant to the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Andrew Mellon, who shortly will leave for his new post as United States ambassador to London. Mr. Finley will accompany him as honorary counsellor of the embassy.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart, formerly of Chicago, returned to their home here today after spending several days in New York.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

In yesterday's play-a-problem we had one of the common garden variety of hands that all of us beyond the stage of the beginners should be able to learn to bid and play as well as the best. This was the hand:

NORTH
♥—8
♦—4,3
♣—10,9,8,5,4,3

WEST
♠—K,J,9,5
♥—K,Q,J,10,7,6
♦—K,10
♣—6

EAST
♠—6,2
♥—9,8,2
♦—Q,J,8,7,5
♣—A,7,2

SOUTH [Dealer]
♠—Q,10,7
♦—A,9,7,6
♣—K,Q,J

South dealt and bid one no-trump. He held a no-trump count of 16 and had high hopes that perhaps he and his partner would come somewhere near a game declaration. West, however, overcalled with two hearts. North passed. East, holding a minimum takeout, bid three diamonds. South, not daring to go on with no-trump and having been given no suit by his partner, reluctantly passed. West rebid his hearts. He held three high card tricks and in addition a six card heart suit. His rebid showed his partner that he held at least five hearts and that the partner could, therefore, support with normal holding in the suit [which means three small or A-x, K-x, or Q-x]. North again passed and East, having normal support, now bid four hearts, which closed the bidding. East had just three supporting tricks, but felt able to give West the last needed raise in hearts to game since West had not only rebid but had overcalled a one no-trump bid in the second hand position, which showed practically as much strength as an ordinary attacking overcall.

North opened with ♣ 10, which dummy took with the ♣ A. Dummy then led the ♦ 5, South played the A and West the K. West must keep that ♦ 10 for an entry to dummy's long diamonds. South led back the ♣ Q, which declarer trumped with the ♥ 10, and to the fifth trick declarer led the ♥ K and followed with the ♥ 6, which South took with the ♥ A. South led back the ♣ K, which declarer trumped with the ♥ J. Declarer then led the ♦ 10 and played the 7 on it from the dummy. He did this as he now has an entry in hearts to his dummy and he was a little afraid of the outstanding ♦ 9. To the eighth trick declarer then led the ♥ 7, which dummy overtook with the ♥ 9. Dummy then led out the ♦ Q and ♦ J and ♦ 8. To the twelfth trick dummy led the ♠ 6, South played the 7, declarer played the J, and North took with the A. North then led the ♣ 9, which declarer trumped with the ♥ Q. East and West making four odd and their game.

NORTH
♥—K,Q
♦—J,6,5
♣—K,Q,J,10,9

WEST [Dealer]
♠—A,9,8
♥—A,3,2
♦—A,Q,9,8,7

♠—K,Q,J,2
♥—6,5,4

SOUTH
♠—10,4,3
♥—J,10,9,8,7
♦—K,10,2
♣—4,3

Bid and play this hand and then compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

Avoid "DIRTY FACE"

Quick as a Wink

When there isn't time for a regular facial, don't despair. Use Daggett & Ramsdell's new Cleansing Cream. Quick as a wink it restores youthful loveliness, wipes away the last trace of "Dirty Face."

Perfect Cleansing Cream is the most modern of creams—made especially to meet today's demand for an instant, thorough skin cleanser. You'll marvel at the speed with which it liquefies, cleanses the deepest pores, leaves the skin naturally smooth and fresh.

Like Perfect Cold Cream, which has guarded the loveliness of countless numbers of women for more than forty years, this new Cleansing Cream of Daggett & Ramsdell's contains only the finest ingredients that money can buy. It costs much less than other creams in its class, and there's none better at any price.

La Argentina Gives Another Tonic for Blues

Throngs Pay Farewell to Noted Dancer.

BY HAZEL MOORE.

Orchestra hall was filled last night with a throng eager to bid Hail and Farewell to that favored dancing daughter of Spain, La Argentina, appearing in what was announced to be her last recital here until the fall of 1933.

Since her first appearance in Chicago three years ago, she has maintained the lead over any other dancer in the number of dance recitals. Her popularity seems as unfailing as her amazing vitality, a vitality that gives a vicarious lift to the jaded spirits of the income returner, and brings a smile to the face of the most devout depressionist. For Argentina's is a blithe spirit. Though her dances take her through a full range of stormy moods, it is in dances such as the rollicking peasant dance "Lagarterana," that she is best beloved, or in the flashing "Cordoba," where those bewitching little castanets cast their spell to such an extent that one all but forgets to watch the dance.

As a matter of fact the dance creations of La Argentina are all so decorated by the splendor of her costumes, and the glittering arabesques of her castanets, and the snapping of the fingers, that it is difficult to consider the dance as a technical composition. In the effort to do so, the conclusion is reached that the dances in themselves are excellent, the sense of costume as infallible as that of her distinguished operatic countrywoman, Lucrezia Bori, and that the moodful, musical glory of sound that she draws from her castanets is what I shall remember longest of Argentina.

Her program last night was drawn from familiar items of her repertoire with two new numbers added, a "Legend" to music by I. Albeniz, and "Cuba" [Rumba], both to music by Albeniz. As before she was assisted by her pianist accompanist, Luis Galve.

Bride

MRS. GERALD G. CLEARY.
[Bayhuff-Richter Photo.]

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell of 7401 Kingston avenue of the recent marriage of their daughter, Berenice, to Dr. Gerald G. Cleary, son of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Cleary of San Francisco. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in Del Monte, Cal., and are now residing in San Francisco.

Will Durant Urges Dowery to Encourage Marriages

Will Durant, author, speaking last night before 200 members of the Chicago Congregational club at the Hotel La Salle, urged a revival of the custom of giving dowries in an effort to encourage marriage. Modern marriage is delayed, he said, by economic self-sufficiency. The annual election of the club was held at the meeting. George R. Wilson, of the Union church, Hinsdale, was elected president.

Three Exhibits Get Attention of Art Critic

All-Illinois Sponsors Two Shows.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Three exhibits, each showing the work of but one artist, are of interest as the most recent openings. The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts sponsors two of them, that of paintings by Camilla Kenyon in the Florentine room, Congress hotel, and paintings by Andrew Dobos in the Revell alcove-gallery. The third exhibit is of water colors and drawings by Maxine Albro in the Palmolive Walden gallery.

Maxine Albro lives in San Francisco and is noted for her murals. Several of her sketches confess to mural qualities, several are distinctly sculptural. Her work is striking; the portraits are very effective. The street scenes are distinctly amusing and the one or two flower studies are exquisite.

Camilla Kenyon shows a group of interesting landscapes. Her technique is broad and generous and her color effects are charming. She has a varied palette and keeps her pictures tuned to a high key so the general effect she secures is one of light and freshness.

Her "Snow Scene" is delightful. The majority of the paintings, however, are of summer and fall, with one captivating "Quiet Pool" that tells in its tender green of spring. She is particularly and repeatedly successful in her rendering of sky, clouds and blue distance. Mrs. Kenyon's flower paintings are in a more quiet vein, beautifully done. "Yellow Roses," "Cosmos," and "Zinnias" are a trio it would be difficult to better.

Andrew Dobos, unless memory misleads me, is a member of the Palette and Chisel club. His painting is colorful. When it is unaffected by affectation and a straining for the picturesque it is decidedly good. One of his simplest but most striking pictures is "October," a trim sober recital of fall beauty in bands of warm color. His "Fruit and Vase" is a decorative painting with a swing to it. "White Swan" and "Green Plate" are exquisitely handled. It may be a mistaken impression but one feels "At Sundown," "Elena," "Indian Summer" and "Gypsy Trail" too concocted, according to formula. Yet this, as the other two exhibitions, is worth seeing.

THE STAGE

The Dramatic League of Chicago will end its subscription season at the Harris theater with the departure of "Experience Unnecessary" next Saturday night. The seventh play on its schedule will be represented by "Everybody's Welcome," the musical comedy that will come to the Apollo theater Saturday night, March 26. The league's subscribers will be given their usual privileges, and preferred seat locations, during the first four weeks of this engagement.

In a letter to its subscribers the league speaks of the disarrangement of theatrical plans caused by current economic conditions, and announces:

"This organization finds itself unable to provide a seventh play possessing the high quality which has marked the average of its offerings during the three seasons of its activity. . . . The league, in common with most artistic ventures, has had its due share of disappointments, some because of the failure of authors, here and abroad, to deliver plays per agreements made more than a year ago."

Nothing is said about plans for next season. During the three years of its existence the league has offered twenty plays to Chicago theatergoers. The continuance of its activities is problematical.

"The Chocolate Soldier" will finish its run at the Erlanger theater next Saturday night. The company, which has Vivienne Segal and Charles Purcell as stars, will move to Washington, with engagements in Philadelphia and Boston to follow.

"The Good Hope," by Hermann Heijermans, perhaps the most famous play to come out of Holland in this era, will be staged by the Goodman theater's school of acting next week. Performances will be given March 22, 23, 24, and 25. The next production in the series of children's plays at the Goodman will be "The Emperor's New Clothes." It will be given for Saturday matinees beginning on March 26.

The verdict of the New York critics on Mr. Ziegfeld's new musical comedy, called "Hot-Cha," contains the usual praise of the scenery and the usual deprecation of the libretto. The reviews might be summarized like this: "Hot-Cha" is not so warm-cha.

CUB BATTERS OVERWHELM GIANTS, 11 TO 5

IS NEW YORK'S GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM GOOD? YEA

21,708 See Gotham Name Champions.

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—It will not be necessary for the citizens of New York at large to gather at the wailing wall to share the misery of those who predicted an easy victory over Chicago in the Golden Glove bouts of 1931. The team that will represent New York in the intercity match, March 28, is molded from no common clay.

A crowd of 21,708, the largest in the history of Golden Gloves finals at Madison Square Garden, tonight saw the championship round of a tournament that drew a field of 5,300. The receipts of $42,150 also established a new record for the event. Both attendance and receipts, however, were under the high water marks at Chicago.

Improvement on 1931 Team.

The squad of 16 that New York will send against THE TRIBUNE team two weeks from tonight is better balanced than the team that lost, 13 bouts to 3, at Chicago Stadium last spring. Coaches, newspaper men and officials of the tournament rate the 1932 New York group the strongest since 1929.

New York has a chance to win at least one bout in each of the eight weights against Chicago and in one or two, notably the 135 pound division, there is opportunity for a sweep. The lightweight champion is Billy Hogan, an Irish boy who serves as a grocery clerk when he is not wielding gloves. He handles his dukes with enough finesse to whip most of the professionals of his weight. He showed ability to take it, too, in his fight with Bobby Carlton, a colored lad with a lot of aggressiveness. Carlton planted plenty of polthogues in the right places, but Hogan kept right on coming.

Hogan's trouble, if any, is that the caliber of his artillery doesn't jibe with the rest of his fistic armament. He can place his hits, but lacks the Babe Ruth slam. He will be up against Henry Rothier of Davenport, Ia., in the intercity match, a boy who showed he had an over the fence wallop by slowing up Danny Neenan in the Chicago finals.

Phagan vs. Kanterwitz.

Johnny Phagan, Chicago's welterweight champion, will meet a Jewish boy named Sam Kanterwitz, who carries a terrific wallop in his right hand. It was a punch with this weapon in the third round that won him the title from Barney Smith. They were battling about even until the last two minutes of the bout. Suddenly Kanterwitz lashed out that right and Smith went down like a moon eyed calf that had just been pole axed. He was up at the count of seven, bewildered and with no fixed notion as to where he was or what he was doing.

New York has another great fighter in Louis Salica, a flyweight who kept firing away at Julie Katz until the latter almost was shelled out of the ring. There have been few candidates for Golden Gloves with the aggressiveness and the eagerness to fight that mark Salica. He will give Al Soukop, the Chicago 112 pound title winner, a busy evening.

Phil Rogozzino, who won intercity and international welterweight titles under the name of Phil Dardell last year, was defeated by Mark Hough, colored, in the 160 pound finals. The decision was unpopular with the fans, who booed so loud and long that the succeeding match was lost in the din.

Phil Wins Third Round.

Hough had a shade in the first two rounds, but Rogozzino won the third. The Negro scored most of his points to the body in the chinches. It was a furious match, one of the best we have seen in amateur boxing. Both boys looked good enough on their showing to whip Chicago's middleweights.

John Rutherford, the Princeton student, won the heavyweight championship. His great size was an advantage that Jerry Wright could not overcome, and at the end of three rounds Wright was hanging on.

JONES-O'BRIEN BOUT HALTED BY COMMISSIONER

Holyoke, Mass., March 14.—(AP)—State Boxing Commissioner Daniel J. Kelly, in attendance here tonight, ordered the ten round feature between Gorilla Jones of Akron, and Frankie O'Brien of Hartford, stopped at the end of the eighth round. Kelly asserted the middleweights were not trying.

Referee Jack Watson thereupon disqualified Jones, whose purse was held up. O'Brien received the referee's verdict and the wages promised him.

CAMPBELL GETS 10 ROUND VERDICT OVER MANDELL

Miami, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Gus Campbell, Miami welterweight, was awarded a decision over Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, after a ten round fight here tonight. The Miami boy employed a two fisted body attack and earned the verdict with stiff counter punches to Mandell's body. He weighed 149, while Mandell scaled 154.

GOLDEN GLOVES PARTY ATTRACTS NEW YORK ELITE

From Row A Back Many Are the Notables.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—The fancy packed the old town hall this evening to watch the free will fighters spank one another about the ring in the final round of the New York Golden Gloves tournament, the boxing show which, among the amateur fist-fighters, corresponds to the quadrennial solemn referendum among the general body of our citizens. They crowded the new Garden from the pit to the rafters and the punching went on, all in a spirit of fun and sporting enthusiasm, from half after eight until the band played "Home Sweet Home."

This was the anti-climax of such a round of fist fighting as the world has never seen before, a whole program of tournaments which invited all the uncommercial boxers, common sluggers, pugnacious collegians, heavy duty laborers and ordinary corner bullies of all that territory lying within the large and populous region known as New York and that other equally bellicose, though slightly less populous area, Chicagoland.

Big Showdown March 28.

The New York district enfolds such rough, tough districts as Park avenue where the wine is no good if the clinical thermometer shows a fifth of a degree of variation from the precise ideal, and Perth Amboy and Newark, N. J., where the leading citizens work, when they can find work, among the salubrious gusts of heat and fumes from the pottery kilns and the oil cookeries.

This evening's fights were the final, the selecting round, for the New York region, the best fighters on the program of twenty bouts of three rounds or less to meet the champions of Chicagoland on March 28 in New York in the grand annual showdown.

High Quality Entertainment.

To assure you of the high quality of this evening's party one need only mention that the police commissioner, Mr. Ed Mulrooney, who has been called the ideal for all journeymen cops to aspire to, was sitting in the first row bobbing and weaving without the slightest self-consciousness. Ordinarily, at the fist fights in the Garden there are those among the front row company whom an honest and ethical police commissioner would not wish to be found dead in the same ward with, much less found alive in the same house with.

But this evening Mr. Mulrooney, with his ruddy patrolman's complexion and his little, gray, "Now tell us why you murdered the guy" eyes, sat in row A, on the aisle in no danger of compromise. Mr. Mulrooney is not a familiar prizefight customer, having, no doubt, more important duties and a sensitive regard for the thoughts that people might think if they were to see him sitting in the same row with the upper case public enemies at public jollifications.

Eddie Eagan at Ringside.

Also observed in the first row was Mr. Eddie Eagan, the old Olympic heavyweight champion boxer, the veritable Pop Geers of amateur boxers, who lately turned to journalism with his autobiography and thus incurred the annoyance of his old comrade, Gene Tunney. It seems that one magazine firm bought Mr. Tunney's memoirs, but could not get them onto the newstands before another one bought and published Mr. Eagan's. Though they had boxed amiably in many a social joust, always keeping the sport on a high plane, when the two boys descended to letters together they found themselves in a rivalry too harsh for friendship. It must be a dirty business, this journalism, which sets two old comrades at odds, or can it be that the art is a lower and more savage one than that of smashing men's plumbing apart with the fists?

Anyway, there was Mr. Eagan, an old amateur champion boxer and Olympic bobber, with his chin hooked over the rim of the dusty platform, his smashed nose looking strangely

Spears Rejects Wisconsin Bid; Prefers to Coach at Oregon

Eugene, Ore., March 14.—[Special.]—Dr. Clarence W. (Fat) Spears, University of Oregon football coach, today rejected an offer of $11,000 a year to become head coach at the University of Wisconsin.

DR. C. W. SPEARS.

Spears receives $11,500 annually for his work at Oregon, of which $6,500 is for coaching and the remainder for work as professor of physical education and physician in the health department.

His contract has three years to run, but the university was reported ready to release him if he cared to return to the central states, where he coached Minnesota football teams for several years.

"The Wisconsin offer was attractive, but I am satisfied with my present job and prefer to live in the west," Spears said.

TURN TO SUNDT?

Madison, Wis., March 14.—[Special.]—Dr. Clarence W. Spears, now at Oregon, declined the position of head football coach at Wisconsin, Athletic Director Irwin C. Uteritz announced tonight.

Negotiations immediately were started with candidates, and an appointment is expected by the end of the week.

With Spears out of the picture, it is likely that the regents and athletic council will turn to Guy Sundt, Wisconsin backfield coach. Sundt has stated that he will not accept the job even at a salary of $7,500, but it is believed he may have a change of heart.

If Sundt is appointed, he and Fred Swan, line coach, would likely work together.

There are no other condidates of national renown, and Sundt and Swan, being familiar with conditions, are considered as capable of directing the team as any other coach available.

DRAKE FREES SOLEM.

Des Moines, Ia., March 14.—[Special.]—The resignation of Ossie Solem as athletic director and football coach at Drake university, was accepted by the board of trustees today. This leaves Solem, whose contract had four years to run, free to accept the University of Iowa coaching position to which he was named Saturday.

The resignation becomes effective May 1.

GOPHERS CONSIDER METCALF.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 14.—[Special.]—It was learned today that Nelson Metcalf, athletic director at Iowa State, is being considered as H. O. [Fritz] Crisler's successor as athletic director at the University of Minnesota.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

PRACTICAL RELIEF.

At the time of the first drive to raise $10,000,000 for unemployment relief—not the present sale of state warrants—a certain corporation contributed $5,000. At the time it seemed to us rather a small amount for the importance of the concern and the number of men it normally employed.

Some time afterward The Wake had occasion to talk with an officer of this corporation and the subject of unemployment came up. Then we learned some additional facts. This firm made no money for two years. It is not paying dividends on its stock. It does not expect to pay dividends for at least two years more. Officers and executives have accepted two cuts in their remuneration. So much for the owners and higher ups in the company.

Lay-offs became necessary for financial preservation. Number of hours were first reduced in the effort to give at least part employment to the whole force. Times became worse instead of better. Lay-offs began and continued until less than half the normal force is working even part time.

But here's what interested us. No employé of this corporation is an applicant for public relief. Or if he is, it is his own choice. The company notified its employés that it would advance money to them from their anticipated future earnings for necessities—food and rent. The officer with whom we talked did not have the percentage figures of how many availed themselves of this offer, but said the amount in money was considerable. Continuing, he said:

"Many persons like yourself thought our $5,000 contribution was niggardly. We did no broadcasting but went to work to help our people. We not only told our men we wanted no families to go hungry but we sent our welfare workers into the homes to see what conditions were. These workers give helpful instruction in the preparation of economical yet nourishing food and in practical care of children.

"This was a duty to our employés, as we see it, and also humanitarian if you happen to think so. Those were the impelling motives. Naturally we expect greater loyalty and return of at least part of our investment when better times return. We do not ask any credit for this work or make public what we are doing. That's just between us and our men."

DEMPSEY BEATS FLU; TO RESUME TOUR TOMORROW

Toledo, O., March 14.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, former ruler of the heavyweights, recovered sufficiently from his slight attack of influenza to travel to Clarksburg, W. Va., tonight. Dempsey is scheduled to box an exhibition there Wednesday night.

Dempsey was confined to his bed here following his ring appearance Saturday night. Leonard Sacks, Dempsey's manager, reported tonight that Jack has a slight chest cold, but felt able to leave on a late train for Clarksburg.

Four bouts remain on Dempsey's exhibition tour, which has included more than one hundred fights. Besides the Clarksburg engagement he goes to Huntington, W. Va., then to Toronto, and concludes his tour, March 31, at Detroit.

WHITE SOX GLORY IN SUNSHINE; ALL RUSH OUT EARLY

Regulars Win Intraclub Game, 7 to 3.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 14.—The late Henry J. Cox, for many years boss of the United States weather bureau in Chicago, used to point out that the weather furnishes the only news that is front page copy in every newspaper every day of every year. So pardon us if we tell you that the weather in San Antonio was magnificent, making the White Sox very happy and doing much to catch them up on the eight days lost by the recent blizzard in these parts.

So eager are the lads to sop up on the glorious sunshine they are getting out to the field at 9 o'clock to begin practice each day. This is almost a record and very encouraging.

Scrub Games Each Morning.

This business of getting up at dawn is to continue, excepting Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday, until the Sox break camp here ten days from today. Moreover, scrub games are scheduled for 11 o'clock each morning, also with the foregoing exceptions, which are days when the team will play exhibitions—the University of Texas Longhorns on Thursday and the San Antonio Indians Saturday and Sunday.

The intraclub game this morning, which the regulars won, 7 to 3, saw two of last year's pitchers in action. Tommy Thomas, after retiring the regulars in order in the first inning, wabbled a bit and permitted three runs in the second and one in the third. The three run foray was accomplished through a double by Campbell, passes to Blue and Cissell, a long single by Jolley, and a long fly by Gaston. The second of Campbell's three hits, followed by singles by Blue and Selph, brought Tommy further embarrassment in the third.

Moore Pitches for Regulars.

Jim Moore was the other White Sox veteran pitcher who got into the affair. Jim held the Goofs away from first base for two innings, but a double by Appling and a single by Simons nicked him in his third round.

Lu Blue, who batted a thousand with three hits in a row in yesterday's game, got a walk and a single to keep his record intact until his third time at bat today, whereupon he failed to get on and resigned from the ball game.

Poser Tried on Mound.

Bobby Poser, who apparently isn't worrying as much as his papa about the University of Wisconsin ineligibility, continued to get a lot of attention from Manager Fonseca and other Sox officials. Bobby started the game in left field and later pitched three innings, which is a lot of notice to be given a college boy rookie, even where stars are scarce as here.

Bobby got pushed around on account of three instances of infielders failing to cover bases on infield taps. But despite all the confusion that these lapses precipitated the kid bore up well.

Vic Frasier, recent flu victim, made his first appearance in a uniform today, but moved about cautiously. It will be several days before he will do any throwing.

TO CUBS NEXT?

Ruth, Ruppert Talk ½ Hour; Score Still 0-0

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14.—[Special.]—A thirty minute conference on salary terms between Babe Ruth and Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, ended today with nothing accomplished.

Ruppert offered Ruth a one year contract for $70,000 and Babe came back with a counter proposal asking $80,000 for one season or $70,000 a year under a two year contract.

After the conference Ruppert appeared the more optimistic of the two. "About all I can say is we are getting a little warmer, but we have not reached any basis for agreement. We'll try again tomorrow morning," was the owner's statement.

Ruth said that he would not agree to a compromise, and then went out to play his daily round of golf.

"Going to sign in time to play against the Braves tomorrow, Babe?" somebody asked.

"It doesn't look like it now," Ruth replied.

Col. Ruppert insisted that he would oppose a two year contract with Babe, "unless he'll sign for $25,000 a year."

Observers pointed out that the negotiations have followed a course identical with those of two years ago, when Ruth triumphed by getting a two year contract at $80,000 a season.

It is the impression that both Ruppert and McCarthy were a bit displeased over Ruth's announcement that he would not play in the exhibition yesterday with the Braves. McCarthy first learned of Ruth's intention through local papers. The colonel had been under the impression yesterday that Ruth had asked McCarthy if it would be all right to stay out of exhibition work until he was signed, and he was displeased when he found Ruth had taken the matter in his own hands.

The betting here is that Ruth will have a harder time bringing Ruppert around to his viewpoint than he did in 1930.

Vince Dundee Puts Away Forgione in Fourth Round

Baltimore, Md., March 14.—(AP)—Vince Dundee, Newark, knocked out Vincent Forgione, Philadelphia, here tonight in the fourth round of a scheduled ten round bout. They are middleweights.

CINCINNATI GETS BABE HERMAN IN SIX PLAYER DEAL

Lombardi and Gilbert Also Sent to Reds.

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Floyd C. [Babe] Herman, the Brooklyn Dogers' heavy hitter and stubborn holdout, was traded today to the Cincinnati Reds. Along with Herman went Walter J. Gilbert, the Dodgers' third baseman, and Ernesto Lombardi, catcher. In return for these three players the Reds gave Joe Stripp of Irvington, N. J., third baseman; Anthony Cuccinello, an experienced infielder, and Clyde Sukeforth, catcher.

According to announcement, there was no cash involved in the deal, owners on both sides contenting themselves simply in transferring the players.

Herman, Stripp Holdouts.

The important players in the deal were both holdouts. Herman, who received $19,000 last season, refused to consider an offer of $15,000 submitted to him by Brooklyn in his 1932 contract. Stripp was holding out on the Reds for a different reason. He was not asked to take a cut, but the amount his contract involved did not suit him, and he had refused all efforts to be whipped into line.

The trade, which became effective today, culminates a series of rumors concerning Herman and Brooklyn. Early last week reports came out of both Tampa and Clearwater, the respective sites of the Reds and Robins, that a deal involving the above named players was brewing. Officials of both clubs, however, maintained silence until news was released officially today.

Babe's Batting Falls Off.

Herman did not come up to expectations last season. His batting fell off to .313, whereas he had been up with the leaders in the league for several seasons prior to that.

Herman, who is 28 years old, was purchased from the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league in 1925. He now finds himself the center of the biggest baseball deal of the year. However, Babe now must start negotiating with the Cincinnati club. It is doubtful that Sidney Weil, owner of the Reds, will raise the ante on the $15,000, which was offered by the Robins.

CUBS SEEK HERMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—Floyd [Babe] Herman traded today by Brooklyn to the Cincinnati Reds may not have to move to the new home picked for him. The Cubs, sorely in need of a hitting outfielder, and with plenty of cash to strengthen their argument, may attempt negotiations with Cincinnati. Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cubs, and William Veeck, the club president, are reported to have conferred on the proposition this evening as soon as they learned of Herman's transfer.

It has been known for many days that Hornsby has pointed out to Veeck the necessity of getting more hitting strength if the Cubs are to be serious contenders in the impending campaign. Veeck is in sympathy with such a step, but thus far has pleaded that no worthwhile man is available.

Herman Watches Cubs.

Herman, plainly shocked by the news of his trade to the Reds, was a spectator at the Cubs-Giants game at Wrigley field this afternoon, but under the rule which prohibits tampering with players, Veeck was unable to say anything more than "Howdy!" to him. Herman however voiced a hope that he might be switched to the Cubs.

Herman last season was a $19,000 per year workman. This year he was offered $15,000 and intended to accept the cut without complaint until he heard of the Dodgers signing Hack Wilson at $17,000. Herman immediately demanded $17,500 on the basis that he was a better playing article than the dethroned home run king.

The Cubs, if Cincinnati should express willingness to listen to a proposition, might bid as high as $75,000 for Herman.

ENGLISH LEADS PARADE WITH 3 SINGLES, HOMER

Hartnett Also Hits for Circuit.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—After being impotent as hitters for so long that they were causing some anxiety, the Cubs finally got going in the right direction today. They slapped the ball at a merry old clip and thereby evened up the spring series with the New York Giants at three victories apiece. The score this afternoon was 11 to 5 and there were more actors in the game than spectators in the grand stand. The air was just a bit chilly, so the natives stayed at home with their gas heaters.

Undoubtedly because they were anxious to prove that their previous futile efforts against McGraw's pitchers were nothing more than a series of embarrassing moments, the Cubs did their shopping early.

English Starts It Off.

Woody English cracked a homer over the barrier in the opening inning and that was the cue for everybody to bear down. They did it by scoring five in the second, English also being involved in this with the second of his four hits. Thereafter the Chicagoans did all sorts of things against Carl Hubbell and Tiny Chaplin, but the prize was a drive clear across a back street by Gabby Hartnett.

English's homer into the right field bleacher gave the Cubs a one run edge in the first inning, but in the Giants' half Baecht came close to throwing away his lead and some more besides. After one was out he took a nap over a bunt and Koenecke beat it for a hit. Lindstrom singled to right, putting Koenecke on third. Three strikes put Terry back on the bench, but fresh complications arose on a pass to Ott, filling the bases. The crisis was passed when Dan Taylor dashed back to the fence and pulled in Jackson's robust fly.

Cubs Score Five.

The loud explosion of five runs in the Cub second began on a pass to Herman with one out. He romped to third on Grimm's double to right and Hartnett's single scored both. Baecht forced Hartnett and Hack walked. They counted on English's single, which Ott permitted to roll to the fence. English went to third on the blunder and scored on Jackson's low throw to first on Cuyler's roller.

Another Cub scored in the third on a pass to Stephenson, his steal of second, and Grimm's single to center.

Stephenson made a slight mistake in his fielding efforts in the fourth to give the Giants their first run. Vergez doubled to left and the ball escaped Stevie, giving the runner an extra base. He scored on Hubbell's single which took a high hop over English.

Three More Bruins Count.

When the Cub eighth was reached there wasn't much remaining on the field except rookies and second stringers. However, they enjoyed themselves to the extent of three runs off Chaplin. Harry Taylor started this affair by walking, and Zack Taylor sent him to third with a single. Sweetland walked, filling the bases. Hack clubbed a single over second scoring the two Taylor boys. English beat out an infield hit, again loading the bags. Sweetland was caught on a force play at the plate and Hack scored the third run on another force play.

Sweetland handed a pass to Marshall at the start of the Giants' eighth and they used this as an excuse to score a pair of runs. Healey followed with a double; Fullis, batting for Chaplin, singled to drive in Marshall, and Healey scored on an out.

Send Young to Reading.

Hornsby made the first cut in the Cubs' roster today. He sent Del Young, a kid infielder, to the Reading club. Cutting on a more elaborate scale is expected almost hourly now and some of the boys are eager for bulletins. The Los Angeles club may be handed as many as six fellows later in the week. Among those expecting notice to remain here are Baecht, Jurges, Kreevich, and Campbell.

JOCKEY ENSOR WINS THREE AT TROPICAL PARK

Jaz Age Takes Feature in Blanket Finish.

Miami, Fla., March 14.—[Special.]—Although Jaz Age, trained and owned by J. Parmalee, captured the Orange State handicap, feature on the program at Tropical Park today, there was a great amount of interest in the riding of Jockey Buddy Ensor, who scored a triple, his first since he began his comeback as a rider after a long layoff. He scored with Common, Click and Please.

Jaz Age's victory, despite the gelding's good record, was a surprise in the feature, largely because of the presence in the race of Flying Heels, Vacillate and Pancho Lopez. Flying Heels, winner of more than $100,000, including the Pimlico futurity, was made the favorite, but was beaten a neck by Mr. Parmalee's gelded son of Great Jaz and Elga.

Victory Is Surprise.

The winner returned $16.60 for $2 and finished the five furlongs in the fast time of :59 4-5. This is two-fifths of a second slower than the track record made recently by Pancho Lopez, which could get only fifth today. Silver Cord was third, another neck back of Flying Heels, but a length before Vacillate. Then came Pancho Lopez, Newgro, and Street Singer.

Jockey J. Leyland was in the saddle of the winner, which had up 108 pounds as against the top weight of 124 borne by Flying Heels. Leyland brought his mount from far back and put on a rousing finish to gain the winner's share of the purse.

Ensor had a perfect score for the day, as three mounts were all he had. With Common, he was up on a 4 to 1 shot and go' home a length and a half ahead of Chicago Girl, which led Coots by half a length. Coots was the public choice.

In the fifth Click, with Ensor up, was held at 3 to 2 and won easily by a length and a half over Prince Fox. Silver Lake was a fast going third. Click led from the break and finished the six furlongs in 1:13.

Please Odds-On Choice.

Please, Ensor's mount in the sixth, was an odds-on choice at 4 to 5 and also was an easy winner. Battling On finished the mile three-fourths of a length back of Please, which was timed in 1:39 1-5. Pass in Review landed third.

The longest priced winner of the meeting came in the curtain raiser when Side Show scored by a head, to returns $93.50 for $2. Chillette was second, and Mont Jule was third.

'I'LL WIN BY K. O.,' SAYS MAIER, BUT SO DOES NICHOLS

BY FRENCH LANE.

Left handed wallops were flying all over the loop yesterday when Dave Maier of Milwaukee and George Nichols of Buffalo gave the first public training exhibitions which lead up to their battle for the light heavyweight championship here Friday night.

Maier was uncorking his southpaw blows over at Kid Howard's gymnasium and Nichols was cutting loose at Trafton's. A few hundred fans were on hand at each rehearsal and they were somewhat bewildered when it all ended.

Maier seems a 100 per cent improved biffer since he started his drive for the 175 pound crown. Nichols appears to have improved even more and while Maier continued to rule as a slight favorite, very few of the boys who lay odds on prize fights were taking any liberties with Nichols. The odds were 7 to 5 in most places and 6 to 5 in other spots.

Each Aims at Knockout.

There was nothing in the way the two left handers went at their work yesterday that would indicate their encounter is to be a boxing match. For they were oiling up their knockout punches all through their drills and neither paid much attention to the finer points of boxing. Boxing fans who have followed them all the way through the light heavyweight tournament expect it to be just that kind of an affair.

This will not be the first time Maier and Nichols have come together. The last time they met Maier was the victor on a technical knockout. But other fellows were also beating Nichols at about that time, and since then he has put away most of them. There is no doubt but that he has been improving in an astonishing way lately, but the folks who fancy Maier's chances contend that he has improved just as much. Maier's string of knockouts in the championship tournament furnished plenty of evidence that he has been getting better with each battle.

Must Be a Winner.

This is one title scrap in which a draw is an impossibility. There must be a decision regardless of how even the fighters are when it ends. This has been the rule in all the light heavyweight tournament bouts and the rule will be enforced again Friday night.

Followers of Maier from Milwaukee are reserving big blocks of tickets for the stadium fight. Some of the Milwaukee fans are already in town trying to get their coin down on Maier. But for the most part they were asking even money and there were no even money propositions offered.

A.A.U. Boxing Entries Close on March 30

Entries will close March 30 for the Central A. A. U. boxing championships and the sectional Olympic ring trials of the National A. A. U. at Loyola university gymnasium April 5 to 8. Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the Central A. A. U. boxing committee and member of the Olympic committee, announced yesterday. Entry blanks were distributed yesterday throughout Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Any additional applications or information may be secured at Central A. A. U. headquarters, 538 South Clark street.

Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, O., 128 pound boxer, was signed last night to replace Eddie Shea of Chicago against Roger Bernard at Flint, Mich., March 24. Bernard refused to go through with his agreement to meet Shea. Notified of the change, Eddie announced that he will sign today to battle Joe Ghnouly at St. Louis on a date to be announced.

Bud Saltis, north side 160 pound battler, and Gorilla Jones, middleweight champion, meet in the windup bout at Green Bay, Wis., April 7. The match has been set for 10 rounds over the title weight. Before clashing with Jones, Saltis combats Sammy Slaughter at Terre Haute, Ind., next Monday.

Pep Kerwin, north side promoter, will take eight amateur boxers to Milwaukee, where they fight Wisconsin Golden Glove champions tonight. Included in the Chicago team are Nick Scialaba, Steve Selgrat, Benny Miller, and Bud Moore.

Lynn Thompson and Jimmy Myers will meet in a feature bout at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. Red Chinski faces Vincent Satkoff in another encounter. Six other matches will be arranged.

IF PEOPLE REALLY SPOKE THEIR MINDS . . . . . by RUBE GOLDBERG

HELLO, DUMBBELL, HOW ARE YOU TODAY?
I FELT FINE UNTIL YOU STARTED TO PARK THAT AWFUL FACE RIGHT HERE IN FRONT OF ME
GO AHEAD AND BUTCHER MY HANDS, SWEETHEART - I CAN TAKE IT - I'M SUFFERING ALREADY YOU'RE NOT SUFFERING NEARLY AS MUCH AS I AM
LISTEN, FATHEAD - I KNOW YOUR KIND - YOU'VE PROBABLY GOT A WIFE AND SIX CHILDREN TUCKED AWAY SOMEWHERE IN THE COUNTRY
DON'T KID ME - I'LL BET YOU'RE A GRANDMOTHER, YOURSELF
COME ON, STUPID - GIVE ME YOUR TELEPHONE NUMBER
WAIT - HERE'S SOMETHING YOU NEED MORE THAN MY TELEPHONE NUMBER
STICK TO OLD GOLDS AND PEOPLE WON'T WALK OUT WHEN YOU WALK IN - THE QUEEN LEAF PURE - TOBACCO WILL MAKE YOU A PAL INSTEAD OF A PEST - NOT A GRUNT IN A GONDOLAFUL

P. S. "When a Feller Needs a Friend," said Clare Briggs, "maybe he needs OLD GOLDS." It was those whimsical Briggs cartoons . . . that sold me OLD GOLDS five years ago. And I've smoked 'em ever since . . . with nary a cough. If you don't like apple sauce, boloney or other artificial flavorings in your smokes . . . you WILL like pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS. They're just Nature's pure "Grade A" tobacco at its best.

OLD GOLDS ARE PURE TOBACCO • NO ARTIFICIAL FLAVORING

EASTERN TEAMS STRONG THREAT IN LOYOLA MEET

Seek to Break Monopoly of Western Fives.

Schools of the middle west have been dominating the National Catholic High school basketball tournament for eight years, but the east threatens to break the monopoly when the ninth annual tournament begins at Loyola university gymnasium tomorrow night. That section is represented by the strongest quintets ever sent to the Loyola meet.

The state of Pennsylvania has entered its champion, Northeast Catholic High school of Philadelphia, one of the seven teams which will attempt to take the title to the east this year. St. Thomas High of Scranton, Pa., which lost to Northeast in the finals of the Pensylvania state championship tournament, is another powerful team.

Augustinian academy of Carthage, N. Y., which last year won the trophy awarded to the best coached team, will be satisfied with nothing less than the championship prize this season. Augustinian recently captured the Northern state league title, winning 13 games while losing three.

All Pole Team.

Another eastern contender is St. Francis of Athol Springs, N. Y., an all Polish team, which won the Western state league title with 13 victories and one defeat. The regulars on the squad are Capt. John Lorenc, Stephen Przybyla, Charles Zonca, John Sobczak and John Szczepanek.

Quintets from Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Minnesota are certain that the eastern squads will not have an easy time taking the championship. Six teams will represent Illinois, the home of the champion six of the eight years.

The only teams from other states which have won the title are St. Xavier of Louisville, Ky., in 1926, and De La Salle of Minneapolis, Minn., the defending champion. De La Salle last year defeated a middle west squad, Jasper, Ind., in the finals of the tournament.

Four Catholic League Teams.

Four of the six Illinois teams will represent the Chicago Catholic league. They are De La Salle of Joliet, the Catholic league champion; St. Mel, runnerup, and St. Patrick and St. Philip, runnersup in the north and south sectional races.

Spalding institute of Peoria and Trinity High of Bloomington are the other Illinois quintets. The two teams recently battled to a 20 to 20 tie in two overtimes in the finals for the Illinois state championship. Spalding later scored a 17 to 16 victory over Trinity in the playoff.

Teams from all corners of the United States will start coming to the scene of the tournament tonight. Several will arrive by auto, while others are expected by rail. Among the teams motoring to Chicago is Augustinian of Carthage, N. Y., which is expected to arrive tonight.

Wisconsin Boys Due Today.

St. Mary's of Bird Island, one of the four teams which will represent Minnesota, also will come in today by auto. De Padua of Ashland, Wis., which faces St. Philip High school of Chicago tomorrow night, will arrive today on the North Western.

Catholic High school of Washington, Ind., which will oppose De La Salle of Minneapolis in the opening game tomorrow night, also will arrive today. Others expected late tonight are Northeast Catholic of Philadelphia and Cretin of St. Paul, Minn.

BASS LOSES TO BOJARSKI ON FOUL IN THIRD ROUND

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 14.—(AP)—After punching Frankie Bojarski of Erie, Pa., all over the ring for two rounds, Benny Bass, Philadelphia lightweight, was disqualified for fouling in the third round of a ten round bout tonight.

The bout was awarded to Bojarski amid the hooting of the crowd and police escorted the Philadelphian from the hall. Bass' purse was held up.

Bass ripped into the Erie boy with both gloves in the first round, but Bojarski's seconds complained he was fouling in the second.

Referee Red Robinson warned Bass and shortly after the bell brought them out in the third, he stepped between the fighters and waved them to their corners.

Bass refused to budge. Robinson called the police and Bass was taken to his dressing room. Crowds stood outside the door and hooted while Bass took his shower.

Eighth Church Basketball Teams to Play Tonight

Four basketball games are scheduled in the Church A. A. tonight at Roosevelt High school gymnasium, Wilson and Kimball avenues. The games:

At 7:15, Rogers Park Congregational vs. Berry Memorial, 135 pounds; 8:00, Lake View Presbyterian girls vs. Bethany Presbyterian girls; 8:40, Bishop Cheney Memorial vs. Wellington Avenue Congregational, heavyweights; 9:30, Albany Park Methodist Episcopal vs. Covenant Baptist, heavyweights.

Shamrocks to Battle Oiler Six Tonight

Opportunity will be knocking for both the Shamrocks and the Tulsa Oilers when these two teams meet tonight at the Chicago Stadium. The Shamrocks have a chance to go into a tie for the league leadership, while the Oilers are not yet counted out of the playoffs.

The Shamrocks may be handicapped by the absence of Bouncer Taylor, who injured his knee in the game Sunday with the St. Louis Fliers. Manager Babe Dye probably will shift Pudge MacKenzie to Taylor's defense post and use Bert Clayton at center if the Bouncer is unable to play tonight. Yesterday he scarcely was able to walk.

Oilers Are in Condition.

The Oilers are in the best condition of the season, and except for the absence of Charlie Langlois, defense star called to Canada by the death of his mother, will have a complete lineup. Gus Marker, one of the speediest wingmen in the league, will be at defense in place of Langlois, paired with Emil Hanson. These two working with such forwards as Center Frank Sheppard and Wingers Ron Moffatt and Sonny Boy Wakeford make one of the fastest combinations in the league.

A big item in the Oilers' defensive strength is Red McCusker, whose prowess against the Rocks has impressed Manager Dye.

McFadyen Near Scoring Lead.

O'Neill, McFadyen, and Brydson will start for the Green and White tonight. McFadyen is now pressing Riley and Wiseman for scoring honors. He has scored 28 points, against 29 each by Riley and Wiseman.

Manager Shorty Green will start Acaster, La France, and Healey.

LONDOS MAY USE ANY HOLD HE LIKES ON CALZA

For the first time in several Chicago starts, Jim Londos will not be handicapped by restrictions imposed by his opponents when he meets George Calza at the Coliseum in a finish wrestling match Thursday night.

In his last appearance here, against Rudy Dusek, Londos was unable to use his favorite hold, the necklock. It was ruled out before the match by the Illinois Athletic commission at the request of Dusek. Londos won any way. Prior to that Dusek had complained about the hold without effect.

Calza declared he wants to win on his merits as a wrestler and will permit Londos to use his entire repertoire. Londos and Calza are due in the loop today, as are most of the other eight grapplers on the five match card.

What Price Bird Lore? Trills Vie with Snowbanks

BY BOB BECKER.

When song sparrows sing almost every day during the last three weeks of February and bluebirds are seen on Feb. 29, how is a bird student to keep his notebooks straight and report accurately the arrival dates of spring birds? We discussed this question with Prof. Edwin B. Frost, director of Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., a few days ago when we were swapping notes with him on the way the recent freak winter weather had fooled migrating birds.

Prof. Frost has kept records on the arrival of species at Lake Geneva for many years. But this winter he admits has been quite disturbing to his entries. As we sat in his home we could look through the window and see chicadees, a downy woodpecker, and a nut hatch pay visits to the feeding station just outside the window. The vigorous tapping of the woodpecker as he cracked sunflower seeds could be heard above our conversation. Before we reached his home on the big hill where the observatory stands we had bucked a wintry landscape marked by a couple of snowdrifts which almost swallowed our automobile.

At the city of Lake Geneva the ice cutters were bringing in the "harvest" of ice cakes to be stored for summer consumption. [Looking at it from a distance we judged the cakes to be about 14 inches thick.] Just beyond the open water, where the men were cutting, we saw a boy wheeling his iceboat into action, its vivid scarlet sail a striking bit of color against the frozen lake.

Here was every evidence of winter weather in March. Yet a month ago the weather had fooled many birds into thinking that the mild February days were the beginning of spring, because several species, including the killdeer and the bluebirds, accepted the spring days of February in good faith.

According to Prof. Frost, the balmy days of February brought to Lake Geneva the killdeer on Feb. 24, but some of the birds stopped off at the northern edge of Chicago's city limits. These birds must have no easy time of it during cold spells such as we had last week.

According to all reports, hundreds of mudhens enjoyed Lake Geneva as a winter resort since they came down last fall and provided company for the big flocks of wild geese which use the lake as their winter home. The geese are there every winter, but an ordinary winter sees no songbirds and bluebirds in February. The arrival of these birds is another evidence of the freak winter.

Mount Carmel, De Paul Meet in Catholic Finals

Mount Carmel will meet De Paul, north section champion, in the final game for the Chicago Catholic High School league lightweight basketball championship tonight at De La Salle Institute gymnasium, 34th street and Michigan avenue. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Five Changes in Leaders of A.B.C. Meet

Detroit, Mich., March 14.—(AP)—Five changes occurred among the five leaders in the American Bowling congress tournament today.

Pere Marquette Freight Traffic of Detroit took first place in the five man division by upsetting 2,861 pins. Although labeled a booster five, it performed like a seasoned team in chalking up games of 921, 894, and 1,046.

Alex Graham of New Philadelphia, O., scattered the pins for a 719 aggregate to lead in the singles. His scores were 227, 276 and 216. Charles Drs of Chicago went into third position with 704.

L. Angstman of Bay City totaled 1,870 for third in the all events, and Graham's 1,839 earned him a tie for fourth in the same event with H. Simon of Cincinnati.

The leaders:

JOHNNY LAYTON LEADS BOZEMAN IN CUSHION PLAY

Johnny Layton, dethroned three cushion billiard champion, is leading Jay N. Bozeman, Pacific coast champion, 100 to 74, at the end of the second block of their 500 point match, now in progress at the Bensinger Randolph room.

Layton went in to the lead early yesterday afternoon, with runs of 8, 9, and 6, and then resorted to a defensive game to defeat his younger rival, 50 to 33, in 42 innings.

Bozeman started last evening's block with a run of six, and led Layton to the 20 mark, where Johnny passed him and gradually pulled away to win, 50 to 41, in 39 innings.

They play two blocks again today starting at 3 o'clock this afternoon and 8 o'clock this evening.

Dorval Floors Dekuh Twice to Win in 10 Rounds

Boston, Mass., March 14.—(AP)—Jack Dorval, Quincy heavyweight, outpointed Arthur Dekuh of New York in a 10 round bout tonight. Dorval scored knockdowns in the first and fourth rounds. He weighed 220 and Dekuh 227.

LOTT, SHIELDS WIN IN NATIONAL TENNIS TOURNEY

New York, March 14.—(AP)—Seeded stars of America and France continued to win in the national indoor tennis tournament today as third round matches were completed, but hopes of an American victory in the final Saturday were not enhanced by the showing of two of this country's leading players, Frank Shields and George Lott Jr.

Both won, along with eleven other seeded entrants, but they were far from impressive. Lott, No. 1 on the American list, had a real tussle before he turned back S. Ellsworth Davenport of New York, 6-1, 11-9, and Shields likewise was extended to beat Lieut. Richard Watt Jr. of the Brooklyn Navy yard, 6-4, 11-9.

Other favorites came through with ease, Jean Borotra of France leading the way with a 6-0, 6-0 victory over Merritt Cutler of New York.

NOTRE DAME'S RELAY TEAM IN BANKERS' MEET

Notre Dame's relay team, winner of the Central Intercollegiate Conference mile relay last Saturday evening with a new C. I. C. meet record of 3:25 5-10 seconds, will compete with Northwestern, Chicago, Loyola and Purdue in a similar event in the American Institute of Banking's 12th annual track meet to be held Thursday evening at the 124th Field Artillery, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

More than 200 Chicago bank employés are entered in bank championship events, and girls' relay teams have been entered from the Federal Reserve, the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, Central Republic and the First National banks.

MICHIGAN AND PURDUE ENTER ARMOUR MEET

Purdue and Michigan track teams will compete in the Armour Tech relay carnival, which will be held at the University of Chicago fieldhouse on April 2, it was announced yesterday by John J. Schommer, Armour Tech athletic director. Butler and Carleton also have entered.

Several other Big Ten teams are expected to participate. Northwestern, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana, which won the Big Ten indoor championship last Saturday, probably will enter squads. The mile, two mile, and 880 yard college relay events will feature the meet.

Golden Gloves Party Attracts New York Elite

professional among the amateurs, exhorting his fighter, a courteous amateur, to knock the other one distinctly bowlegged.

Walker, Curry Sit Together.

The mayor, Mr. Walker, ruddy and jovial, notwithstanding his recent flummox in the course of a clinical inspection, sat among the big names of Tammany Hall. Beside him, peering at the fighters through squinty eyes which have scrutinized many strange mysteries in the government of a city bigger and richer than most of the kingdoms of the world, sat Mr. Leader Curry, the head man of Tammany, his little white mustache performing a frosty crescent with the horns upturned as he smiled the evening through. Mr. James Farley, chairman of the New York prizefight commission, which had nothing to do with these fights, and of the state Democratic committee, sat by him.

Dudley Field Malone, more plump and less juvenile than when he swung a towel for the attorneys in the monkey trial at Dayton, Tenn., was not to be ignored in his front row position. Down at Dayton that time, Mr. Malone was the victim of a dreadful embarrassment. A backwood showman happened through the village with a trained baboon and wished to introduce his pet to Mr. Malone as a witness for the defense, with which Mr. Malone was associated as assistant counsel. The baboon was escorted to Mr. Malone's quarters, but on hearing that Dudley was a New York lawyer, emitted a squawk of alarm and was last seen swinging by his tail from tree to tree threatening to turn state's evidence.

No Proud Night for Irish.

It was no proud night for the Irish in New York when the announcer, blatting his introductions, in respect for the facts of the occasion, was compelled to describe most of the young fighters as Italian-Americans. Phil Gavriluk, heavyweight steel worker, came in as a Russian, two or three generations removed, and Julie Katz, the flyweight, bowed to the cheers which acknowledged his introduction as a Jew.

Saveey Higgins, a ribbon clerk, might have been Irish, to judge him by his name alone, if it hadn't been announced that he was a man of the same persuasion as Jack Sharkey, a Lithuanian. Higgins was knocked out with a left to the body and a right to the chin by Johnny Ruoff, a German machinist, in round one, which was a matter of no sentimental consequence to the gayway men in the house.

Gavriluk, who has been fighting in the Golden Gloves tournaments for six years, lost unexpectedly, but with grace and decency, to a Negro boy,

Gavriluk boxed well, but the colored boy outhustled him for three rounds, and when the decision was given the pallid ironworker with the China eyes and the silk mustache gave him both hands and a smile of honest acknowledgment.

Wait for Their Cue.

As the fighters entered the ring, each pair, the ring lights blacked out for a moment and a baby spot glared down, first on one corner of the ring and then the other, while they were introduced. They stood with their heads bowed and their red gloves clasped waist hight in grotesque piety, their long satin robes gleaming in the mock moonlight, as solemn as priests at some moment of great solemnity. They did not shake hands with themselves in the familiar manner of fighters greeting the crowd when their names were mentioned, but waited for the ring lights, then shucked their vestments and came out fighting for little medals.

PHILLIPS MEETS BLUE ISLAND IN TOURNEY OPENER

Wendell Phillips High school, lightweight basketball champion of the Chicago Public High School league, will meet Blue Island in the opening game of the first Illinois state lightweight championship tournament, which will open at Morton High school gymnasium in Cicero tomorrow night.

In the second contest, Braidwood, Des Plaines Valley league champion, will meet Riverside of the West Suburban league. Leading lightweight quintets of the state are entered in the meet, including Geneva, Jacksonville, La Grange, and Calumet City.

MUST BE SPRING! PHILLIES BEAT A'S 5-4 IN 10 INNINGS

Mallon's Single Brings In Knothe to Win.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—The traditional spring clash between Philadelphia's two major league baseball clubs today saw the Phils defeat the Athletics, 5 to 4, in 10 innings.

Cold weather greeted the players and the wind made things difficult for the outfielders.

A blistering triple by Chuck Klein tied the score at four all in the ninth. Les Mallon, the Phils' diminutive second baseman, in the tenth inning smacked his fifth single of the game, bringing George Knothe home with the winning run.

MARTIN HERO AS CARDS WIN.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—John Leonard [Pepper] Martin was the whole show today as the world champion St. Louis Cardinals upset the Boston Braves, 4-1, in a dull exhibition game. The hero of the last world series scored three runs and collected two hits, including a sixth inning homer.

After Pepper poked the ball over the left field fence, Bill McAfee blew up and forced in two more St. Louis runs. The Braves were weak at bat, and their first inning run resulted from a pass, a scratch hit, and an error.

NEWARK BEATS DODGERS, 5-4.

Clearwater, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—A three run attack off Waite Hoyt for the second inning paved the way for the Newark Bears' 5 to 4 victory over Brooklyn today.

The Dodgers, rallying in the ninth, scored two runs on three successive singles by Wright, Thompson and O'Doul and a base on balls, but Warner hit into a double play with the tying and winning runs on base. Score:

WEBB HITS 2 OVER FENCE.

Savannah, Ga., March 14.—(AP)—Earl Webb, the two base slugger, hit a pair of baseballs over the fence here today when the Boston Red Sox squad defied the cold weather and held a long batting practice.

All of the regular pitchers were in action, but Manager Shano Collins ordered them to take matters easily. Cy Moore was hit on the head with a foul ball, but was able to return to the workout after simple first aid measures were taken.

PHIL BALL ISN'T WORRYING.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, indicated today that he has no intention of carrying on protracted negotiations with the three salary holdouts—Red Kress, Walter Stewart, and Rick Ferrell.

"They'll either sign at what we've offered or they can pick fruit all summer," Ball said as he boarded a train for St. Louis today.

2 NEW HIGHWAYS ASKED TO CARRY THROUGH ROUTES

Present Roads Obsolete, Is Argument.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 14.—[Special.]—Another thousand miles of new highways were advocated before the Illinois road commission today. This makes a total of 4,010 miles which have been proposed to date. This construction would cost approximately $140,000,000. Another $140,000,000 worth of proposals are expected by the commission before it completes its public hearings.

A group of counties from fifty to a hundred miles west of Chicago were heard at today's session. They sounded a new note in the flood of appeals for additional roads that are coming from all parts of the state. They labeled as obsolete in design and alignment the two transcontinental routes crossing northern Illinois.

One of these routes is Ill. 6, otherwise known as Roosevelt road, which carries the Lincoln highway and the U. S. 30 markers west from Geneva. The other is the Lake street road, also known as Grant highway, which carries the Ill. 5 and U. S. 20 markers through Rockford to Dubuque.

Sharp Turns Criticized.

These pavements, built since the world war with thirty year bonds, were described as uneconomic, their sharp turns, waste mileage and disintegrating surfaces constituting delays and hazards to traffic more costly to motor transportation than would be the cost of new roads on new rights of way.

Rockford asked for a new road to Chicago, reducing the distance from 90 to 79 miles, by laying a pavement from Algonquin to this third largest city of the state. The average weekday traffic on Ill. 5 east of Rockford last summer was 4,745 vehicles, including 533 trucks.

Rockford also is seeking a belt line to keep through traffic out of the city. Rodney Wright, president of the DeKalb Chamber of Commerce, made a similar request in behalf of this city, urging that through traffic of Roosevelt road should be routed away from the business center.

New Lincoln Highway Plan.

The new cross state routing for the Lincoln highway would carry the red, white and blue markers west from Aurora instead of west from Geneva. Ill. 71 would be followed west from Aurora as far as U. S. 51 and thence over a new pavement westward to connect with Ill. 6 near Sterling.

This proposed routing would reduce the Illinois mileage of U. S. 30 approximately thirty miles as well as shortening the distance from Chicago to Davenport and to Clinton, Ia. It would take traffic off circuitous and tortuous Ill. 6 between Geneva and Sterling. A weekday count of summer traffic, on Ill. 6 near De Kalb tallied 2,288 passenger cars and 410 trucks.

The commission, headed by Representative David Hunter Jr. of Rockford will continue its hearings tomorrow and Wednesday.

BROWN ADVISES HIGHER POSTAGE TO HALT DEFICIT

Suggests Economies to Help Out.

Washington, D. C., March 14.—[Special.]—In a memorandum submitted to the house special economy committee today Postmaster General Walter F. Brown pointed out numerous ways in which the expense of the postal service can be reduced, all of which, however, he held required legislation.

He admitted that the postal service is overmanned for the handling of the present reduced volume of business due to the depression. He suggested that economies could be achieved by reducing the force, reducing pay, consolidating rural free delivery routes and providing government buildings for postoffice stations, branch postoffices and garages which under the law are now leased.

Such economies, however, said Mr. Brown, would not balance the postoffice department budget which can be effected only by increasing postal rates also.

Rural Route Competition.

Mr. Brown submitted for "careful consideration" the proposal of Senator W. H. King [Dem., Utah] that rural free delivery routes be let to the lowest bidders, although the postmaster general recorded himself as opposed to such change because "it would be likely to result in a substantial impairment of the general excellent service which is now rendered to rural patrons."

Senator King estimates that from 30 to 50 millions of dollars could be saved by the change. He said that the majority of rural carriers put in only three or four hours a day at the work and devote the remainder of their time to private business. He cited an 85 mile star route which is leased, costing the government $1,000 a year, compared with 3 rural free delivery routes aggregating 67 miles costing $8,000.

Consolidation Goes Slower.

"It has been the department's policy to consolidate routes whenever practicable," Mr. Brown said, "but the application of the policy has been restricted to cases where vacancies occur on existing routes. A substantial saving could, of course, be effected by accelerating such consolidations.

FUNERAL RITES FOR J. M. SELLERS TO BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services will be held for John Morris Sellers at 2:30 p. m. today in Rosehill chapel. Mr. Sellers, who was president of the Sellers Manufacturing company, makers of railway supplies, died at his home, Lindenwall, in Downers Grove, on Sunday. He was 66 years old and is survived by his widow, Mary Ducat Sellers, and two sisters, Mrs. Randolph Ortman and Mrs. Horace C. Hutchins.

Mr. Sellers formerly was prominent as an amateur sportsman. He was a member of the first American golf team to meet an English team in the United States, and was an amateur boxer. He was a member of the Chicago club, Chicago Athletic association and Chicago Golf club.

FRANK D. SUGHRAU, dean of suburban conductors on the Milwaukee division of the Chicago and North Western railroad until he retired the first of the year, died at his home at 2435 Greenleaf avenue, on Sunday night, of pneumonia. He was 75 years old.

JOHN WHEATLEY, 80 years old, an employé in the inspection department of the board of local improvements, who died in his home at 4329 Le Moyne avenue Saturday night, will be buried today after funeral services at 10:30 a. m. at the residence.

2,000 IN COURT FIGHT FOR SHARE OF 100 MILLIONS

Object to Probating Wendel Will.

New York, March 14.—[Special.]—Exactly one year and a day after the death of Ella V. Von E. Wendel some 300 lawyers representing more than 2,000 claimants to her 100 million dollar estate crowded into the Surrogates courtroom today to object to the probate of her will. Application for probate of the will of the spinster who lived and died in nunlike seclusion in her home at 39th street and 5th avenue was made on Sept. 25 by Charles G. Koss, one of the administrators of the estate.

Due to the absence of Surrogate James A. Foley, who is ill, the hearing was presided over by Richard Cummins, chief of the law department and John A. Killoran, chief of the probate division of the surrogates' office. Mr. Cummins suggested that all claimants file bills of particulars, including proof of kinship from a common ancestor. No definite order to this effect was made, however, pending the return of Surrogate Foley, to whose decision other controversial questions also were referred.

Jurisdiction Challenged.

Arthur Garfield Hays, who represents some fifty claimants, including Miss Rosa Dew Stansbury, 74 years old, Vicksburg, Miss., who claims to be Miss Wendel's closest surviving kin, announced he would challenge the jurisdiction of the New York County Surrogate's court. Mr. Hays said he would move to have the case transferred to Westchester county, where, he claimed, Miss Wendel was a legal resident at the time of her death.

A last minute claim was filed by attorneys representing Mrs. Anna Bechler of Danzig, Germany, who claims to be a first cousin of the eccentric Miss Wendel. She was represented by Edward J. Bloom of a San Francisco law firm.

Want Ruling on Fee.

Until a ruling is made by the court regarding the payment of $30 required of every claimant filing an objection, $10 of which is the filing fee and $20 of which is the jury fee, Mr. Hays is protecting his clients by filing objections for Miss Stansbury; Cornelia Pue, a granddaughter of Gen. Tobias Stansbury, who claims to be related in the sixth degree to Ella Wendel, and Mrs. Adelaide Lee of the Astor branch, who claims relationship in the seventh degree.

Mr. Hays pointed out to the court that the fee required for filing would mount into a considerable total if the $20 fee was required from each of more than 2,000 claimants, and asked that a ruling be made on this point.

SCRAWNY..SKIN SO BAD
she wouldn't let him see her!
Today is the picture of health—skin crystal-clear

THANK heavens, he couldn't see her through the telephone! He couldn't see her "tired" eyes, her gaunt, haggard cheeks, her sallow, blemished skin. And he'd never see her—never unless some miracle restored the loveliness he'd always admired.

And then the "miracle" happened! Today when he asks for a date — it's "yes" instead of "no." Skin radiant, 5 lbs. heavier—she writes: "A few months ago, I began to lose weight. My complexion grew worse and worse. Frankly, I was embarrassed to go out with friends so I'd refuse dates.

"My druggist asked me to try Ironized Yeast. After the very first package, I felt peppier and my skin was clearer. And in 2 weeks, I gained 5 pounds, corrected indigestion and completely cleared up the pimples." Miss Dorothy Shumsky, 2832 Washington Blvd., Baltimore, Md.

Get results quick!
Ironized Yeast has restored thousands of thin, rundown men and women to sparkling health and energy. Try it. See how quickly skin troubles, weakness, constipation or nervousness vanish—your thin figure rounds out!

Concentrated—ironized
Ironized Yeast contains specially cultured, specially imported "beer yeast"—concentrated seven times! Thus seven pounds of it are required to make one pound of the yeast concentrate used in Ironized Yeast. So valuable, so vital—is this concentration process that the Biological Commission of the League of Nations officially recommended its adoption as a world-wide standard.

To insure even quicker, even more complete body-building results, this powerful yeast concentrate is ironized! It is scientifically treated with three distinct kinds of energizing iron. The result is a "double action" tonic which enriches the blood, strengthens and regulates the system—at the same time it adds firm, sound flesh.

WARNING!
Counterfeit Ironized Yeast
Beware counterfeit Ironized Yeast! Flatly refuse any package not marked "Ironized Yeast". Don't put any tablet not marked "I.Y." in your stomach. (The iron in genuine Ironized Yeast cannot discolor teeth or upset the stomach.) Remember that Ironized Yeast is triple-tested for results—by our own chemists, by an eminent physician and by a professor of Bio-Chemistry in a famous medical college.

GUARANTEED: If the very first package does not help you as it has helped countless others, its cost will be promptly refunded. At all druggists. Ironized Yeast Co., Atlanta, Ga.

OIL INDUSTRIES SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES IN 1931

Skelly Report Shows Big Deficit.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The troubles of the oil industry last year, which were about the worst in the history of this major industry, are reflected in annual reports issued by several of the larger companies yesterday. Overproduction, low prices and keen competition made severe inroads into earnings and heavy charge-offs took their toll of accumulated earnings from former years.

The Skelly Oil company reported an operating loss of $3,168,549 for 1931, but it had an extraordinary profit of $1,051,439 from the sale of properties. However, dividends on the preferred stock took $179,700 and the following writeoffs were made: Adjustment of reserves against cost of properties, $9,272,616; development costs and losses, $2,053,019; allowance for contingencies, $1,000,000; good will charged off, $979,177; other surplus adjustments, $637,812.

A Surplus Deficit.

The net result was a final deficit of $16,239,435, which wiped out the previous surplus of $11,152,705 and substituted a surplus deficit of $5,086,730. The book value of the 1,011,752 common shares of $25 par value was reduced to $19.97 a share. In 1930 the company had net income of $1,916,871 after charges but before setting aside $1,780,000 for contingencies. This charge, coupled with dividends totaling $2,634,069, reduced surplus by $4,414,069. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, shows current assets of $9,695,448 and current liabilities of $2,084,754.

The Continental Oil company had a net loss of $12,045,575 after usual charges, but before extraordinary writeoffs. But the company had a deficit of $10,683,313 after provision for loss in its investment in the Seaboard Petroleum company and profit on the sale of assets and investments. In 1930 the company had net income of $255,598, which was equivalent to 5c a share on the capital stock. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, showed current assets of $28,303,250 and current liabilities of $4,780,428.

Humble Oil Report.

The Humble Oil and Refining company last year had net profits of $2,165,092, equivalent to 93c a share on the capital stock. But dividends totaling $5,826,726 were paid, which resulted in a final deficit of $3,161,634. However, the company made an upward adjustment of $6,281,100 in earned unappropriated surplus, including $6,033,262 depreciation reserve adjustment representing excess writeoff not allowed by the government for 1928 and prior years. This more than offset the 1931 deficit and resulted in increasing this surplus from $96,432,161 to $99,551,628. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, shower current assets of $77,909,618 and current liabilities of $11,614,450. Net income for 1930 was $18,088,491, or $6.08 a share.

The California Petroleum corporation had a net loss of $712,048 for 1931, compared with net profit of $1,118,702 for 1930.

SURFACE LINES REPORT

A decline of nearly 10 per cent in number of passengers last year resulted in reduced earnings of the Chicago Surface Lines. However, most of the decline in gross earnings was offset by curtailed expenses, according to the annual report of President Guy A. Richardson.

Revenue passengers in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1932, totaled 732,095,601, a decrease of 79,985,100. Gross earnings were $51,196,141, a decline of $5,540,949. Expenses were $42,943,893, a decline of $4,332,051. Residue receipts were $8,252,249, a decrease of $1,158,898. Of the residue receipts, the Chicago Railways company received $4,951,349 and the south side lines received $3,300,899.

A total of $11,598,717 was expended for combined maintenance, current renewals, extensions and betterments. The purchase price at which the city of Chicago may take over the properties was $167,964,401 on Feb. 1, 1932, compared with $166,711,586 a year before.

The North American Edison company reports net income for 1931 of $14,386,361 after taxes, interest, depreciation, subsidiary preferred dividends, and other charges, compared with $17,691,870 in 1930. All of the common stock of the company is owned by the North American company.

TEN STATES ASKING 5,675,000 POUNDS OF RED CROSS FLOUR

Washington, D. C., March 14.—(AP)—Applications from ten states for 5,675,000 pounds of free flour under the recently enacted 40,000,000 bushel free wheat bill were reported to President Hoover today by John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, which is distributing the grain.

Payne said he told the President the Red Cross had not yet reached an agreement with the millers as to a basic price for conversion of the wheat into flour. Nevertheless, Payne said, orders have been dispatched to the Chicago distribution headquarters of the Red Cross to fill all requests immediately, with the price still to be agreed upon applying to any necessary conversion.

Several carloads of unmilled wheat already had been dispatched to the Dakotas, Payne said, for use as feed for livestock.

Kreuger Loans in U. S. Called $9,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—The untimely death of Ivar Kreuger gave rise to a multitude of rumors in the financial district today. Most of them were proved to be grossly exaggerated.

One published report was that American bank loans to the Kreuger & Toll company were between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000. A banker, who was closely associated with Kreuger and knows something of his recent financial operations, stated, however, that the total amount involved would not exceed $9,000,000.

Lent by Many Banks.

It was indicated that this smaller amount is spread over a number of financial institutions and, furthermore, that it includes a substantial amount of trade bills issued against the importation of matches into this country. These latter are self-liquidating credits. Not only is the amount small in relation to the resources of all the banking houses participating in these loans, but it was stated also on good authority today that no one house was so heavily involved as to become embarrassed.

No further statement was forthcoming today from Lee, Higginson & Co., private banking house, which has headed all syndicates offering securities of Kreuger & Toll and its subsidiaries in this country. Bankers here were in telephonic communication with Donald Durant, partner of Lee, Higginson & Co., and the only American director on the Kreuger & Toll board. Dr. Durant had sailed for Paris.

Peak Value $750,000,000.

At the peak of security prices in 1929 the Kreuger & Toll company and its subsidiaries were given an asset value of about $750,000,000, although this figure was not taken from a single balance sheet and was compiled unofficially by ambitious statisticians to indicate the magnitude of the organization directed by Ivar Kreuger and his lieutenants.

Kreuger & Toll company itself had assets of $405,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1931, but it is fairly certain that when the balance sheet as of the end of last year is finally issued it will be found that these assets have been materially reduced by official recognition on the part of the company of the decline which took place in foreign securities during the year. All that is known on this subject is the admission made by Mr. Kreuger in a preliminary annual report on Jan. 28, 1932, that securities owned by the company had been written down to the equivalent of their Dec. 31, 1931, values, and that this writeoff had been charged partly to surplus and partly to reserves. He stated that reserves stood at about $80,000,000 at the end of the year, as against $157,597,478 at the end of 1930.

Large Loans to Germany.

This scanty information would indicate that total assets will be reported as considerably less than $400,000,000. Since the beginning of the year, however, there has been considerable improvement in the dollar bonds of countries to which Kreuger & Toll had lent large sums of money. The recovery in German bonds, for instance, has amounted to 46 per cent in the case of the Young loan 5½s, or from 28½ to 41½. A similar advance of 13 points is applied to the $125,000,000 loan which Kreuger & Toll company advanced to the German government and for which it received 6 per cent long term bonds, would mean an improvement of $16,250,000 in the value of this one asset since the beginning of the year.

All of this improvement, however, does not accrue to the Kreuger & Toll company, because Kreuger allotted only $37,000,000 to the company which bears his name, an equal amount going to the Swedish Match company and $50,000,000 principal amount to the International Match corporation. The last named is an American corporation controlled by Swedish Match through ownership of the entire common stock.

Latin American Loans, Too.

The Kreuger & Toll companies have extended loans in excess of $350,000,000 to European and South American governments in consideration of either absolute match monopolies or a strong working agreement with those governments on the manufacture and sale of matches. Of this amount $75,000,000 was loaned to France in October, 1930. The subsequent financial recovery of France enabled the government to repay the Swedish Match-International Match loan at a price of 103½, or 10 points above the price paid for the bonds. The Kreuger companies, therefore, made a profit of $7,500,000.

Discussed at World Bank.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BASLE, March 14.—Ivar Krueger's death dominated the talk of European central bankers assembled today for the monthly meeting of the World bank board.

The chief point of interest of the meeting itself was that the board found the bank's profits during the fiscal year ending March 31 amply sufficient to justify its recommending that the general assembly, called today for May 10, declare the usual 6 per cent dividend. It is understood that after writing off all the bank's exchange losses on currencies that have abandoned the gold standard its profits remain larger than last year.

The bankers were surprised at what they called the comparatively mild general effects of Krueger's death. They attributed this to the good news of the German vote offsetting the bad

PUT $7,500,000 JUNIOR LIEN ON OPERA BUILDING

Mortgage to Protect $3,385,000 Debt.

BY AL CHASE.

A junior mortgage of $7,500,000 has been placed on the Civic Opera house property by the 20 Wacker Drive Building corporation, of which Samuel Insull is president and John W. Evers is secretary, subject to a $10,000,000 first mortgage. The $7,500,000 second mortgage, of which the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company is trustee, is for ten years at 6 per cent and according to an official of the borrowing corporation is to protect a floating debt of $3,385,000.

SAMUEL INSULL.

This officer stated that when the Civic Opera house was erected it cost more and took longer to build than expected and this debt of $3,385,000 was incurred as a result. He calls attention to the following clause in the recent annual statement of the corporation: "It is the present intention of the board to finance in some permanent way this floating indebtedness as soon as conditions permit."

Permanent Loan Later.

This second mortgage just put on the property, of course, is not permanent, and a mortgage bond issue is contemplated when market conditions warrant floating it, which will permanently care for this indebtedness. The first mortgage loan of $10,000,000, made several years ago, was at 5 per cent, and was negotiated with life insurance companies.

Natenberg & Co., sporting goods and cutlery dealers, have leased the north lobby store in the One La Salle building, with frontage on La Salle street, for ten years on a guaranteed percentage basis. The store is 25x35 and is being remodeled for the new tenant. A motion picture, camera, and photographic equipment department will be added by the lessee. Frank C. Wells of Leo J. Sheridan & Co. was the only broker.

$2,000,000 Job in Hammond.

Work has just started in Hammond, Ind., on a $2,000,000 program of expansion at the plant of the Lever Bros. Soap company, it was announced last night. Construction will include a power plant, a new department for refining glycerin and additions to other departments. According to Bruce Vernon, manager, approximately 100 men will be given employment during erection. Completion is set for June 1.

The Briteway Wallpaper and Paint Stores, now operating six stores in Chicago, have leased two new units. One is at 4037 West North avenue, rented for five years from Dr. William J. Moldenhauer. The other is at 57 South Grove street in Elgin. They also renewed their lease at 10957 South Michigan avenue, from Louis and Jennie Cohn. E. R. Perlman negotiated all of these transactions.

Holders Vote Reduction of United Founders Stock

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—Shareholders of the United Founders corporation today approved a reduction in authorized capital represented by the common stock from $152,161,365 to $45,054,240 and class A stock from $1,000,000 to $250,000. John M. Lee was elected to the board of directors.

LIGGETT & MYERS OFFICIALS VOTE TO CUT OWN BONUSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—Officers of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco company voluntarily agreed to reduce the amount of the bonus paid to them, it was stated at the annual meeting of the company in Jersey City today.

Originally 10 per cent over a certain basic amount was set aside for distribution to officers and employés. About three years ago that was reduced to 5 per cent. Last year it was further reduced to 2½ per cent. Similar reductions were made in distributions to approximately 500 other employés. The stockholders today approved a change in the by-laws providing for those payments.

Sales of the principal brand of cigarets manufactured by the company have been better so far this year after registering a drop in 1931, it was stated.

Union Tank Car Co. Earns $1.48 Per Share in 1931

Union Tank Car company's annual report released last night shows net income of $1,872,948, equivalent to $1.48 a share on the 1,254,048 shares of capital stock outstanding. This compares with net income of $2,546,464 in 1930, which was equivalent to $2.04 a share on the same capitalization. Dividends paid during the year totaled $2,006,476, resulting in a deficit of $234,428 for the period. This, together with another deduction of $510,726, which is not explained in the income account, reduced surplus to $7,355,409, as of Dec. 31, compared with $9,872,612 at the end of 1930. The Dec. 31 balance sheet showed current assets of $14,182,115, including cash of $1,764,782 and U. S. government securities at cost of $7,463,203. Current liabilities were $341,129.

International Nickel Co. Sales Drop 19,545,310 Lbs.

Sales and earnings of the International Nickel company of Canada, which produces most of the world's nickel, declined considerably last year. Sales were 55,739,047 pounds, compared with 75,284,352 in 1930. Net profits after ordinary charges were $5,094,497, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to 21 cents a share on the common stock. Net profits for 1930 were $11,770,060, or 67 cents a share. Dividends last year took $8,494,405 and extraordinary charges totaled $488,446. As a result, earned surplus declined $3,888,356 to $16,757,813. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, shows current assets of $29,243,671 and current liabilities of $3,793,027.

Santa Fe to Show Profit for February, It's Said

The Santa Fé will show a profit for February against a loss in the preceding month, William B. Storey, president, said yesterday in advices received from Los Angeles. In January the road showed a deficit for the first time in fifteen years. Reduced wages and heavy grain shipments made in anticipation of the new rate schedule were the important factors in the improved February results, Mr. Storey said. Loadings of the road last week totaled 21,825 cars, a drop of 1,475 from the first week of the month.

National Tea February Sales Off 4.8 Per Cent

Sales of National Tea company for the four weks ended Feb. 27 amounted to $5,169,555, against $6,068,465 for the corresponding period a year ago, a decline of 4.8 per cent.

MILK BUSINESS STRONG DESPITE SLUMP OF 1931

Borden and Carnation Cos. Report for Year.

The business of two big milk and food concerns, the Borden and Carnation companies, held up fairly well last year. Sales tonnage of the Borden company declined only 8 per cent, although lower prices resulted in dollars, sales receding from $345,422,778 to $284,586,876. Net income from ordinary operations for 1931 was $16,812,268, equivalent to $3.82 a share on 4,395,281 capital shares. The net income after profit sharing provisions was equal to $3.66 a share.

While net income is figured after ordinary charges, other extraordinary charges were made against surplus. These totaled $10,785,505. Cash dividends last year took $13,143,117 and a stock dividend required $3,175,025. As the result, earned surplus at the end of 1931 was $30,021,916, compared with $43,077,873 at the end of 1930. Net income for 1930 was $21,681,213, or $5.12 a share on 4,233,395 shares, but $4.84 a share after profit sharing. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, shows current assets of $58,666,086 and current liabilities of $15,019,234.

The Carnation company had net profits of $1,383,512 in 1931, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $1.96 a share on 608,213 common shares. Dividends totaled $1,105,029, appropriation for obsolescence required $50,000 and $141,792 was appropriated for 1932 preferred dividends. Surplus at the end of 1931 was $3,876,966, compared with $3,506,691 at the end of 1930. Net profits for 1931 were $1,411,632, or $1.99 a share on 611,628 common shares. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, shows current assets of $9,760,981 and current liabilities of $2,404,866.

Canadian Pacific Income Equals 62c on Common

MONTREAL, Quebec, March 14.—(AP)—Earnings of the Canadian Pacific railway for 1931 dropped to 62 cents for each of the 13,400,000 shares of ordinary stock outstanding, as compared with $2.54 per share in 1930. Net revenue was $13,834,472, from which preferred payments were deducted. Net earnings were $25,682,872, to which was added $10,951,964 in special income. In 1930, net earnings were $38,248,658 and special income was $20,042,923. The net revenue figure represents net earnings minus fixed charges and pension fund allowances.

Business Now Improving, Eastern Educator Asserts

A substantial improvement in the financial situation is now apparent and an up trend in business will follow, according to John T. Madden, dean of the commerce school of New York university. He told members of the Junior Association of Commerce yesterday that he was convinced, on the basis of recent surveys, the turning point had been reached.

Railmen Hear Ship Expert Talk on Trucks

BY SCRUTATOR.

Railroad men in these strenuous times are increasingly eager to listen to ideas that are new or different. They do not avoid coming into contact with people who express opinions contrary to their own. In fact, they are likely to seek the company of men who say things that a few years ago would have been branded "traffic heresy" and dismissed with a wave of the hand.

Yesterday railroad officials formed the major part of an audience that gathered to hear a steamship and waterway expert talk about motor trucks.

Theodore Brent, president of the Redwood line of New Orleans, spoke at the Traffic club on "Low Cost Transportation versus Regulation."

"Americans," he said, "want the cheapest possible transportation, organized on a highly competitive scale, and yet with an earning power capable of giving the promoters large profits and the shares a maximum of speculative value.

Offers Transit Contrasts.

"If transportation is to be regarded as a public necessity, if it is to be furnished by each separate agency at as near cost as is compatible with the maintenance of good service, that objective will lead in one direction. "If, on the contrary, it is to be measured primarily with an eye to the utmost profit which can be extracted from the business of transporting persons and property, that objective calls for entirely different treatment.

"The trouble with present American transportation laws is that they attempt a clumsy straddle of these two opposing objectives. It is the natural outcome of muddy thinking, unworkable compromises, and has been partially vitiated by some rather startling legal interpretations, notably that of the O'Fallon case.

"As an inevitable result, everybody is clamoring for more and different laws, and this congress, among other things, is being called upon to consider many and diverse remedies."

Mr. Brent pointed out that European industry is close to the seaboard and enjoys low cost transportation and that in the United States the center of major production is relatively far removed from the seaboard.

Affects Foreign Trade.

"If Americans are to meet foreign competition in world markets," he argued, "their goods must reach the sea by the cheapest available means of transportation. Wholesale regulation of all cheaper forms of transportation must inevitably close to American industry, commerce and agriculture all access to foreign trade.

"It is a grave mistake at any time to proceed on the theory that the American public does not heed and is not interested in cheap transportation."

Mr. Brent declared that any attempt to help the railroads by subjecting their highway and waterway competitors to strict governmental regulation was bound to fail, because 85 per cent of the trucks and boats are not common carriers. A better solution, he contended, lay in cutting railroad expenses. He advocated pooling of passenger train service to eliminate duplication.

Favors Good Suburban Trains.

"Suburban service of railroads, kept responsive to the public needs by electrification and other improvements," Mr. Brent continued, "will grow constantly and substantially as the cities grow.

"Long haul, fast through transportation, requiring day and night travel in Pullman cars, will maintain itself in good measure and will tend to build up the average hauls of the passengers carried.

"The large part of the occasional trip transportation by railroad is gone. The travel of salesmen through trade territories also is gone. The railroad never served that with any measure of satisfaction.

"Railroad managements can find a productive field in reducing the cost, by cooperative effort, of the travel which is left to them. The shipping and traveling public of the United States is paying too much for an archaic system of competitive railroad service which brings them nothing of value which would not be as well or better served by cooperative effort."

He referred to the increase in the traffic handled by motor trucks as "the healthy development of a new form of transportation."

"It will doubtless prove difficult," he said, "to convince the public that better and cheaper service is vicious."

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—The share market was called upon to shoulder a heavy burden of adverse news today and the end of the five hour session found it rather groggy.

The suicide of Ivar Kreuger, international financier, in Paris on Saturday, the death of George Eastman, the multimillionaire kodak manufacturer in Rochester this afternoon and the unexpected vote of the house on the prohibition issue all combined to accelerate the stream of uneasy liquidation that began to bear the list down last week. Selling went on all day and the close found the more active stocks showing losses of anywhere from 1 to 6 points or more.

Most of the leaders were under pressure throughout.

Eastman Shares Are Affected.

Wall street did not know until after the close of the stock market, however, Eastman had committed suicide. The financial community assumed that news was withheld until after the close, just as was done in Paris on Saturday in the case of the suicide of Ivar Kreuger. The mere announcement of Mr. Eastman's death, however, was sufficient to produce a break of 5 points in the shares of the Eastman Kodak company, or from 78¼ to 73¼. The stock which had risen to a high of 81 for the day fell to the low of 73¼ and then closed at 74¾ with a net loss of 6½ points. Trading was of only nominal proportions.

Eastman's death did not carry the market implications which the death of Mr. Kreuger did over the week-end. The Eastman company, so far as could be learned, has had no financial embarrassment whatever, nor has it or its late chairman been involved in any market operations that might have troubled him. He was regarded as a prudent and sane manufacturer who had developed an extremely profitable business. Even during the worst phase of the depression the company had continued to show satisfactory earnings. On Feb. 10 the directors decided to omit the customary extra dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock, but declared the regular dividend of $1.25 a share.

Volume Is Small.

One reassuring feature of the general market was the continued moderation of volume. The turnover for all the urgent selling here and there remained within 2,000,000 shares, or only a quarter of a million or so above last week's average.

Interest, of course, centered in the issues in which the Swedish magnate had a hand. All the stocks of the group were sharply lower, and trading in them was in large volume. Kreuger & Toll, the principal stock of the group, opened on a sale of 150,000 shares at 1⅞, a decline of 3½ points from Saturday's close, and continued to change hands in lively fashion to the end. The price steadied somewhat in the afternoon and the closing sale was recorded at 2⅛, representing a loss of more than 50 per cent in value on the day. All told, 673,800 shares of the stock were sold, or more than

COMPLETE MORE AMERICAN BOND REFINANCINGS

Eastern Properties Are Reorganized.

Reorganization of two more American Bond and Mortgage company issues, totaling more than $900,000, has been completed, it was announced yesterday by Craig B. Hazlewood, chairman of the bondholders' protective committee and vice president of the First National bank. Both properties are in the east, but the bonds were sold extensively in Chicago and throughout the middle west. They are now held by new companies representing the bondholders who deposited their securities with the committee.

CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD.

The structures involved are the fourteen story commercial building at 230 West 40th street, in the New York garment center, and the five story Roosevelt building at Huntington avenue and Forsythe street, Boston, containing ninety-four apartments and five stores.

Under the plan adopted by the committee for the protection of holders of bonds sold through the American Bond and Mortgage company, three trustees are selected by the group to hold the voting power in the corporation formed to own and control the reorganized property. This new company will be administered for the depositing bondholders by the voting trust for a ten year period.

New Company Takes Title.

A new company known as the West 40th Street and 6th Avenue corporation has taken title to the New York property. Voting trust certificates, representing one share of stock for each $100 in bonds held, are being issued to the depositors.

The original bond issue was $400,000, since reduced to $356,500 at the time of default. Bonds aggregating $273,500 were deposited, leaving $83,000 in bonds held by nondepositing holders. To pay off these latter and to provide for the payment of taxes, foreclosure costs, and reorganization and the establishment of working capital for the new organization, the committee on Dec. 10, 1931, placed a $100,000 loan, five years, at 5 per cent, on the property.

Officers of the new corporation are Charles W. Weston of New York, president; F. G. Curry of New York, vice president; James E. Robertson, secretary; Henry E. Keough, assistant secretary, and Charles W. Devoy, treasurer. Mr. Weston, Mr. Curry, and Mr. Hazlewood comprise the voting trustees.

The Roosevelt building issue was $575,000, reduced to $550,836 at the time of default, April, 1928. Bonds aggregating $522,536, or about 95 per cent of the outstanding amount, were on deposit when the reorganization plan was put into effect. On Sept. 15, 1931, the property was bought at foreclosure for $100,000.

Known as the Roosevelt company, the new corporation holds the property, subject only to real estate taxes and unpaid reorganization expenses. It is authorized to issue 6,500 shares of no par common stock, but the total issue, when all certificates of deposit are exchanged for voting trust certificates, will not amount to more than 5,225 shares.

Walter J. Sugden of Boston is president of the company and Samuel R. Haines of Boston is treasurer. The voting trustees are Herbert K. Hallett of Boston, F. G. Curry, and Mrs. Hazlewood.

Get Only $19.74.

Speaking of the current situation, Mr. Hazlewood said: "While the distribution of cash in many instances is not possible in view of restricted loaning policies, the completion of reorganizations now does not preclude the placing of a mortgage on the property at a more propitious time and the distribution of the proceeds among the holders of the voting trust certificates. In the meantime, the interest of the certificate holders in the property obviously is greater than if the holding were mortgaged.

"In the case of the Roosevelt building in Boston, the depositors now own the building outright, free of even a mortgage. Contrast this with the position of the nondepositing bondholders, who have received but $19.74 for each $100 in bonds held and have relinquished all future claims to the property."

Members of the bondholders' protective committee include Frank W. Blair, Frederick G. Curry, H. K. Hallett, Dayton Keith, Joseph E. Otis, Wallace T. Perkins, Walter J. Sugden, and Mr. Hazlewood, who is chairman. Attorneys are Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse of Chicago, and Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett of New York.

Files Bankruptcy Petition Against Dominican Sugar

New York, March 14.—(AP)—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in United States District court today against the Cuban Dominican Sugar corporation, a Maryland concern, with offices at 25 Broadway. The company has been in the hands of equity receivers for some time. The petitioners are Max Wolens, Joe Wolens and Daisy W. Silverberg, holding $2,000, $3,000 and $1,500 in bonds of the corporation, respectively. All of the petitioners reside in Corsicana, Tex. It is alleged the corporation owes more than $14,000,000, which the petition charges is greatly in excess of the assets.

I. C. C. REAFFIRMS ITS COTTON BELT DECISION

Southern Pacific to Keep Control of Line.

Washington, D. C., March 14.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today denied the petition of the Missouri Pacific and Texas and Pacific railroads for reconsideration of the commission's order allowing the Southern Pacific company to acquire control of the St. Louis Southwestern railway, also known as the Cotton Belt, and incorporate that road in its system.

The Missouri Pacific, which runs from St. Louis to Texarkana, Tex., and other points in the southwest, and the Texas and Pacific, a subsidiary which competes directly in Texas with the Southern Pacific, fought the application of the Southern Pacific.

Wanted Case Reopened.

After the commission, in an effort to prevent the Cotton Belt from having to default on a bond issue due June 1, authorized the acquisition, the Missouri Pacific and the Texas and Pacific sought to have the case reopened on the ground that the commission had not taken into consideration the possibility of the Cotton Belt obtaining funds from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other sources.

After the petition was filed the Southern Pacific notified the commission that it accepted all conditions attached to the order. Today's decision, coupled with a dismissal of an application by the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad for inclusion of the Cotton Belt in the St. Louis-San Francisco-Rock Island system, clears the way for consummation of the deal.

The Cotton Belt, under the commission's consolidation plan of 1929, was assigned to the Illinois Central system. The Illinois Central did not want the road, and efforts were made by the Southern Pacific and the St. Louis-San Francisco-Rock Island to have it transferred to one of the two systems. This was accomplished by the commission's order of Jan. 12.

Authorizes R. F. C. Loan.

The commission approved a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $162,000 today for the Fort Smith and Western railway. The money is to be used for paying overdue bills for materials, car repairs, rentals, and other indebtedness not exceeding $64,332; payment of taxes in Oklahoma for the year 1930, totaling $42,668, and bank loans matured Feb. 4, totaling $55,000.

The road is in receivership, and the receivers had asked a loan of $250,000, a portion of it to be used for 1931 taxes and to care for an estimated deficit during 1932. The last two items were disallowed for the present.

Present Opportunities

Fixed rates of income at which funds can now be employed for a period of years, are very high in contrast with rates of recent years.

There are many unusually attractive opportunities available at this time for conservative investment in bonds.

Some of these opportunities are listed in our pamphlet "Investment Suggestions." Copy on request.

DEFEAT OF WETS BRINGS DECLINE IN GRAIN PRICES

Wheat Finishes Trading with 2⅜@3¼c Losses.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Defeat of the Beck-Linthicum prohibition repeal proposition in the house of representatives at Washington yesterday was construed by many members in the trade as a bearish facor. It started a selling movement in grain which swept aside all opposition and sent prices plunging downward in a violent manner. Liquidation and stop loss orders found support lacking and only the closing bell which ended trading checked the decline, the finish being at the bottom.

There was nothing in the early trading that suggested fireworks before the end of the day, wheat holding within a range of around ½c until the tickers announced the result of the first actual test vote on prohibition which has been held in the house. Houses with eastern connections started to sell as soon as the vote became known, and while the wheat market stood up under the selling for a short while the last half hour found the price rapidly crumbling away, with each dip uncovering a fresh lot of stop loss orders.

No Rally in Wheat.

Scarcely a rally of consequence occurred once the wheat market started downward, and the selling gained momentum when the May dropped below 60c, a figure which has brought in good buying heretofore. Sellers of daily bids were forced to protect themselves on the way down, and there was also some trading against the weekly bids which had sold unusually close to the market recently. May touched 57⅞c and closed there to ⅛c over and at the lowest price witnessed since Feb. 10. The close was at net losses of 2⅜@3¼c, with March finishing at 55c; July, 59⅜@59½c on the old style, and September, old style, at 61½@61⅝c.

For a number of weeks the trade have been talking optimistically as to the future of the grain markets due to a general belief that there would be a modification of the prohibition amendment, and yesterday's vote by the house against such action caused some operators to desert the bull side, temporarily at least. There was a noticeable lack of support on the way down.

U. S. Marts Hit Hardest.

American markets were more affected by the unexpected development than were those in other countries. Winnipeg closed 1⅝@1⅞c lower, with May at 65½c in Canadian funds, which were around 10½ per cent discount. Liverpool finished unchanged to ⅛c per bu higher, but the English market closed long before the big decline in Chicago got under way. Buenos Aires prices were moderately lower. There were no export sales of consequence reported in either hard winter or Manitobas, although more interest was said to have been shown in the former.

The trade paid little attention to routine news throughout the day, and increasing claims of crop damage in the southwest were ignored. A decrease of 262,000 bu in the visible supply of wheat brought the total down to 207,215,000 bu compared with 199,714,000 bu last year.

Corn Drops Sharply.

Corn felt the effect of the action of the house somewhat sooner than wheat, but there was not the large outstanding long interest in this grain which had apparently accumulated in wheat, owing to the extremely bearish statistical position which the trade regarded as having developed. Selling was largely by local operators, but was sufficient to cause a net loss of 1¼@1½c, with prices the lowest since Feb. 10. March came within 1½c of the lowest figures of the season, closing at 36c. May was 38½@38⅝c; July, 40⅞@41c, and September, 42½c at the last.

The break in futures shut off country selling of cash corn to arrive to a considerable extent, with 45,000 bu reported as having been bought. An increase of 983,000 bu in the visible supply raised the total to 20,689,000 bu against 21,182,000 bu last year.

Oats market was dull until near the close, scarcely a trade being made, but scattered liquidation developed toward the last with corn and the finish was ⅝c lower, with May 24¼@24⅝c and July 24⅞c.

The break in wheat started a selling movement in rye which carried prices off 2¼@2½c, with the finish slightly above the inside figure, May being 47½c and July 48⅜c at the last. Export demand at the seaboard was reported as relatively inactive.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable, closed weak, unchanged to 13 points lower, all active positions going into new lows for the year. Sales were 50 contracts, equivalent to 7,500 bris. Weakness of securities and commodities and selling credited to western houses with poor support caused the break. Crude oil was quoted at 3¼c in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 3.90c: March, 4.00c; May, 4.15c; July, 4.35c; September, 4.42c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract, with closing prices as follows: Spot, 3.55c; March, 3.75c; May, 4.00c. Prime summer yellow contract closing prices follow: Spot, 3.55c; March, 3.75c; May, 4.00c; July, 4.15c; September, 4.20c.

Commonwealth Customers—Pay LESS-for-LOANS

$3.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

Why pay more than

HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE

The nationally known HOUSEHOLD LOAN PLAN offers cash loans of $300 or less to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Loans above $100 and up to $300 are made at a rate less than the usual small loan rate.
